

Melbourne, 17th Oct. 1835.

My dear Sir,

As the friend to whom Mrs. Nix referred, has not yet called, and as the fortnight has elapsed, I think you and Mrs. Nix are beginning to be anxious respecting your dear little boy. I therefore write to inform you that, he continues perfectly well, appears as happy as the day is long, and is getting on in his learning very respectably.

He requests me to present his love to Papa, and Mamma, and beg them to send his saw, and the smallest of his chisels, some gum, and a glass bottle; these articles to be sent as quickly as possible.
He desires his love to his mother.

I am very happy to add that, he is a very good boy, conducting himself to our entire satisfaction.

Remains in most respectful compliments to Mrs. Pitt and yourself and J.

My dear Sir,

I agreeably to my promise

I write to assure you of your dear little boy's safety, and health. His spirits have been most excellent, and his health unimpaired until yesterday, when he complained of a little head ache, which was soon removed by a little gentle medicine, and he is today quite well again. We find him a very tractable, well behaved, and amiable child, and though extremely backward, I have no doubt but that, in due time, he will make satisfactory improvement.

We request me to say that he should very much like a cake, and a letter.

We unite in most respectful compliments to Mrs Sir, and yourself and trusting you will find your son, when you next see him, grown, and in all respects improved

I remain,

My dear Sir,

My dear Sir,

In compliance with Mrs Nix's wish, I write to acquaint you with the healthy spirits of your dear little boy. His spirits are excellent, he appears as happy as you could desire, but his health has been a little interrupted by an cold, or influenza, with which nearly half of us have been affected. He is now pretty well again, nor has he been ill, having had the attack much less severely than many of us.

We feel very much obliged by your liberality and kindness, we dined on the Ware yesterday, and all, including your son, much enjoyed it. We write in kindest and most respectful regards to Mrs. King and yourself and I
