PREFACE.

THE Proprietors in submitting the Tenth Edition of the Directory of the Counties of CAMBRIDGE, NORFOLK AND SUFFOLK, trust it may be found equal in accuracy to the previous editions.

The contents are similar to those in previous editions—a general account is given of each County, with the Hundreds and Poor Law Unions; Lists of Magistrates are included, and a sketch of the Geological Features of each County, by Mr. W. J. Harrison, is added: then follow, alphabetically arranged, the Places in each County, with their Inhabitants, both Private Residents and Commercial; it is stated under each Parish the Division of the County, as formed under the provisions of the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," and in what Hundred, Union, and County Court District it is situated, as also the Diocese, Archdeaconry, and Rural Deanery; and the College and University of every Beneficed Clergyman have been given, as far as they can be ascertained; the names of the Parish Clerks are shown under each Parish; lists of Farm Bailiffs of Gentlemen farming their own land are included.

The populations from the Census of 1891 not having yet been issued in full by the Government, the publishers are unable to give the figures for every place, but wherever possible they have been obtained.

The County Councils are included with the names and addresses of the members.

Maps, specially prepared for this edition, are given.

The Proprietors have again to return their thanks to those Clergymen, Magistrates' Clerks, Registrars, and other Gentlemen who have assisted the Agents while collecting the information.

 The Letters S.O. and R.S.O. at the end of addresses in various parts of the book are abbreviations adopted by H.M. Post Office to represent Sub-Office and Railway Sub-Office; and if these Initials, with the name of the County, are added to these addresses of letters in lieu of the usual name of Post Town, the delivery of such letters will be accelerated.

CAMBRIDGESHIRE.

CAMBRIDGE is one of the eastern counties, and is inland, though its borders reach within a few miles of the sea and the great inlet called the Wash, and includes the ports of Wisbech and Ely: it shelves gradually down from the upper sources of the Ouse, in the chalk country, to the lowlands of the rivers, and includes within its bounds the Isle of Ely and much other marsh ground. The upper part of the shire lies between the Ouse and Cam, the two heads of the Ouse: the lower part lies between the Ouse and the Nene, and is watered by their channels: these streams run into the Wash.

Cambridgeshire runs very nearly north and south, between 52 deg. 1 min. and 52 deg. 45 min. north latitude, and 0 deg. 31 min. east and 0 deg. 16 min. west longitude from Greenwich, Cambridge being in very nearly the same longitude as London. The shape is oblong, the southern part being wider than the northern: the greatest length is about 51 miles from north to south, and the greatest breadth 32 miles, but at Ely the breadth is not more than about 15 miles. On the north it is bounded by Lincolnshire; on the east by the Wisbech canal and by the Welney, Croft, Ouse and Lark, and the counties of Norfolk and Suffolk; on the south by Essex, Herts and Bedfordshire; on the west by Huntingdonshire; and on the north-west by Northamptonshire and the Catwater stream.

The county comprises 524,935 acres, and may be arranged under two great divisions—the Isle of Ely in the marsh lands, with 227,326 acres, and Cambridgeshire proper, with 297,609 acres. The population of the entire county in 1871 was 186,906, in 1881, 185,594, in 1891 was 188,862, and the number of inhabited houses 42,000.

The northern part of the county, including the Isle of Ely, is for the most part fen land, and comprises nearly half of the Great Level of the Fens, called the Bedford Level, covering 680,000 acres of rich land, the remainder of which is in Norfolk, Lincoln and Hunts, and was drained in the first instance by Sir Cornelius Vermuyden, a Dutchman, about the year 1629, since reclaimed and drained by successive engineers, and up to the present time is only preserved by great care and watchfulness; in place of hedges the fields are separated by ditches which communicate with wider cuttings, and these again flow into the natural watercourses of rivers which carry off the drainage: steam engines are now taking the place of windmills for pumping the water from the ditches into the larger drains, and these are provided with sluices to regulate the supply of water for navigation as the great drains are used as canals; in parts provision is made for excess of water in rainy weather by what is known as washlands, notably those some 20 miles in length from Earith (Hunts), across Cambridgeshire to Denver sluice (Norfolk), situated between the Hundred-feet (or New Bedford river), constructed after 1649, on the south and the Old Bedford river (dating from 1630) on the north: these washlands are flooded when the upland waters come down too fast to be discharged by the rivers and cover about 5,000 acres, affording rich pasture land. The black poplar, ash and alder are about the only trees of any size that flourish in this district, and at one time the fens were the resort of many species of wild fowl, but these latter have considerably diminished through the operation of draining. Sedge-cutting is one of the remaining fen industries, and at certain seasons the gathering of the couch-grass (Triticum Repens), which grows abundantly; of late years a large acreage has been devoted to potato growing and this affords considerable employment.

The Great Fen offers subjects of interest to the naturalist, geologist and the engineer and this Great Level has been from an early period divided into the North Level, the Middle Level and the South Level, Cambridgeshire being comprised in the last two; the corporation of the Bedford Level superintends the drainage of the large district called the South Level, and has offices at Ely; of the meres or inland lakes Whittlesey was the largest, but this has been drained by the Middle Level Commissioners and brought under cultivation; and at Thorney, near here, great improvements in this direction have been made under the supervision of the Duke of Bedford, whose ancestor, Francis, Earl of Bedford, in 1634, undertook the charge of the great drainage operations.

On the southern border of the shire the Gog-Magog and other hills rise to a height of about 300 feet. The upland is watered by the Ouse and its branches; the Ouse enters the shire on the west from Huntingdonshire, and passes through to the city of Ely on the east, proceeding to Downham and the sea at Lynn, in Norfolk: above Ely it receives the Cam, running down from Cambridge, where it is navigable, and just above which it is joined by the Rhea, from Hertfordshire and the south-west; below Ely the Ouse receives the Lark or Mildenhall river from Suffolk, navigable from Bury, and the Croft or Welney, from the borders of Norfolk: the Ouse is navigable for shipping up to Ely: the name of this river is Iberian, and is one of the very common names given to rivers by the Celts, like Thame, Dour and Dee: there is an Ouse in Cambridgeshire, Buckinghamshire, Sussex and Yorkshire; an Oise (anciently Axona) in France, an Auser and Æsar in Italy and Æous in Greece. The Nene is another of these names; the lower part only of this river passes through Cambridgeshire, where it splits into three channels, which have been much changed by drainage works: one channel is called the Catwater or Shire Drain, and runs between Cambridgeshire and Northamptonshire; a second, called Morton Leam, passes south to Wisbech, whence it is navigable to the sea: and the third, under the name of the Old Nene, or Whittlesea Dyke, flows by Whittlesea and March to the Ouse or Welney at Salter's Lode Sluice.

Cambridgeshire in respect to the annual amount of rainfall is one of the driest counties in England. The average is about 22 inches yearly. Observations of the rainfall are daily made at about thirty stations in the county. Most rain falls with south-west winds, while those from the south-east are the driest; in the months of the year, December and January have the dampest atmosphere; May and July the driest. In the fen district, the atmospheric conditions often present marked peculiarities: here the mirage is not of unfrequent occurrence, when places which under ordinary circumstances are below the horizon become visible, being tilted up into the air, as it were, by refraction. Moist air, a warm day and the sun low in the heavens, are stated by Mr. Skertchly to be necessary for the production of this phenomenon.

Oolitic clays form the western part of Cambridgeshire: the river Cam runs along the centre in a valley, formed by the Greensand and Gault clay, while to the south and east of that river all is chalk, which rises in the Gog-Magog Hills and Royston Downs to heights of from 300 to 500 feet. These chalk hills are a continuation of the Chiltern Hills of Buckinghamshire. In the north of the county we have a portion of the fenland which encircles the Wash, a level tract intersected by great dykes or drains.

The soil generally is fertile, corn being raised in the uplands as well as in the lowlands, and there is grazing in the latter. The produce consists of wheat (the Burwell wheat having a high reputation as seed), and other corn crops, cattle, sheep, Cottenham cheese (the production of which has much diminished), butter, fruit, hay, coleseed, osiers, cabbages, beans, potatoes, asparagus from Ely, reeds for thatching, chalk, lime and turf for fuel (much used), mangold wurtzel and carrots are grown in large quantities on the fen lands; the produce is chiefly sent to London from the ports of Lynn, Ely and Wisbech, and from Cambridge and other towns by railway. In the Cottenham and Willingham districts and around Wisbech much fruit is grown, especially gooseberries, and sent to the London and Manchester markets.

According to the occupation returns, brewing and malting are large trades. Brick-making is carried on to some extent, the chief material used in building being brick. Lime-burning for manure employs many persons, chiefly in the southern parts, and coprolite works give employment to many. The number of millers is considerable, and much corn is ground up and oilseed crushed. Basket-making, for which osiers is worked up, and mat-making occupy many persons. As there are so many navigable cuts and drains in the county, the employment of bargemen and boatmen is large, and many persons are engaged in ship, boat and barge building. Printing and bookselling employ 300 persons, chiefly at Cambridge, where books are printed at the University and other presses. There are paper and parchment works.

Race horses are trained on the downs near Newmarket.

The county is well provided with railway communication to all parts of England. The lines mostly belong to the Great Eastern and Great Northern systems, including two trunk lines to London. Cambridge is a great railway centre, and communicates with London viâ Hitchin, Hertfordshire, by the Great Northern railway and through Essex and Herts by the Great Eastern railway, and northward to Ely, whence there are railways to March and Peterborough and the port of Lynn, also to Brandon and so to Norwich and the port of Yarmouth; westward, from Cambridge is a line to St. Ives, and eastward there is a line through Newmarket and Bury St. Edmunds to Haughley junction, there joining the main line to Norwich and Ipswich: there is another branch through Fordham to Mildenhall; the Newmarket and Ely railway connects those towns: there is also a branch from Cambridge to Hitchin on the Great Northern, and a line of the London and North Western Railway Company, crossing the Great Northern at Sandy, through Bedford to Bletchley and Oxford. The Midland Railway Company has a branch from Peterborough through Thorney to Wisbech, thence to Lynn in Norfolk and also has access to Cambridge by its branch from Kettering to Huntingdon. The Great Northern Railway Company has a branch from Spalding in Lincolnshire to March. Ely and March are other railway centres.

The Southern part of the county is crossed by the old Roman road of Icknield Street (which was also a British road of the Iceni) from Newmarket to Royston, and by Ermine Street from Royston to the north-west. The Via Devana, another of these ways, passed through Cambridge towards Godmanchester, and another through Ely to Cambridge; most of these have now been obliterated or diverted.

The old high roads are the Great North Road, from London to York and Edinburgh, by Royston, with a branch to Cambridge; the London, Norwich and Newmarket Road, with a branch to Cambridge; and the Cambridge and Huntingdon Road, which joins the Great North Road. A branch of the Great North Road runs through the Isle of Ely by March and Wisbech.

Cambridgeshire first belonged to the Iberians, and afterwards to a British tribe called the Iceni, and being overrun by the Romans was by them included in the province Flavia Cæsariensis. The Romans had a town or settlement at Cambridge. On the retreat of the Romans it was held by the Welsh, but they being driven out it was settled by the same English Waring and Frisian clans as Norfolk and Suffolk, being most likely known as the Westfolk. When the present kingdom of England was formed the land took the name of Grantbridgeshire, and in 870 was wasted by the Danes, who destroyed Cambridge and the minsters of Ely, Soham and Thorney. In 875 the invaders again occupied the country, and obtained afterwards a permanent settlement amongst the East English: but in 921 an army of these settlers surrendered at Cambridge to King Edward I. surnamed the Elder. In 1010 a fresh swarm of Danes, under King Swain, again burned Cambridge. On the accession of William the Norman to the English kingdom, almost the only part of the land which resisted him was the Isle of Ely, where the gallant Hereward held out for nearly seven years, until 1074, when he was overpowered.

Cambridgeshire, under the name of Grantbridgeshire, was divided previously to Domesday Survey in the same manner as now. The Isle of Ely, in the north part of the shire, of old forming two hundreds, now forms four—Ely with 25,925 acres (exclusive of the city of Ely); Wisbech, with 61,157 acres; North Witchford, with 86,275 acres; and South Witchford, with 37,462 acres.

In the rest of the shire are the hundreds of Northstow, in the north midland, with 19,651 acres; Staplow (anciently Staplehow) in the north midland, with 40,775 acres; Cheveley (Newmarket), in the east, with 12,905 acres; Radfield, in the south-east, with 23,869 acres; Staine, in the south-east midland, with 18,917 acres; Whittlesford, in the south, with 11,078 acres; Flendish (anciently Flaming-dike), exclusive of Cambridge, in the south midland, with 11,906 acres; Thriplow, in the south-west, with 16,160 acres; Chilford (Linton), anciently Chilford, in the south-west, with 22,364 acres; Armingford or Royston (named from the ford of Ermine Street), in the south-west, with 29,287 acres; Wetherley, in the south-west midland, with 16,160 acres; Lowstow, in the west, with 25,500 acres; Chesterton, near Cambridge, in the south midland, with 15,847 acres; and Papworth, in the west midland, with 26,923 acres.

Cambridgeshire virtually includes two shires or separate jurisdictions, the shire proper and Ely. The shire proper has its county town at Cambridge, where the assizes and quarter sessions are held, and is divided into six petty sessional divisions. The Isle of Ely is under the jurisdiction of the bishop; the isle has also a bailiff, who acts as sheriff, a deputy-bailiff and two coroners. The spring assizes and April and October sessions are held at Ely; the summer assizes and January and July sessions at Wisbech: the Isle of Ely has four petty sessional divisions. Cambridgeshire is joined with Huntingdonshire in the shrievalty.

The University of Cambridge has separate jurisdiction over its own members.

The county is in the South Eastern circuit and has 172 parishes and parts of 7 others; the greater part is in the diocese of Ely, forming the archdeaconry of Ely, which is subdivided into the deaneries of Berton or Barton, Bourn or Knapwell, Cambridge, Camps first and second divisions, Chesterton and Shingay; a few parishes are in the diocese of Norwich, and one is a peculiar of Rochester. The Isle of Ely, forming the northern portion of the county, is, for ecclesiastical purposes, divided into the rural deaneries of Ely, March and Wisbech and forms a division, over which the bishop of the diocese of Ely also exercises archidiaconal functions. The municipal boroughs are Cambridge and Wisbech.

The chief towns are:—Cambridge, with its celebrated university, population in 1891, 36,983; Ely, with the episcopal establishment and a shipping port and railway station, 8,017: Newmarket, famed for its races and sporting, 6,213; Wisbech, with considerable export trade by water, and supplying great part of the district with coals and timber, 9,395; March, an ancient town and a great railway station, 6,995; Thorney, formerly famous for its abbey, which is still a fine structure, 1,861; Linton, a small town in the south, 1,726; Chatteris, in the Isle of Ely, 4,587; Soham, which had anciently an abbey, 4,138; and Whittlesea, also formerly possessing an abbey, 3,556; Whittlesea, or Whittlesey, has flax scutching and oil mills. Newmarket is partly in Suffolk, and Royston, in Hertfordshire. The ecclesiastical edifices of the Isle of Ely are remarkably handsome.

The Registration Districts are:—

COUNTY COUNCIL OF CAMBRIDGE.

Local Government Act, 1888, 51 & 52 Vic. c. 41.

Under the above Act, Cambridgeshire, excluding the Isle of Ely, after the 1st April, 1889, for the purposes of the Act, became a separate and distinct administrative county (sec. 46ic), governed by a County Council, consisting of chairman, aldermen and councillors (the number of councillors being determined by the Local Government Board) to be elected in manner prescribed by the Act (sec. 2).

The chairman shall, by virtue of his office, be a justice of the peace for the county, without qualification (sec. 46).

The police for the county will be under the control of a standing joint committee of the Quarter Sessions and the County Councils, to be appointed as therein mentioned (secs. 9 and 46).

The coroners for the county will in future be elected by the County Council, and the clerk of the peace shall be appointed by such joint committee, and may be removed by them (sec. 83-2).

The clerk of the peace for the county shall also be the clerk of the County Council (sec. 83-1).

The administrative business of the county (which would, if this Act had not been passed, have been transacted by the justices) shall be transacted by the County Councils.

IN a small pamphlet published by the authorities of the Woodwardian Museum, at Cambridge, Mr. W. Whitaker gives the titles of 121 works or papers on the geology of the county, which had been made public up to the end of 1873. Among those who have done much to elucidate the nature of the strata and their fossil contents in this district, we may mention the names of Professor Sedgwick, H. G. Seeley, Bonney and McCoy; the Revs. P. B. Brodie and O. Fisher, and Messrs. W. J. Sollas, A. J. Jukes-Browne, J. F. Walker, H. Keeping, J. J. H. Teall &c. The surface of the county has been examined, and the position of the rock-beds laid down on maps by the officers of the Government Geological Survey. A geological map of the district round Cambridge was prepared by Mr. Lucas Barrett in 1859, of which a revised edition by Mr. Jukes-Browne was published in 1873. The Geological Survey Memoir by Mr. Skertchly, on "The Fenland," published in 1877, gives an excellent and complete account of the northern portion of the county. In the Woodwardian Museum, under the public library at Cambridge, the visitor will find a grand series of local rocks and fossils, the result of many years' work on the part of the energetic geologists who have been or are connected with this institution.

Cambridgeshire may be divided—geologically and topographically—into four areas or regions. The first of these is the small tract occupied by the Oolite Clays in the south-west of the county, extending from Fenny Drayton and Willingham by Papworth St. Agnes and Elsworth to Croxton, Eltisley and Caxton, being in fact the eastern edge of the great sheet of clay which forms nearly the whole of Huntingdonshire.

Secondly, we have the valley of the Cam and Rhee, excavated mainly in Neocomian and Lower Cretaceous beds. This valley runs from south-west to north-east, from Guilden Morden by Cambridge to Ely.

The third region is constituted by the chalk hills which form the south and south-east of the county, running by Royston and Linton to Newmarket. These three divisions include all the old stratified rocks of Cambridgeshire, which are thus seen to belong to two of the great geological divisions only, viz. the Oolitic and the Cretaceous. They have a strike, or line of direction or extension, along the surface from north-east to south-west, while they each incline or dip to the south-east, passing under the bed next above, so that the lowest and oldest rocks are the Oolite Clays just mentioned as occurring on the western side of the county.

The fourth division is a portion of the great fen district, and is composed of beds of clay, peat and gravel, which rest upon and conceal the northward extension of the older strata which form the three districts before described. The river Ouse, in its course from east to west across the county, defines pretty clearly the southern termination of the fens.

We shall now consider each district with as much detail as our space permits, pointing out the nature and position of the rocks, and the character of their fossils, concluding with a brief statement of the evidence which we possess as to the antiquity of man.

THE OOLITE.—In the south-west of England, from Dorset to Oxford, and again in the north-east, in Yorkshire, we have two great beds of clay belonging to the middle and upper part of the Oolitic system, separated from each other by an intervening bed of limestone—more or less continuous—which is called the Coral Rag. This limestone has associated with it two sandy beds—one above and the other below—which are called the Upper and the Lower Calcareous Grit. But from the quarries at Headington and Wheatley, near Oxford, to Acklam Wold, in Yorkshire—a distance of 240 miles—there is no good line of demarcation between the Oxford and the Kimmeridge Clays, with the exception of certain limestone bands in Cambridgeshire which we shall describe. The two great clay masses pass into each other gradually and insensibly, and it becomes impossible to lay them down separately on a map.

Fine sections in the Oxford Clay are to be seen in the brickyards at St. Ives and Peterborough, but these are both outside the county boundary. The same stratum passes underneath the fen beds and forms no doubt the foundation of all the low flat country round the Wash. At two or three points the Oxford Clay rises above the later deposits, as round Whittlesea and Thorney, forming what were once islands when the fens were undrained. There is a large pit to the north-west of Whittlesea, where the Oxford Clay is seen to be of a deep-blue colour, and to contain much pyrites and wood. There are also clay-pits round the town of Whittlesea, which have yielded many beautiful ammonites together with Gryphæa dilatata, a large and very characteristic shell. At Eastrea brickyard clays, perhaps rather higher in the Oxfordian series, are worked. Passing farther south, we find the Oxford Clay extending from Fenny Drayton, by Papworth St. Agnes to Eltisley and Croxton. Here it forms rather high flat ground; but, being thickly covered by boulder clay, there are few sections visible. This region, however, is interesting from the occurrence of several bands of hard rock in the clay, which were discovered by Professor H. G. Seeley, and the exact position of which in the Oolitic series is very doubtful. The most important is at Elsworth, 8 miles north-west of Cambridge. Here are layers exposed in the brook-course of a homogeneous limestone, full of oolitic grains and (when unweathered) of a dark-blue colour. Whether this rock represents the Lower Calcareous Grit, or is simply a calcareous band high up in the Oxford Clay, is a point of much interest. Mr. Seeley is inclined, from the fossils he found in it, to assign to it the latter position. There are also thin bands of limestone at Tetworth and near Gamlingay and Boxworth. From the neighbourhood of these villages, as we pass eastwards, the "clay seems to graduate imperceptibly up to the Kimmeridge Clay of Cottenham." For the transition clays, which contain both Oxfordian and Kimmeridgian, Mr. Seeley has proposed the name of Tetworth (or Ampthill) Clay; it would of course occupy the place of the Coral Rag of other districts.

The Coral Rag.—Near the little village of Upware, about 10 miles north-east of Cambridge and 3 miles from Reach, there is a low plateau formed of limestone (capped by Neocomian Sands), which is probably a remnant of a coral reef, the only one on this line between Oxford and Yorkshire. The limestone is worked in two quarries, situated at the north and south ends of the plateau. The southern pit shows a creamy-white limestone, with layers of corals and many other fossils, as Cidaris florigemma, &c. The northern pit is in rather lower beds, and shows a coralline Oolite with few fossils, mostly echinoderms.

The Kimmeridge Clay.—This deposit is very thin in Cambridgeshire: it can be traced by Cottenham and Haddenham to Ely, where, at Roslyn Hill, it is being largely excavated for the purpose of tamping, or making watertight, the banks of the dykes in the fens: its thickness here is 60 feet, and it is a bituminous, purplish, or bluish-black laminated clay, containing large nodules of impure limestone. Many fossils have been obtained here, including nine or ten species of saurians, several of which were new species, and have been described by Professor Seeley. In a pit, sunk by Mr. Keeping near the Coral Rag Pit, at Upware, he found the Kimmeridge Clay curving up unconformably against the limestone, and at the junction the clay had mixed with it a quantity of rounded or broken fragments from the Coral Rag, "so that it actually presented the appearance of boulder-drift."

Of the highest Oolitic strata—the Portland Stone and sand and the Purbeck Beds—there is no trace in Cambridgeshire, neither are there any representatives of the Estuarine Series which assumes so much importance in the south-east of England, where it is known as the Wealden. It is probable that land existed in this area during the time of deposition of these strata elsewhere.

NEOCOMIAN FORMATION.—This important division is scantily represented by the beds commonly called Lower Greensand. They are of a sandy nature, and we can trace them from the well-known "diggings" at Potton, in Bedfordshire, by Gamlingay, Bourn, Dry Drayton and Oakington to Upware. Their thickness is variable; in the south of the county about 100 feet, but thinning northwards to only 8 feet at Wicken. Some of the sandy beds are sufficiently consolidated to furnish an inferior building-stone, known as "Carstone." These beds lie under Cambridge at a depth of 100 to 150 feet, and are reached by artesian wells, yielding a good supply of excellent water. At Ely, the Lower Greensand is seen resting on Kimmeridge Clay and about 8 feet thick At Haddenham it is a light brown ferruginous sand 15 feet thick. At Upware there are extensive workings for coprolites. Properly speaking coprolites are the fossilized dung of saurians. fishes, &c.; but the term has been applied to all the more or less rounded dark-looking phosphatic nodules which occur in great numbers in these deposits. In the shallow diggings at Upware we see about 8 feet of Neocomian Sands, which contain two phosphate beds, an upper one, 6 or 7 inches thick. and a lower one forming the base of the deposit and from 1 to 2 feet in thickness. The lower bed contains many pebbles, which have to be picked out. Fossils are numerous. They may be divided into two classes, placing in one division those which from their rolled and water-worn appearance, the marks of boring shells which they bear, and their usual dark colour appear to be derived, i.e. washed out of some older deposits, as the Kimmeridge and Oxford Clays, &c. and another set of a lighter hue and more perfect preservation, which are of the age of the deposit. Most of the so-called coprolites are pieces of wood, casts of shells, bones and even lumps of mud, all of which have been penetrated by phosphate of lime, so as now to form when properly treated a most valuable manure.

CRETACEOUS FORMATION.—The term "galt," or "golt," is applied by workmen to any stiff clay, being often used in the Midlands to describe the Oxford Clay, or even the chalky Boulder Clay. By geologists, however, it has been adopted as a name for the lowest member of the Cretaceous Series proper, which is accordingly termed the Gault. Professor Bonney describes it as a "tenacious pale bluish-grey clay," in which are occasional concretions of iron pyrites, often more or less converted into limonite together with small crystals of selenite and not a few rather light-brown phosphatic nodules." This stratum runs through Cambridgeshire from Guilden Morden and Kingston by Cambridge, Girton, Horningsea and Soham, forming flat ground for one or two miles on each side of the Cam. Its thickness is variable, and it appears to lie unconformably on the Lower Greensand, while its upper surface is also uneven and much eroded. At Guilden Morden its thickness is about 200 feet, and thence it thins northwards to 170 feet at Bassingbourne, 160 feet at Barrington, 150 feet at Haslingfield, 120 feet at Grantchester, and under Cambridge it is only a little over 100 feet in thickness. In fact in this county the Gault has suffered great erosion, all the upper portion has been worn away, and we shall find the residue of the denuded portion at the base of the next higher deposit—the Chalk Marl. We can study the Gault in many large excavations where it is worked for brick and tile making, as in the deep pit on the right of the Newmarket road near Cambridge, and at Barnwell. At the latter place lines of "coprolites" are seen. Many of these Mr. Sollas has found to be phosphatized sponges. Other fossils are not common near Cambridge, but further north, at Reach &c. the usual common gault fossils as Belemnites minimus and Inoceramus concentricus are found. From an examination of the shells in this and in other areas, and a comparison of their habits with those of existing molluscs of the same genera, Mr. F. G. H. Price has come to the conclusion "that the Lower Gault was a near-shore or muddy estuarine deposit, and that in course of time, as the sea-bed gradually sank, so did that sea naturally become deeper and deeper," as is shewn by the disappearance of shells which inhabit shallow water and the incoming of genera of deeper seas.

The Chalk-Marl.—To see the base of this division it will only be necessary to visit some of the numerous "coprolite" workings which occur along its outcrop for a distance of 50 miles, from Soham to Hitchin. The chief pits lie near Grantchester, Meldruth, Whaddon, Shepreth, Horningsea, Coton and Royston. The sections here exposed show on top perhaps 2 or 3 feet of gravel and sand, then 10 to 20 feet of chalk-marl, which is of a greyish tint, and is locally called "clunch." The lower part of this marl contains many green grains, and its base is "a stratum barely a foot in thickness, which is full of green grains, and black granules and nodules, looking like a sediment from the purer marl above. The green grains are the mineral glauconite, and the black nodules phosphate of lime, often but erroneously called coprolites." This stratum is the famous Cambridge Greensand, and was long thought to represent the true Upper Greensand of the south of England. Messrs Whitaker, Jukes-Browne and others, have now shown that this bed is really the base of the Chalk-Marl. The Upper Greensand proper comes to an end a short distance north of Tring, in Hertfordshire, and the Upper Gault similarly, near Barton in Bedfordshire. These beds must have been washed away in Cambridgeshire, probably by strong marine currents, and we have their "riddlings" as it were, in the conglomeratic stratum which constitutes the base of the Chalk-Marl. In 1887 there were raised from this seam in Cambridgeshire and Bedfordshire 55,000 tons of phosphatic nodules, valued at £150,000. The trade, however, is falling off greatly, owing to extensive imports from abroad, especially from the port of Charlestown in America, whence 170,000 tons have been imported in one year to our manure manufacturers. In Cambridgeshire a rent of from £100 to £140 per acre has been usually paid for the privilege of digging the nodules, the average yield being 300 tons per acre. The land has afterwards to be properly levelled, re-soiled, and returned to the owner at the end of two years.

After being dug out, the nodules are washed in a mill erected on the workings, and then conveyed to the chemical works, where they are ground to powder and treated with sulphuric acid, which converts the insoluble phosphate of lime into the soluble super-phosphate.

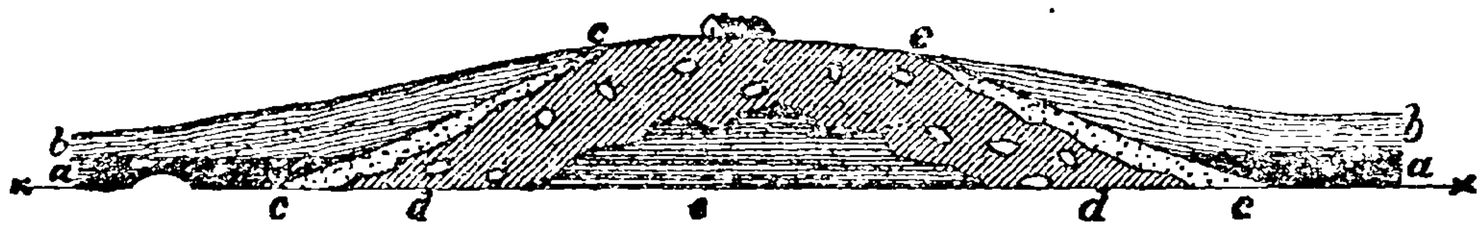

When the bed is examined minutely, the green grains of glauconite are found to be the internal casts of the shells of foraminifera. Many of the nodules are phosphatized sponges; a fact which Mr. Sollas was enabled to demonstrate by examining thin semi-transparent slices of them under the microscope. Fossils are very numerous. There are a few bones of birds, and many of reptiles and fishes, while shells and remains of crustaceans are numerous. As in the Lower Greensand, two sets of fossils can be distinguished: the first occur as dark phosphate casts, and have been washed out of the Gault; the second comprises those which lived at the time of the formation of the stratum in which they are found. Of the former Ammonites splendens, A. rostratus, and A. auritus, and of the latter Exogyra laciniata and Plicatula sigillina may be mentioned.

Although pebbles are not so numerous as in the Lower Greensand coprolite bed, yet masses of stone of large size are sometimes found, of which there are some good examples in the Woodwardian Museum. They appear to be rocks which have been brought from the east of Scotland and the south of Norway, possibly by floating ice.

Large outliers of the Chalk-Marl occur west of the Cam; but the edge of the main mass of the bed lies about 2 miles east of the river. It is about 60 feet in thickness, and is of a light greyish tint.

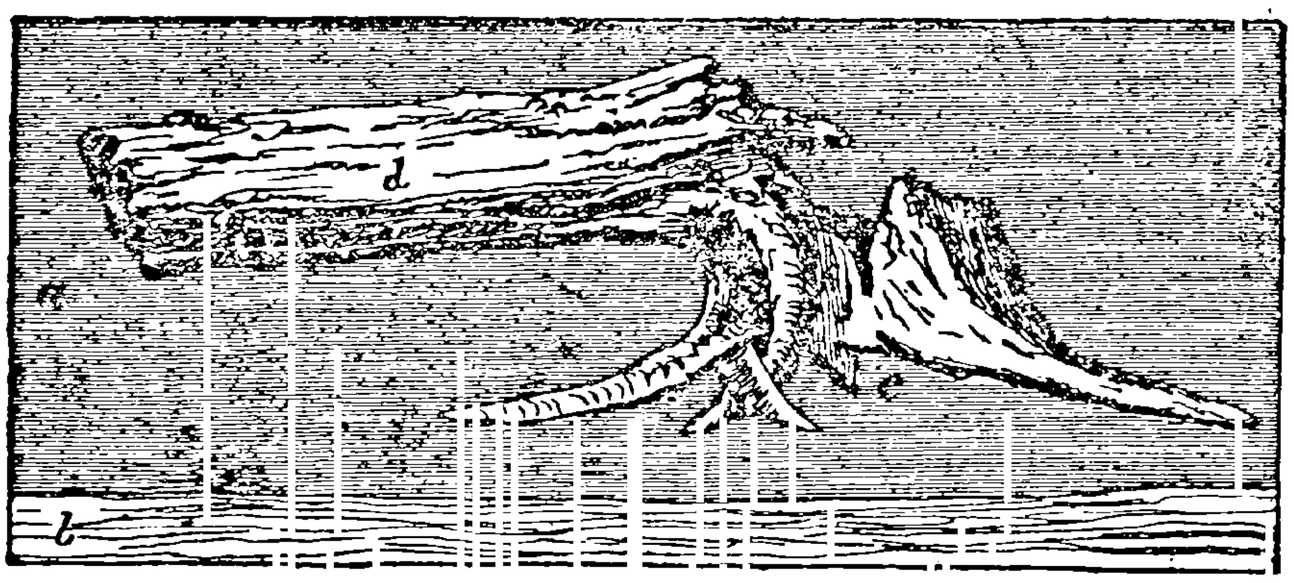

The Chalk.—The Lower Chalk without flints is worked for building-stone at Madingley, Burwell, Reach &c; and also furnishes excellent lime. It is rather too perishable for the outside of buildings, but works very easily, and is well adapted for interior carvings. It is impossible in many places to draw a precise line between the Chalk-Marl and the Lower Chalk without flints, and the latter again passes up gradually into the Upper Chalk with flints. At some points, however, we see a hard band, the Totternhoe Stone, on top of the Chalk-Marl, and another hard bed called Chalk Rock between the Upper and Lower Chalk. In a chalk pit about a mile south of Litlington church, there is a hard cream-coloured nodular layer, about 6 inches thick, seen at the bottom of the section, and the chalk above is hard and massive. This pit is probably in the upper part of the "Lower Chalk." The Upper Chalk forms the line of hills which runs by Royston and Linton towards Newmarket. In the rounded outlines of these hills, with their waterless valleys between, we recognize at once the characteristics of chalk scenery. In the various pits the usual chalk fossils are to be found—sea-urchins (echinoderms), known by their rounded form, with such shells as Terebratula and Inoceramus; the lines of dark-coloured flints are visible enough, but their exact mode of formation is as difficult to explain as that of the phosphatic nodules called coprolites. Indeed, in the chalk, true coprolites are sometimes found: they may generally be told by their twisted exterior. The thickness of the chalk is here about 800 feet. The western slope of the chalk hills towards the Cam valley is somewhat abrupt; but the dip-slope eastwards is long and gentle. The Gog-Magog hills rise to a height of 302 feet above the sea, and the heights of a few other points on the chalk are Babraham (church), 83 feet; Little Abington (church), 104 feet; Linton (church), 133 feet; The Rivey (a hill near Linton), 350 feet; and Balsham, 395 feet. When chalk is examined microscopically, the mass of the rock is found to be made up of the minute shells of foraminifera, which probably accumulated at the bottom of a deep sea comparable to the North Atlantic of the present day.

THE DRIFT.—GLACIAL DEPOSITS.—Of the Tertiary Formations—the London Clay, the Crag &c. which are found resting upon the chalk in Suffolk and Essex—we get no trace in Cambridgeshire. We pass at once from the chalk—an oceanic deposit—to beds of gravel and boulder clay, which were formed during the last glacial period, a time of excessive cold, when great glaciers existed in England, and during which the land underwent great changes of level. The lowest glacial deposits appear to be certain beds of gravel and sand termed Middle Glacial by Mr. S. V. Wood, jun. They are exposed near Quendon, Wicken Bonant &c. The latest observations, by Mr. Jukes-Browne and others, tend to show that these gravels belong rather to the Boulder Clay which rests upon them. This clay is a stiff brown or blue mass, full of rocks of all sorts and sizes, but especially of chalk, so that it is often termed the Great Chalky Boulder Clay. It laps over the Chalk hills and stretches over the high ground which lies between the valleys of the Cam and Ouse. Its extent and position show (1) that it was once a continuous sheet covering the whole county, and (2) that it was deposited after the main physical features of the county had been formed, since it occurs on the valley slopes. The smaller lateral valleys have, however, been cut and the principal valleys deepened since its deposit. Northwards the Boulder Clay passes under the fen beds; but it stretches in all directions far beyond Cambridgeshire, terminating southwards on the brow of the Thames Valley. Its thickness in this county is very variable, but often above 100 feet. The varied rocks and fossils which it contains appear mostly to have come from the northward, from Lincolnshire and Yorkshire, and some even from Scandinavia. These may have been broken off and dragged underneath, or pushed before a great glacier advancing southwards. Some of the masses of rock which have been carried in this way are of enormous size. At Roslyn Hole, near Ely, there is a mass of Chalk, Greensand and Gault, 480 yards in length by 60 in width, which is surrounded by and rests upon Boulder Clay, the latter occupying a hollow scooped out of Kimmeridge Clay. This enormous mass must have been transported by ice from the eastwards.

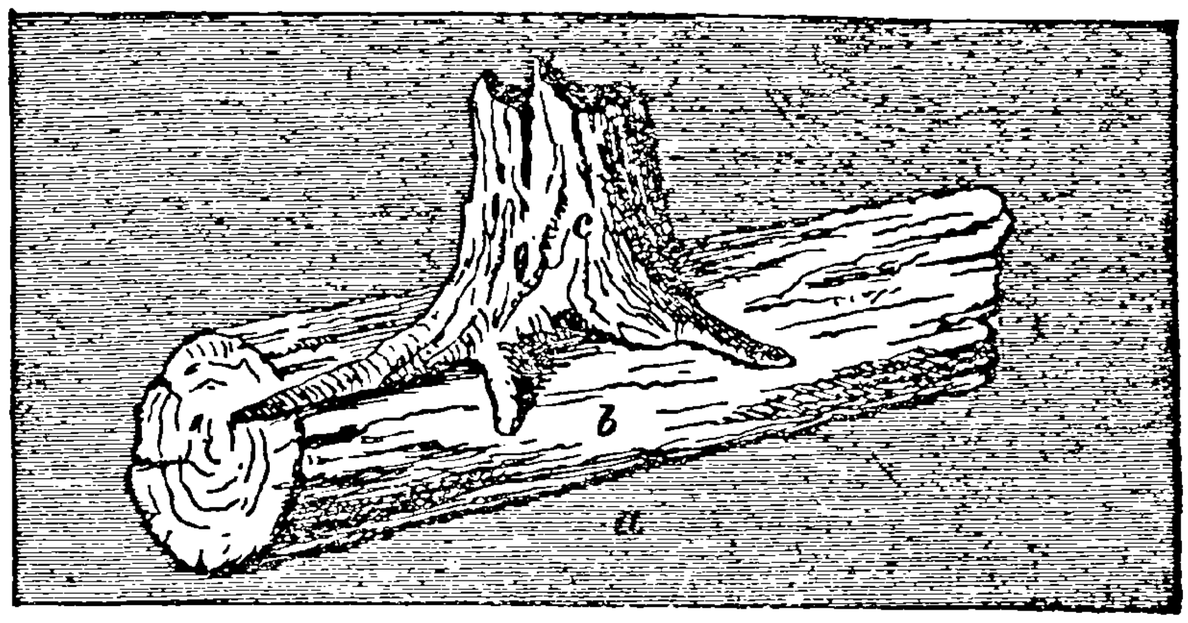

Of later date than the Boulder Clay, from the washing of which they are indeed probably derived, are the Hill or Plateaux Gravels found capping Barrington Hill, the Gog-Magog Hills, Copley Hill &c. Then, at lower heights, we have a series of Old River Gravels containing shells and bones, the latter often belonging to extinct species, as the Mammoth, Rhinoceros &c. Lastly, gravel and mud, the deposit of the existing streams, fringe their courses and form the flat "river meadows" along their sides.

THE FEN BEDS.—The southern boundary of the fen district follows an irregular line from Earith on the west, by Over and Willingham, to Swaffham Priory, and thence by Soham to Mildenhall. All to the north of this line is "a low plain, varying from 5 to 20 ft. above mean sea-level. Much of this land is below the high-water level of ordinary tides, and would be overflowed but for the erection of great banks along the sea board, which are known as the 'sea walls.' Slight elevations of from 20 to 80 feet stand out from the dead level of the fens like islands from the midst of the sea. Such are Ely, Whittlesey, Thorney, Eastrea &c.; with these exceptions there is nothing to break the monotony of the plain; and when the isles and bounding hills lie beyond the field of vision, the landscape is as even and the horizon as circular, as is the sea-view when no land appears. Through this dreary land the Nene and the Ouse once found their sluggish way, interlacing at numerous points, almost losing themselves in meres and morasses, flooding the land in winter, drying into strings of stagnant pools in summer, and on meeting the salt-water of the sea, pushing it back till the tide, gathering strength, overcame the river waters and rushed up the estuaries as bores. Now the rivers are banked and travel direct to the sea, the winding estuaries are straightened and bores are of very rare occurrence, every mere and morass is drained, the whole country is intersected with artificial dykes, and powerful engines pump the superfluous water into the arterial cuts. The land, which up to the time of Elizabeth, furnished only coarse fodder to cattle and geese, and afforded a home to countless wild fowl and fish, upon which a half-savage scanty population subsisted, is entirely under cultivation, possesses but few acres of waste, and forms one of the richest agricultural districts of the kingdom." (Skertchly.)

The lowest Fen Beds are gravels of marine origin, which crop out all round the edge, and of which large patches also occur at March, Whittlesey and Chatteris. As it furnishes a solid foundation and a fair water supply, we find many villages on it.

Peat occupies a much larger area. It rests upon the gravel, and as we follow it towards the sea, we find intercalated beds of silt or warp or mud, one kind of which has been called 'buttery clay.' The silt is a marine deposit, being the mud left behind by the tides, and in this way a width of land of three miles has at some points been formed since the Roman Period—a fact which, together with the extensive inclosures which have been made, has transformed Cambridgeshire from a sea-coast to an inland county. average thickness of the peat is about 6 ft. It is largely dug for fuel in the neighbourhood of Ely; it contains at least five "buried forests," or horizons on which stools and trunks of large trees are found. The land formed by it can be readily distinguished by its blackness and even surface and by the absence of hedge-rows.

PREHISTORIC MAN.—The earliest traces of the existence of man in this country consist of stone implements mostly made of flint. We can distinguish two distinct classes of these stone tools, both in their appearance and mode of occurrence.

1. Palæolithic or Old Stone Age.—The specimens which belong to this period are usually found in beds of gravel, sand, or loam. They are from 4 to 8 inches in length, and are either pointed or oval in form. They were evidently manufactured by striking off flakes from a suitable lump of flint with a stone pebble until the desired form was produced.

2. Neolithic, or Newer Stone Age.—The implements of this period are found on or close to the surface, or in the barrows or tumuli, which are the burying places of ancient chiefs. Their forms are varied and elegant, and exhibit an immense advance in skill on those of the Palæolithic age. Moreover many of them have been polished by rubbing on stone slabs.

There are no connecting links in England between these two divisions of the great "Stone Age," and many theories have been advanced to account for the abruptness of the transition from one to the other. The discoveries of Mr. Skertchly have now made it almost certain that the break is due to the coming on of the Glacial Period. The Palæolithic implements belonged to men who lived in this country before the time of great cold, which came on perhaps a quarter of a million years ago. Driven southwards by the ice, they probably inhabited the south of France and similar latitudes for a long period of years. Then the cold having passed away their descendants many thousands of years afterwards again returned to this area; but in the interval they had made great progress, had attained great skill especially in the manufacture of stone tools and to their relics we apply the term neolithic.

Then came the discovery of metals—first, copper and tin, of which the Bronze Age gives evidence, and then comes on the Iron Age in which we live.

Palæolithic implements have been found in the gravel pits at Barnwell, Chesterton, and the Observatory Hill, Cambridge.

Of neolithic tools many specimens have been obtained. The fen district, especially Burwell Fen, has yielded many celts, arrow-heads, flakes, scrapers, hammers &c. At Ely a fine perforated axe-hammer made of greenstone has been found; some well-polished celts have been found at Coton, and altogether there are from 30 to 40 localities in Cambridgeshire in which relics of the Stone Age have been met with. Of these full particulars may be found in Mr. John Evans' excellent book on the "Ancient Stone Implements of Great Britain."

BABRAHAM (anciently called BRADBURNHAM) is a parish and village, in a quiet rural spot on the river Granta, at the foot of the Gog-Magog hills, 2 miles north from the Pampisford station on the Cambridge and Melford branch of the Great Eastern railway, and 2½ north-east from the Whittlesford station (main line), 4 north-west from Linton and 7 south-east from Cambridge, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Chilford, union and petty sessional division of Linton, county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Camps second division and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Peter, situated in the park, about 100 yards west of the Hall, is a building of rubble, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, large north and south porches and an embattled western tower containing 2 bells; the chancel retains piscina and sedilia, and has some Early Decorated windows; and on the south side of the chancel arch is a trefoiled niche: the tower is a very early structure, perhaps pre-Norman, and has a rude arch: in the south aisle is a marble monument, with two figures, to Richard Bennet esq. ob. 1658 and Sir Thomas Bennet bart. ob. 1667, who were formerly owners of the parish: there are also several memorials to the Adeane family, bearing date 1802, 1847, 1870 and 1853: the church affords 250 sittings, 200 being free. The register dates from the year 1580. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £93, gross yearly value £126, with good residence and including 3 acres of glebe, in the gift of Charles Robert Whorwood Adeane esq. and held since 1889 by the Rev. James Henry Adeane Law M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, who is also vicar of Great Abington. Here are six almshouses and a school, with this inscription above the centre doorway:—"This school and hospital were erected and endowed by the munificence of Mrs. Judith Bennett, daughter of Sir Levinus Bennett bart. and augmented by the liberality of Jas. Bush esq. and L. Bush esq. his son Anno D. 1732:" the almshouses are for the benefit of six poor widows or spinsters, with an allowance of 4s. 3d. per week each. Near the village, standing in a park of about 200 acres, is Babraham Hall, a red-brick mansion with stone facings in the Elizabethan style, pleasantly situated in the centre of the park, and surrounded by gardens and pleasure grounds which have been laid out with great taste: it was rebuilt by the late Henry John Adeane esq. (grandfather of the present owner) in the year 1832, and is the property and residence of Charles Robert Whorwood Adeane esq. D.L., J.P. lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is gravel and chalk; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 2,350 acres; rateable value, £2,123; the population in 1891 was 280.

BALSHAM is a parish and village, 3 miles north-north-east from Linton station, 4 north from Bartlow station on the Cambridge and Sudbury section of the Great Eastern railway and 10 south-west from Cambridge, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Radfield, union and petty sessional division of Linton, county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Camps first division, and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of the Holy Trinity is a very handsome edifice of flint, rubble and white brick, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of large chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 5 bells: the chancel retains twenty-four stalls of the 14th century; there is a handsome rood screen of the same date, and a fine brass to John Sleford, rector, Master of the Wardrobe to Edward III. and canon of Ripon and Wells, who rebuilt the church and erected the stalls, and died in 1401; the brass includes his effigy in cope, with figures of saints, under a fine canopy, and a marginal inscription; there is another and similar brass to Dr. John Blodwell, ob. 1462; a third brass effigy, of a man in armour, probably dates from about 1475: in the south aisle is a memorial window, erected in 1866, to the Rev. Edward Wollaston M.A. 33 years rector, his wife Elizabeth and their daughter Agnes Cornthwaite: the church was restored and a new organ-chamber built by public subscription in the year 1878, under the direction of Mr. Wm. Butterfield, architect, at a cost of about £1,500: there are 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £887, arising from 1,000 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Governors of the Charterhouse, London, and held since 1874 by the Rev. John Joseph Halcombe M.A. of Magdalene College, Cambridge, and rural dean of Camps. Here is a Congregational chapel, with sittings for 280 persons. There are several small charities now (1892) amounting to £10 yearly and one of £22 15s. a year, distributed according to a scheme prepared by the Charity Commissioners. The Governors of the Charterhouse, London, who are lords of the manor, the rector, the trustees of the late Mrs. Annie Haylack, the Governors of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, the University of Cambridge, Mrs. Purkis, of Balsham Place, Edgar Jones esq. J.P. of The Elms, Great Burstead, Essex, and H. Long esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is clay and chalk; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 4,402 acres; rateable value, £4,946; the population in 1891 was 894.

BARTLOW is a very small village and parish, near the road from Cambridge to Haverhill, and is the junction station of the lines from Haverhill and Saffron Walden to Cambridge on the Great Eastern railway, 2 miles south-east from Linton, 13 south-east from Cambridge, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Chilford, union and petty sessional division of Linton, county court district of Saffron Walden, rural deanery of Camps second division, archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The village of Bartlow is in the county of Cambridge, but the hamlet of BARTLOW (or Steventon) END, as it is otherwise called, is in the parish of Ashdon, county of Essex; it maintains its own poor, but for ecclesiastical purposes is part of Bartlow. [For names of residents, see "Essex Directory."] The church of St. Mary, an ancient edifice of flint and rubble in the Late Tudor style, and restored in 1879, consists of chancel, nave, north porch and a circular embattled western tower, containing 3 bells: on the south wall of the nave is a fresco of St. Christopher, the Roman soldier, carrying the Infant Saviour over a ford: the tower, which is much older than the body of the church, has walls six feet in thickness: the chancel retains a piscina and there is another in the south wall of the nave: the church affords 140 sittings, 100 being free. The register dates from the year 1573. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £247, net yearly value £282, with 65 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of S. R. Simkin esq. and held since 1877 by the Rev. Edward Norgate B.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. In the parish are four very remarkable artificial hills, excavated in the years 1832, 1835 and 1838; and described by the late Rokewood Gage esq. in vols. 25, 26 and 28 of the "Archæologia," distinctly proving them to be Roman works; many curious and valuable sepulchral relics, discovered in these hills and deposited at Easton Lodge, near Dunmow, the seat of the late Viscount Maynard, on whose estate the hills are situated, were unfortunately lost in the fire by which that mansion was destroyed; these hills are actually in the parish of Ashdon, but are called Bartlow Hills from their being close to that village. St. Agatha's Home, founded in 1884, is a small orphanage for girls, supported by voluntary contributions. Lady Brooke, granddaughter of the late Viscount Maynard, is the lady of the manor; the rector and the Rev. Richard Dayrell, rector of Lillingston-Dayrell, Bucks, are the principal landowners. The soil is chalk and gravel; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, oats, beans and barley. The parish contains 370 acres; rateable value, £563; the population in 1891 was 123.

BARTON is a parish on the Bourn brook, about 3½ miles west-south-west from Cambridge and 1¼ north-east from Lord's Bridge station on the Bedford and Cambridge branch of the London and North Western railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Wetherley, union of Chesterton, petty sessional division and county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Barton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Peter is an ancient edifice of stone in the Late Decorated style, and consists of large chancel, long nave, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles and turret, and containing 4 bells: a carved oak screen of Perpendicular date, enriched with shields of arms, separates the nave from the chancel: there are brasses in the chancel to John Martin and Margaret his wife, dated 1593; a piscina and an aumbry: the building was restored and reopened after extensive repairs in March, 1886, and affords 230 sittings. The register dates from the year 1687. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £107, net yearly value £144, with 39 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1871 by the Rev. Alfred William Monkhouse M.A. of Hertford College, Oxford. The charities amount to £6 19s. yearly for bread and fuel. The Provost and fellows of King's College, Cambridge, who are owners of the rectorial tithes, Cambridge University and St. Catherine's College, the Mercers' Company, the Corporation of the Sons of the Clergy, Corpus Christi and Clare colleges and Sanders Holben esq. are the principal landowners. The soil and subsoil are of a clayey nature. The chief crops are wheat oats and barley. The area is 1,812 acres; rateable value, £2,100; the populationin 1891 was 281.

BASSINGBOURN (or BASSINGBOURNE) is a parish and village, the latter being about 3 miles north-west from Royston station (a large portion of the township of Royston and the hamlet of Kneesworth being within this parish), in the Western division of the county, hundred of Armingford, petty sessional division of Arrington and Melbourn, union and county court district of Royston, rural deanery of Shingay and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of SS. Peter and Paul, erected in the 14th century, is a building of stone and flint, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch of the 15th century and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 5 bells cast by Miles Graye in 1650: in the church are monuments to the Nightingale and Turpin families, including two to Jeffrey Nightingale, ob. 1664 and to Edw. Nightingale, ob. 1723: the edifice was restored in 1865, at a cost of about £2,000, to which sum the Dean and Chapter of Westminster contributed £300: the tower arch has been opened, a vestry formed in the tower and fitted up for the reception of the library of rare theological works, partly bequeathed to this parish in 1717 by Sir Edward Nightingale, a former owner of Kneesworth, to which additions have been made by different vicars; it now consists of 867 volumes: the east window is a memorial to the Rev. F. H. Bishop, a former vicar, and his two daughters, and was presented by his widow and three sons: there are 800 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558, and the churchwardens' accounts from 1498. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £300, with residence, and including 158 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Westminster, and held since 1877 by the Rev. Cecil Albert Jones M.A. of Oriel College, Oxford. Here is a Congregational chapel, with 750 sittings. A Burial Board of 7 members was formed in 1877: the cemetery, at the east end of the village, is 2½ acres in extent, and has two mortuary chapels and a lodge for the keeper; the total cost was £1,500. Here are three manors: the Rev. William Robert Finch-Hatton holds the manors of Bassingbourn Richmond and Castles Seymours and Rowsey, and Biscoe Hill Wortham esq. D.L., J.P. holds the manor of Guyises. A market was formerly held in this parish. The principal landowners are the Rev. William R. Finch-Hatton B.A. rector of Great Weldon, Northants, the Earl of Hardwicke, Royston, Francis William Edward Beldam esq. B.A., J.P. of the Rectory, Toft; Arthur May, Edwin May, Charles Sell and Biscoe Hill Wortham esq. D.L., J.P. of Kneesworth House; and Caius College, Cambridge. The soil is clayey and chalky, and the subsoil gault and clay. The crops are wheat, barley, oats, beans, peas and rye. The area of the entire parish is 4,223 acres; rateable value, £6,814; the population in 1881 was 2,121.

Parish Clerk, William Mason.

Kneesworth is a hamlet on the Great North road, in the parish of Bassingbourn, 2 miles north from Royston station on the Hitchin and Cambridge branch of the Great Northern railway. Kneesworth House, the residence of Biscoe Hill Wortham esq. J.P. who is the owner of this hamlet, is a plain building, in well-timbered grounds of about 40 acres, and is supposed to have been erected about 1600, on the site of an older red brick mansion. The soil is chiefly chalk, red land and heavy land; the subsoil is clay and chalk. The chief crops are wheat and barley. The area is 944 acres; rateable value, £2,514; the population in 1881 was 596.

BENWICK, formerly a hamlet of Doddington, is now a parish, 8 miles north-west by road from Chatteris, 8 south-west from March and 5 from Wimblington station on the Cambridge and Wisbech section of the Great Eastern railway, in the Northern division of the county, union and hundred of North Witchford, Isle of Ely petty sessional division and county court district of March, rural deanery of March, and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. The church of St. Mary was erected in 1854 at a cost of £2,500, the money being raised under "Gilbert's Act," and constituted an annual charge upon the living until the whole amount with interest is paid off: the church is an edifice in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a western tower with spire containing a clock and one bell: there are sittings for about 400 persons. The register dates from the year 1854. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £588, net yearly value £266, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1868 by the Rev. William Hardy Wood M.A. rural dean of March, of University College, Oxford. There are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. Capt. Sir Algernon Francis Peyton bart. J.P. of Swift's House, Bicester, Oxon, is lord of the manor. The land, which consists entirely of fen, is distributed among many small freeholders. The soil is fen; subsoil, clay and gault. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots. The area is 3,109 acres; rateable value, £4,575; the population in 1891 was 794.

BOROUGH GREEN (or BURROUGH GREEN) is a village and parish 2½ miles south-east from Dullingham station on the Cambridge and Newmarket section of the Great Eastern railway and 6 south from Newmarket, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Radfield, Newmarket union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Fordham, archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Augustine is an ancient structure of flint, with stone dressings, in the Early English and Decorated styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a western tower containing 5 bells, restored in 1710: in the north wall of the chancel are three richly ornamented arched recesses, one of which incloses the recumbent effigy of a knight in armour with crossed legs; the next has also a male effigy with a female figure resting beside it; and the third incloses the effigy of a Norman knight, with another of a squire or attendant at the foot, unarmoured; another figure, female, has been removed to the west end of the church; the whole are mutilated and without dates or names, but are presumed to be to the De Burgh family: the font is dated 1672, but the most ancient portions of the church probably date from the 13th century: the building was restored and new roofed in 1878, and affords 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1571. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £411, net yearly value £298, including 73 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Mrs. Porcher, of Chatteris, and held since 1886 by the Rev. Frederick George Buller M.A. of Trinity College, Oxford. Edward Leigh Kindersley esq. of Clyffe House, Dorset, who is lord of the manor, and William Henry Hall esq. D.L., J.P. of Six Mile Bottom, are the principal landowners. The Old Hall (or Manor House) which stands near the church is now a farm house. The soil is various; subsoil, clay and chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area of the parish is 2,201 acres; rateable value, £3,179; the population in 1891 was 436.

BOTTISHAM, anciently "Bodekysham" and "Bottlesham," is a large village, on the road from Newmarket to Cambridge, parish, and head of a petty sessional division, 3 miles north-west from Six Mile Bottom station on the Great Eastern railway and 2 miles south from Bottisham Lode station on the Cambridge and Fordham section of the same line, 6 west from Newmarket and 7 east from Cambridge, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Staine, Newmarket union and county court district, rural deanery of Camps first division, archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of the Holy Trinity is a beautiful edifice of stone, chiefly in the Early Decorated style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of five bays, aisles, north and south porches and western Galilee porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles and containing 5 bells: the chancel retains an Early English piscina and sedilia, and there is also an Early Decorated chancel arch, with a curious Perpendicular stone screen; on the south wall of the chancel is a marble tablet to the Rev. W. Pugh, a former vicar, dated 1825: the stained east window and the reredos are memorials to Col. Jenyns, one of the "six hundred" at Balaklava (October 25th, 1854), who died in 1873: at the east end of the north aisle is an oak screen, apparently of the Decorated period, which incloses two monuments, one to Margaret, daughter of William Coningesbye, of King's Lynn, and another, with effigies in marble and cherubs supporting a canopy, to Leonettus and Dorothea, children of William and Elizabeth Allington, ob. 1638: there is also here an altar tomb of Purbeck marble, with the matrix of a brass effigy and canopy and panelled sides relieved by shields; the inscription on the margin, now lost, commemorated Elyas de Beckingham, appointed a justiciar of the Common Pleas 13 Edward I. (1285); he retired from the bench, or died in 1305: in 1289, when all the judges were apprehended by the king on charges of bribery and corruption, Beckingham and Metingham alone were honourably acquitted: in the same aisle is a marble tablet to Hester Paulina Lushington, d. 1795: the south aisle has an arcading along its whole length, inclosing a series of stone coffin slabs: a screen similar to that on the north side incloses a large tomb of white marble to Sir Roger Jenyns, d. 1740, and Dame Elizabeth his wife, d. 1728, with their effigies in bed attire: on the south side is a beautiful piscina and a sedile: there are also slabs inscribed to Francis Hessel, d. 1659, and John Lack, d. 1742: the church affords about 500 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1561; marriages, 1563; burials, 1569. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value from 240 acres of glebe £310, with residence, in the gift of Trinity College, and held since 1880 by the Rev. John Daniel Williams M.A. of that college; the Rev. John Colston Jones has been curate in charge since 1891. Here is a Congregational chapel. In 1712 a destructive fire consumed 20 houses in the village, besides causing other damage, and an incendiary fire, which occurred on February 13th, 1846, destroyed the produce of two large farms, as well as fifteen cottages, depriving twenty-four poor families of their homes. About £290 yearly, derived from several charities, is distributed in money and kind: in 1878 the so-called "Poor's Fen," of nearly 200 acres, was for the first time brought under a trust and scheme formed by the Charity Commissioners, and produces a profit of nearly £200 yearly for the benefit of the poor, now applied chiefly in the distribution of fuel and for educational purposes. The Charity School has been converted into a reading room. Bottisham Park contains about 100 acres and is well wooded: the mansion, a structure of brick, is the property and residence of Mrs. Jenyns, who is lady of the manor. Trinity College, St. Peter's College, and Downing College, Cambridge, and Mrs. Jenyns, are the principal landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area of the whole parish is 5,802 acres; rateable value, £8,413; the population in 1891 was 1,501, including LODE, or Bottisham Lode, 1½ mile north-west, LONGMEADOW, 1¾ north-west, and FEN, 2 miles north-west.

Parish Clerk, William Arber.

St. James's ecclesiastical parish, formed May 1st, 1863, consists of the hamlets of Bottisham Lode, Longmeadow and the Fen. The church, at Bottisham Lode, erected and consecrated in 1853, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western turret containing 2 bells: it was restored in 1886-7, at a cost of £200, and has 300 sittings. There is a mission room at Longmeadow. The register dates from the year 1853. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £153, with residence, in the gift of Trinity College, Cambridge, and held since 1882 by the Rev. John Holding M.A. of Queens' College, Cambridge. There is a Baptist chapel, built in 1832, and seating 300. At Bottisham Lode are the remains of the Priory of Anglesey, founded by Henry I. or Richard de Clare, for canons of the Augustinian order, and dedicated to the Blessed Virgin and St. Nicholas: at the Dissolution there were 11 canons, and the revenues were estimated at £124: the remains consist of a vaulted room and graduated corbel-table, connected with a staircase; both are Early English. Anglesey Abbey is the seat of the Rev. James George Clark M.A. The population is included in Bottisham.

BOURN, anciently "Brune," or "Brunne," is a parish, 10 miles north from Royston, about 9 west from Cambridge and about 1½ north-east from the Old North Road station (which is in this parish) on the Bedford and Cambridge line of the London and North Western railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Longstow, union and petty sessional division of Caxton and Arrington, county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Bourn or Knapwell, and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The Bourn brook flows through the parish. The church of St. Mary, picturesquely situated on rising ground, is a spacious cruciform edifice of stone in the Transition Norman, Early English and later styles, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of six bays, aisles, transepts, south porch and an embattled western tower with turret stair and containing 6 bells : the chancel has good sedilia of the 15th century and some carved oak benches with poppy heads, one of which bears the inscription, "A. P. of B. A. 1534 :" the roof is Perpendicular and has hammer beams with modern figures of angels : the chancel arch is modern, and there remains a Perpendicular rood screen : the nave arcades are lofty and belong to the Transition Norman period, the piers being alternately circular and octagonal : the clerestory is lighted by quatrefoil openings within circles : in the north transept is a late niche and an aumbry : the south transept has a raised floor : the tower, which is overlapped by both aisles, opens into these and to the nave by very fine and lofty Early English arches, with an ascent of three steps under the western arch : the south porch, also Early English, has a fine cross on the gable : in the nave are some good oak benches with tracery in panels, and the south transept contains several slabs and tombs, with arms to members of the Hagar family, lords of this manor about 1750, and a memorial to the late Henry Leyell esq. : the church plate includes a silver salver, presented by Francis Hagar in 1694-5, and a silver chalice with the date 1569 : Dowsing, the Puritan iconoclast, visited this church and destroyed two angels, some brasses and crosses on the tower and chancel : it was partly restored in 1876 at a cost of £1,500 : there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rentcharge £156, net yearly value £167, with residence, and including 32 acres of glebe, in the gift of Christ's College, Cambridge. There is a Wesleyan chapel restored and enlarged in 1880. The charities amount to £5 15s. yearly. The scenery around this village is beautiful and picturesque, affording a pleasing variety of hill and dale, finely interspersed with thick woods and shady groves. The moat and some other vestiges remain of a castle erected here by Picot, or Pigot, a Norman to whom the Conqueror gave lands here and whose descendant George Pigot esq. was in 1766 created baron Pigot of Patshull, a title extinct at his death, 17 April, 1777 : the castle was burnt during the barons' war in the reign of Henry III. by Richard de Insula or de L'Isle, being then in possession of the Peverells, from whom it descended to the Peche (now Peachey) family, and was subsequently held by the Riggesbys and others. Bourn Hall, formerly the property of the Earl De La Warr, together with the surrounding estate, was purchased in 1885 by John James Briscoe esq. D.L. who is part lord of the manor : the Hall is a fair specimen of the Elizabethan style, and was formerly surrounded by a moat : the park contains about 20 acres with good plantations. John James Briscoe esq. J.P. Christ's College, Cambridge, and Robert Sayle esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is heavy clay ; subsoil, gault. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 4,014 acres ; rateable value, £4,054 ; the population in 1891 was 785.

BOXWORTH is a parish about 4 miles south-west from Swavesey station on the St. Ives and Cambridge branch of the Great Eastern railway, 8 north-west from Cambridge and 9½ south-east from Huntingdon, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Papworth, petty sessional division of Cambridge, union of St. Ives, county court district of Huntingdon, rural deanery of Bourn and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Peter is an ancient edifice of flint stone in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays, south aisle, north and south porches and a lofty embattled tower containing a clock and one bell: in the church is a monument to Nicholas Saunderson LL.D., F.R.S. the celebrated blind professor of mathematics in the University of Cambridge, who died 19th April, 1759: the church was thoroughly restored in 1868-9, and affords 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £383, gross yearly value £480, with residence and including 126 acres of glebe, in the gift of A. J. Thornhill esq. and held since 1889 by the Rev. Arnold Kirke Smith M.A. of University College, Oxford. Arthur John Thornhill esq. J.P. of Diddington Hall, Hunts, who is lord of the manor, and Henry Hampden English esq. J.P. of Thorpe road, Peterborough, are the principal landowners. The soil is of a stiff clayey nature, with a blue gault subsoil, beneath which in many places is found a hard chalky rock. The area is 2,521 acres; rateable value, £2,646; the population in 1881 was 251.

BRINKLEY is a village and parish, 3 miles south from Dullingham station on the Cambridge and Newmarket section of the Great Eastern railway and 6 south-south-west from Newmarket, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Radfield, Newmarket union and county court district, rural deanery of Fordham (Cambridgeshire), archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Ely. The church of the Blessed Virgin, restored in 1874 by the rector and parishioners, at an expense of about £1,000, is a building of flint, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells: the chancel and nave are Decorated and the tower Perpendicular: there are 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1685. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £6, net yearly value about £247, with 220 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of St. John's College, Cambridge, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Charles Manley Roberts B.D. sometime scholar of that college. The proceeds of a charity, amounting to about £2 yearly, are distributed among the poor. Brinkley Hall is the residence of Robert William King esq. D.L., J.P. lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is chalk; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, beans, barley and oats. The area is 1,268 acres; rateable value, £2,176; the population in 1891 was 278. By an order which came into operation March 25, 1886, a detached part of this parish was amalgamated with Carleton, in Linton union.

BURWELL is an extensive village and parish, including part of the hamlet of REACH, with a station on the Cambridge and Mildenhall branch of the Great Eastern railway, 5 miles north-west from Newmarket, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Staploe, Newmarket union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Fordham, archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Mary, at the south end of the village, is a light and elegant structure in the Late Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel (restored in 1867-8 by the University of Cambridge), nave, aisles, north and south porches and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles and spire, and containing a clock and 5 bells: the wall between the nave and chancel and the roof of the nave were built in 1464, at the expense of the Bennet family, as appears by an inscription in stone in the church: there are 650 sittings. The register dates from the year 1562, and contains an account of a calamitous fire which took place in 1727, when a barn in which about 140 persons were assembled to witness a puppet show took light from the accidental firing of loose straw, and about 80 persons perished. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £272, with residence and 29 acres of glebe, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Neville Arthur Blachley Borton M.A. of King's College, Cambridge, and surrogate. This living is primarily in the gift of the University of Cambridge, who, on the occasion of any vacancy, nominate two persons in holy orders of that university to the representative of Sir Edward North kt. Chancellor of the Court of Augmentations in the reign of Henry VIII. who then presents one of these to the Bishop of Norwich. The last presentation, owing to the present representative, Lord North, being a Catholic, eventually lapsed to and was made by the University. St. Andrew's mission chapel, at the north end of the village, is an edifice of brick, erected at a cost of £1,100 and opened 12th November, 1863: it will hold 200 persons. Here are Baptist, Congregational, Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. An estate left to this parish, now (1892) produces a gross income of about £133 yearly; which, after deductions for repairs and the supervision of the property, goes to the repair of the church and to the endowment of a boys' school. Near the church are the remains of an old castle, the earthworks of which remain tolerably perfect. The manorial rights of Tiptofts, Dullinghams and St. Omers belong to Messrs. Hancock, Hussey and others. The lordship of the manor of Ramsey is vested in the Crown, which also owns a great portion of the land, John Clutton, 9 Whitehall place, London s w, steward. The soil is various. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 7,232 acres; rateable value, £17,026; the population in 1891 was 1,998.

Parish Clerk, Robert Hunt.

CALDECOT is a parish, about 8 miles west from Cambridge, about 12 north from Royston and 4 north-east from the Old North Road station on the Bedford and Cambridge branch of the London and North Western railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Longstow, petty sessional division and union of Caxton and Arrington, county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Bourn and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Michael, standing on a picturesque and woody bank, is a small but ancient stone building of stone in the Early Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north and south porches and an embattled western tower containing 3 bells: the chancel retains a small crocketed niche and in the south porch is a benatura: there are carved stalls in the chancel and a rood screen with traces of colour: the church was thoroughly repaired in 1860 and 1861, and affords 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1728. The living is a vicarage, consolidated with the rectory of Toft, average tithe rentcharge £341, joint gross yearly value £380, with residence and including 26½ acres of glebe, in the gift of Christ's College, Cambridge, and held since 1892 by the Rev. Henry Major Stephenson M.A. late fellow of that college, who resides at Toft. The impropriate tithes of this parish, anciently given by Picot de Cambridge to the monks of Barnwell, are now vested in the Master and Fellows of Christ's College, Cambridge. The land is all freehold. The principal landowners are Clare and Christ's Colleges, Cambridge, and James B. Westrop esq. of Caldecot. The soil is heavy clay; subsoil, gault. The chief crops are wheat, barley and beans. The area is 915 acres; rateable value, £617; the population in 1891 was 92.

Parish Clerk, Samuel Carter.

CAMBRIDGE.

CAMBRIDGE is a municipal and parliamentary borough, head of a petty sessional division, county court district and union, the county town and the site of one of the two ancient Universities of England, and is on the banks of the Cam or Granta, with stations on the Great Eastern and Great Northern railways, 57½ miles from London by rail, 14 south-west from Ely, 15 west from Newmarket, 38 south from Wisbech and 68½ south-by-south-west from Norwich; it is a hundred of itself in the Western division of the county, rural deanery of Cambridge, and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The place is one of great antiquity, and during the time of its occupation by the Romans was called "Grantbridge;" it was burned by the Danes in 871 and 1010, and in 1088 by Roger de Montgomery, Earl of Shrewsbury, when holding out for Robert Curthose, Duke of Normandy. At the time of the Domesday Survey the town contained 373 messuages. In 1216 the castle was taken by the insurgent barons; and in 1381 the townsmen were deprived of their charter by Richard II. who held a parliament here, summoned to meet 9 Sept. 1388. During the peasants' rising of 1381, the rebels entered the town, seized the University records, and burnt them in the market place; in 1643 the town was garrisoned by the Parliament. Three meetings of the British Association have been held here—in 1833, 1845 and 1862, and in 1864 the Prince and Princess of Wales visited Cambridge from the 2nd to the 4th of June. The Great Eastern railway now affords direct communication (viâ Lincoln and Doncaster) with the North of England and Scotland, and the first section of the Great Eastern Railway Company's line from Cambridge to Mildenhall, including the portion from the former town to Fordham Junction, was opened in May, 1884, the second section being completed and opened 1st April, 1885. The Great Northern line from Hitchin and the London and North Western line from Bletchley both terminate here: and the Midland Railway Co. also run trains from London over the Great Eastern line to this town, and thence through St. Ives, Kimbolton, Thrapston and Kettering.

The town, which is irregularly built, consists principally of two main streets, which are continuations respectively of the road from London through Trumpington and of the Hills road. The former, under the names of Trumpington street, King's parade, Trinity street and St. John street is continued through the whole length of the town parallel to the general course of the river Cam and contains some of the principal buildings of the town and University. On the left or west side of Trumpington street is the Fitzwilliam Museum, St. Peter's College or Peterhouse, the church of St. Mary the Less, Emmanuel Congregational Church, the Pitt Press, St. Catharine's College, the Bull Hotel, King's College, the Senate House and University Library, Caius College, Trinity College and St. John's College; at the back of this side of the street are Queens' and Clare Colleges and Trinity Hall; most of these colleges have grounds sloping to the river, and several have bridges crossing it and connecting the college grounds with other grounds on the further side of the river, used by the undergraduates for lawn tennis; the road here, which is known by the name of "the Backs," is lined with splendid trees; the spaces between the road and the college grounds are covered with turf and altogether present a scene of great sylvan beauty: from this road are footpaths to Grantchester and Trumpington and to Coton, and the road past the Observatory to Madingley, all of which afford favourite walks. On the right or east side of Trumpington street is Addenbrooke's Hospital, Pembroke College, St. Botolph's Church and Corpus College, the King's Parade, Great St. Mary's (the University Church), St. Michael's Church, the new courts of Trinity College, the churchyard of the removed church of All Saints and the Selwyn or Divinity Schools.

The other main street, being the continuation of the Hills road, under the names of Regent street, St. Andrew's street, Sidney street and Bridge street, runs partly parallel to Trumpington street, but converging towards it until it crosses the end of St. John street, and is thence continued by a bridge over the Cam, Magdalen street and Castle street, and then leaving the town, becomes the road to Huntingdon. On the left or west side of this street is the Catholic church of Our Lady of the Assumption and the English Martyrs, now in course of erection, the church of St. Andrew the Great, Trinity Church, the back of the new courts of Trinity College; and in Bridge street, by the removal of some old houses, the master's lodge of St. John's College and the chapel have been opened to view. On the right or east of this line of streets are St. Paul's Church, the University Arms Hotel, Emmanuel College, Christ's College, Sidney Sussex College, St. Sepulchre's or the Round Church, facing St. John street, St. Clement's Church, and across the bridge, Magdalene College, which is the only college situated entirely to the north of the Cam.

Several cross streets connect these two main lines of streets and between them lie the extensive grounds of the Botanic Gardens, Downing College and the Market place with its adjuncts. From the junction of Sidney street and Bridge street running east is Jesus lane, on the left or north side of which is Jesus College, and on the south side, nearly opposite, is All Saints' church, and continuing on by the Newmarket road on the right is Christ Church, and on the left the small church of St. Andrew the Less and further east some remains of Barnwell Priory.

In 1207, King John granted the town a charter, authorising it to choose a provost (mayor); under the provisions of the "Municipal Corporations Act, 1835" (5 & 6 Wm. IV. c.76) the borough was divided 7 Dec. 1835, into five wards, viz:—East Barnwell, West Barnwell, Market, Trinity and St. Andrew's. The present corporation consists of a mayor, high steward, recorder, ten aldermen, thirty councillors, a town clerk, treasurer, and coroner and the usual officers, representing the city; and two aldermen and six councillors as representatives of the University, elected under the provisions of a provisional order made in pursuance of sec. 52, Local Government Act 1888, and under sec. 297, Public Health Act 1875, and confirmed by Act 52 & 53 Vict. c. xvi., the Improvement Commissioners ceased to exist Nov. 9, 1889. The borough has a commission of the peace and a separate court of quarter sessions. The parliamentary borough includes in addition, under the Boundary Act, 1868, the greater portion of the parish of Chesterton, and returned two members to parliament from a very early period until the passing of the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," when the number was reduced to one.

The town is paved and lighted with gas from the Cambridge University and Town Gas Works, in River lane, erected in 1826, and subsequently enlarged and now including four gasometers, capable of holding 229,000 cubic feet of gas: the office is in Sidney street.

The water supply is derived from the works of the Cambridge University and Town Water Works Company, incorporated by Act of Parliament: the water is drawn from springs in the parishes of Cherry Hinton and Fulbourn, and is stored in reservoirs having a united capacity of 1,000,000 gallons; the company's office is in Bene't street.

THE PARISHES AND THEIR CHURCHES.

The Borough and Union of Cambridge comprise 13 parishes.

The University church of St. Mary the Great, which stands in the centre of the town, opposite the Senate House and University Library, is a spacious edifice in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, south porch and a lofty western tower with octagonal buttressed turrets crowned with pinnacles, and containing a clock and 12 bells: the present clock, which replaced an older one, was erected by Thwaites and Reed, of Clerkenwell, in 1794, at a cost of £198 16s. 2d.; the porch is a reproduction from drawings of one removed in 1805: a spacious gallery surrounds the interior on the north, west and south sides, and there are a number of monuments, including one of the Elizabethan period, with bust, to Dr. Butler: here the University sermons are preached and are attended by the University authorities, heads of houses, professors and the members of the University generally; the heads of houses and professors sit in the chancel, masters of arts and bachelors in the body of the church, and the undergraduates in the gallery: the bell of this church is tolled during a quarter of an hour from 6 in the morning and again from 9 in the evening respectively: there are 1,400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1557. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value, £60, arising from 82 acres of glebe, in the gift of Trinity College, and held since 1887 by the Rev. William Cunningham D.D. of that college.

All Saints' church, opposite Jesus College, built in 1863-4, and consecrated Nov. 30, 1864, is an edifice in the Early English style of the 14th century, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle of equal size and an embattled tower at the east end with a lofty spire and containing 3 bells: the walls are decorated with rich diaper work and colour and bear suitable inscriptions: the stained east window designed by Mr. G. F. Bodley A.R.A., F.S.A. is a memorial to Everina Frances, widow of Sir Gilbert Affleck bart. and wife of the Rev. Dr. Whewell, master of Trinity College; she died 1 April, 1865: the old church, which stood opposite St. John's College has been removed: there are 600 sittings, of which 250 are unappropriated. The old graveyard near the site of the former church has been inclosed and rearranged, and contains a memorial cross designed by Mr. Basil Champneys, the architect of the adjacent Divinity Schools, and erected in 1880 in memory of various distinguished persons and benefactors of the parish, whose names are inscribed on tablets round the base. The register dates from the year 1611. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £147, including 28 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Master and Fellows of Jesus College, and held since 1892 by the Rev. Charles Lawford Acland M.A. of that college, late head master of Royal Grammar School, Colchester.

Christ Church, on the Newmarket road, erected in 1839, and now the parish church of the former parish of St. Andrew the Less, is an embattled structure of red brick with stone dressings in the Late Perpendicular style, and consists of small chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, north porch and octagonal embattled turrets at the angles of the nave, one of which contains a small bell: the interior is surrounded by galleries on three sides and affords 1,400 sittings, 700 of which are free. The register dates from the year 1846. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £370, in the gift of trustees, and has been held with St. Andrew the Less since 1889 by the Rev. John Gilbert Dixon M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge.

The church of the Holy Sepulchre, in Bridge street, commonly known as "the round church," and the oldest of the four round churches in England, is a building of the Norman period, erected about 1101, and consists of the circular portion, which forms the principal entrance to the church, chancel with aisles, and an octagonal embattled turret on the north side containing 2 bells: the round part is constructed of large stones, carefully squared, and has a good Norman doorway enriched with zigzag ornament: the interior displays a circular arcade of eight short but massive columns without bases, supporting a clerestory from which springs a vaulted conical roof: since 1845 the church has been restored and the Perpendicular insertions replaced by Norman windows, the embattled tower, which had been reared above the circular clerestory, removed, a bell turret erected and the eastern part rebuilt: the east window is stained: the organ, erected by public subscription in 1857, was replaced in 1879 by a larger instrument: there are 295 sittings, of which 140 are free. The register dates from the year 1575. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £100, including 40 acres of glebe, in the gift of the parishioners, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Stewart Gordon Ponsonby M.A. chaplain of Trinity College and of Addenbrooke's Hospital, Cambridge.

Holy Trinity church, at the intersection of Sidney and Market streets, is a building of stone, consisting of large chancel, transepts, nave, aisles, north porch, and a western tower with pinnacles and spire containing 5 bells: the east window was filled with stained glass in 1887 by John Death esq. and there are several others: in the church is a monument, with genealogical inscription, to Sir Robert Talbor, or Tabor, an eminent English physician employed by Charles II., Louis XIV. and the Queen of Spain: he died in 1781: there are 500 sittings, of which 200 are free. The register dates from the year 1566. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £192, with 57½ acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the trustees of the Rev. Alfred Peache M.A. of The Firs, Hampstead Heath, and held since 1877 by the Rev. John Barton M.A. of Christ's College, and rural dean of Cambridge.

The church of St. Andrew the Great, in St. Andrew's street, opposite Christ's College, is a modern building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 6 bells: in the church is a mural monument to Captain James Cook, the circumnavigator of the world, d. 14 Feb. 1779; his son Hugh, of Christ's College, d. 1793; and to James Cook, commander R.N. d. 25 Jan. 1794; the deaths of his son Nathaniel, midshipman H.M.S. "Thunderer," lost in a storm 16 Oct. 1780, and of three other children, who died in their infancy, are also recorded; his widow Elizabeth, who died at Clapham, 13 May, 1835, was also buried here: there is also a mural tablet to Henry Gunning esq. M.A. of Christ's College, upwards of 64 years Esquire Bedell in the University, who died at Brighton in 1859; and a memorial to Christopher Rose, alderman, who rebuilt the church in the 17th century, and died 30 Aug. 1664: the organ was re-opened after enlargement on Sunday, 24 Dec. 1882: there are 816 sittings, of which 167 are free. The register dates from the year 1564. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £250, including 36 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Ely, and held since 1891 by the Rev. Harry Smith M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge.

The church of St. Andrew the Less, on the Newmarket road, formerly the parish church, but now subordinated to Christ Church, is a small but ancient building of stone in the Lancet style, consisting of chancel and nave under a single roof, south porch and a western belfry containing one small bell: the eastern triplet is a very graceful example of the style, and is adorned within with slender shafts and moulded arches: in the church are many memorials and monumental inscriptions to the Butler family, who once possessed the property: there are 220 sittings, 200 being free. The registers, dating from 1753, are kept at Christ Church.

St. Benedict's church, in Bene't street, adjoining Corpus Christi college, is a building of stone in the Early Norman, Early English and later styles, repaired and enlarged in 1856 and 1873, and consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north porch and a western tower containing 6 bells: the tower, with its "long and short" work and baluster windows, is regarded as Saxon work, and there are portions of similar work of the same period at the north-east and south-east angles of the nave: the church is connected with Corpus Christi college by a range of buildings carrying a gallery, which is now occupied as college rooms: there are about 320 sittings, of which 100 are free. The register dates from the year 1539, and records the burial, 12 Jan. 1630, of Thomas Hobson, the famous University carrier. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value about £180, including 23 acres of glebe, in the gift of Corpus Christi college, and held since 1872 by the Rev. George Nickson M.A. of that college.

St. Botolph's church, which stands on the east side of Trumpington street, is an ancient building, originally Norman, but now chiefly in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, supported by massive angle buttresses and surmounted at the angles by four figures of lions, each holding a vane, and containing a clock and 4 bells: over the communion table is a painting of "The Crucifixion," presented by Mr. John Smith, formerly University printer, who brought it from Antwerp: the east window was filled with stained glass in 1886, at the expense of the rector, and there is a memorial window to Dr. Parkinson (d. 1890), erected by his widow: in the church is a monument, with half effigy, to Dr. Thomas Playfere, Margaret Professor of Divinity in the 16th century, d. 1609; and one to James Essex F.S.A. the architect, d. 14 Sept. 1784: there are 300 sittings, of which 200 are free. The register dates from the year 1600. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £200, including 48 acres of glebe, in the gift of Queens' College, and held since 1892 by the Rev. Claude Hermann Walter Johns M.A. of Queens' College, Cambridge.

St. Clement's church, in Bridge street, occupying the site of larger and more ancient structure, of which many traces remain, is a modern edifice of brick and stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled tower with spire containing 2 bells: the tower and spire were erected in 1821 by the representatives of the Rev. William Cole M.A., F.S.A. the celebrated antiquary, who died 16 Dec. 1782, and is buried beneath it; the inscription, "Deum Cole," on the outside is said to have been placed there as an ingenious way of complying with his request that his name should be inscribed on the tower: in the church is a brass, dated 1432, and a large monumental stone with Lombardic characters: there was formerly a well-endowed chantry for two priests attached to the altar of St. Nicholas within this church, founded by William Collesworth in 1325 for the souls of Edward II. and Queen Isabella, and divers other persons: all the ancient endowments have, however, long since disappeared. The church has been more or less restored at various times since 1863, and affords 600 sittings. The register dates from 1560, and there are also parish records, including a fragment of churchwardens' accounts, temp. Ed. VI. and many documents of genealogical interest. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £47, arising from 16 acres of glebe and recent benefactions, in the gift of the Masters and Fellows of Jesus College, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Edmund Gough De Salis Wood B.D. of Emmanuel College. The rectory and the rectorial tithes and the right of patronage were given about 1198 to the prioress and nuns of the Benedictine priory of S. Rhadegunde, in Cambridge: the Masters and Fellows of Jesus College are their successors in the rights of patronage, the convent having been suppressed and converted by Bishop Alcock, of Ely, into a college in 1496.

St. Edward's church, in St. Edward's passage, opposite to King's College, is an ancient building of stone in the Early English and later styles, consisting of chancel, with side chapels, nave, aisles and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells: there are several interesting monuments and 280 sittings, of which 10 are free. The register dates from the year 1557, and records the death of Elinor Bowman, 17 Aug. 1650, at the age of 112 years. The living is donative, net yearly value £36, in the gift of the Master and Fellows of Trinity Hall, and held since 1880 by the Rev. John James Lias M.A. of Emmanuel College, and examining chaplain to the Bishop of Llandaff.

The church of St. Giles, rebuilt in 1875-6 near the site of the old church in Castle street, is a structure of white brick, with stone dressings, in the Early French Gothic style, consisting of chancel, lofty nave with wagon roof 65 feet from the floor, aisles and a side chapel used as a vestry: in the south aisle is a Norman porch built from materials removed from the old church: there is one bell hung on the outside of the west wall of the nave, and above it is a clock: the church affords about 800 sittings, of which 500 are free. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1596; marriages and burials, 1607; the registers of St. Peter's, dating from 1586, are also kept here. The living is a vicarage, with that of St. Peter annexed, joint gross yearly value £300, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1875 by the Rev. Francis Slater M.A. of Queens' College, hon. canon of Ely, proctor in Convocation, and surrogate, who resides at Chesterton.

St. Mary the Less church, adjoining St. Peter's College, in Trumpington street, is an ancient building of stone, in the Decorated style, supposed to have been designed by Alan de Walsingham, architect of the Lady chapel of Ely Cathedral, and consisting of chancel, nave, vestry and a western tower of brick containing one bell: the east window is enriched with exquisite tracery and filled with stained glass: the ancient church of St. Peter, which stood on the same site until about 1325, gave its name to and was used as the chapel of St. Peter's College: the present edifice, dedicated 3 Nov. 1352, to St. Mary of Grace, continued to be so used until 1632: John Holbrook, a famous mathematician, and Master of St. Peter's College, 1418-31, and Dr. Matthew Wren, Bishop of Ely, 1638-67, and previously Master of the College, were buried here: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £97, in the gift of St. Peter's College, and held since 1887 by the Rev. John Wale Hicks M.D., F.R.C.P. Lond., D.D. and fellow and dean of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge. A parish room has been built at the west end of the church.

St. Michael's church, in Trinity street, built in 1324 by Hervey de Stanton, is an edifice in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel with aisles, nave, aisles, north porch and a western tower, with plain parapet, containing 4 bells: the chancel retains triple sedilia and a piscina, and is fitted with ancient choir stalls of oak: in the wall by the vestry door is a small and curious brass, and there are pictures of King Charles I. and of the Holy Family, a monument to Professor Scholefield and several other memorials: here was buried, in 1337, Hervey de Stanton, the founder of Michael House, the oldest part of Trinity College, and on 24 Nov. 1549, Paul Fagius, one of the Fathers of the Reformation: the south aisle also has a piscina, but this, as well as several monuments, is concealed by the organ: the chancel and aisles were decorated under the direction of the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott R.A. : there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1516. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value from 25 acres of glebe £46, in the gift of Trinity College, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Edward Bickersteth Birks M.A. fellow of Trinity College : there is no vicarage house.

The parish of St. Peter, by a provisional order which came into operation on March 25th, 1885, was amalgamated with that of St. Giles. The church, on Castle hill, is an ancient edifice of stone, in the Norman, Early English and Decorated styles, consisting of nave, 29 feet long and 16 feet wide, and a small embattled western tower with spire containing one bell : the entrance is on the south side through a Norman doorway, and there is a curious font, probably of the 12th century, consisting of a square basin, carved on the exterior with rude figures and supported on a low, moulded circular base. • The registers, which date from 1586, are kept at St. Giles's church. The living is a vicarage annexed to that of St. Giles.

St. Matthew's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed June 28, 1870, out of the parish of St. Andrew the Less : the church, in St. Matthew's street, Barnwell, built in 1866, is an octagonal structure of brick, opening into transepts on four sides, the roof being surmounted by an octagonal lantern : the eastern arm forms the chancel, and there are north and west porches and a western belfry containing 3 bells : the church affords 650 sittings. The register dates from the year 1870. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £220, with residence and half an acre of glebe, in the gift of the vicar of St. Andrew the Less, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Joseph Hargrove M.A. of Clare College, Cambridge, and surrogate.

St. James's, a wooden church in Ainsworth street, in this parish, is served by the vicar and curates of St. Matthew's.

St. Paul's ecclesiastical parish was formed 4 July, 1845, out of the parishes of SS. Andrew the Great and the Less : the church, on the Hills road, is a large edifice of red brick, faced with cut stone, in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and one bell : there are 1,100 sittings, 500 of which are free. The register dates from the year 1845. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1891 by the Rev. Henry Paine Stokes M.A., LL.M. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge.

St. Barnabas is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1889 from the parishes of St. Andrew the Less, St. Paul and St. Matthew : the church, in the Mill road, built at a cost of £7,000 and consecrated May 5, 1880, is an edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, north porch and a bell cote on the north side containing one bell : it was enlarged in 1887, and now affords 800 sittings. The living is a perpetual curacy, net yearly value £147, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Charles Butler M.A. of Pembroke College, Cambridge.

St. Phillip's mission church, Mill road, Romsey town, erected in 1890 at a cost, including site, of £2,500, as a chapel of ease to St. Barnabas, is an edifice of red brick, consisting of chancel, nave and western porch. The Rev. Edwin Ernest Marshall, of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, has been curate in charge since 1891. The population of St. Barnabas ecclesiastical parish is 6,500.

St. John the Evangelist's mission church, in Wellington street, erected in 1874, is a plain edifice of brick, consisting only of nave and a belfry with one bell : there are 200 sittings : the services are conducted by the vicar and curates of Christ Church.

The Catholic church of "Our Lady of the Assumption and the English Martyrs," at the corner of Hill's road and Lensfield road and immediately opposite the grounds of Downing College, was erected in 1887-90, at a total cost of nearly £50,000, and is an edifice of Ancaster and Bath stone, in the Early Decorated style, from designs by Messrs. Dunn, Hansom and Dunn, architects, of Newcastle-on-Tyne. The church, built at the sole expense of Mrs. Yolande Marie Louise Lyne Stephens, consists of chancel, nave, ante-chapel, a central embattled tower with pinnacles, and a tower with spire 220 feet high, at the north end at the angle formed by the intersection of the main roads : the exterior is enriched with carving and statues, and the windows are stained : there are sittings for 1,200 persons. Attached to the church is a presbytery, arranged as an open quadrangle, and treated in the Early Collegiate style.

The ancient but now desecrated chapel of St. Mary, on Sturbridge Green, a little north of the river Sture and about half a mile east of Barnwell, is a small edifice of the Norman period, consisting only of chancel and nave, but exhibits a good deal of rich workmanship, especially about the chancel arch, and has open timbered Perpendicular roofs : it appears to have belonged to a hospital for lepers.

The Presbyterian Church of England, in Downing street, erected in 1890-1, at a cost of £9,000, will seat 500 persons : the organ was the gift of Lady Bruce, wife of Sir G. B. Bruce kt. of Newcastle-on-Tyne : the oak pulpit and chairs were given by Mrs. Gibson.

Eden Baptist chapel, in Fitzroy street, rebuilt in 1874, will hold about 600 persons.

Zion Baptist chapel, in the East road, erected in 1877-9, in place of an earlier structure built in 1837, is of brick with stone dressings, and will seat 900 persons.

The Baptist chapel, St. Andrew's street, erected in 1837, seats about 800 persons.

Emmanuel Congregational church, in Trumpington street, built in 1875 at a cost of £13,000, is an edifice of Yorkshire stone, with a lofty tower, and affords about 800 sittings.

There are four Primitive Methodist chapels, all of which are plain structures of brick ; that in St. Peter's street was erected in 1841 and rebuilt in 1863, and will seat about 400 : the chapel in Panton street, erected in 1866, seats about 500 : Newmarket road chapel, erected in 1876, has 700 sittings, and that in Sturton street, built in 1875, about 150.

The Wesleyan chapel in Hobson street, built in 1849, is of brick with a stone portico, and will seat about 1,000 persons : the other, in Hills road, erected in 1870, has 800 sittings.

The Friends' Meeting House is at 12 Jesus lane.

CEMETERIES :—The Cambridge Cemetery, on the east side of the Mill road, consecrated in 1848, is an inclosure of about 15 acres : each parish in the borough has a portion of the ground allotted to it and placed under the management of its own officers or servants : near the centre of the ground is a chapel, with a tower and spire added at the sole cost of the late Rev. Dr. Whewell, formerly master of Trinity College. There is also a cemetery on the Histon road, in the parish of Chesterton, under the management of a company, and used principally by Dissenters.

SS. Giles' and Peter's Parochial Burial Ground, off the Huntingdon road, opened in March, 1869, at a total cost of £437 10s. consists of 1A. 2R. 26P. 339 links of ground, including the roadway, and has a chapel and a house for the curator.

MUNICIPAL AND OTHER PUBLIC BUILDINGS AND INSTITUTIONS.

The Guildhall, on the Market hill, was erected at various periods, but much enlarged and improved in 1862, at a cost of about £12,000 ; the principal assembly room, a lofty and spacious apartment, 120 by 52 feet, is admirably adapted for concerts and public meetings, and has been re-decorated in the Italian style by Mr. F. Leach, of Cambridge, and an organ erected at a cost of £1,700.

The Cambridge Free Library, established 1 March, 1853, and formally opened June 28, 1855, was removed in June, 1862, to the Guildhall, and now occupies a suite of rooms, consisting of a reading-room, built in 1885 from designs by Mr. George McDonell, architect, of London, library, issue office and librarian's apartments : the library contains over 38,026 volumes and has reference and lending departments : the issue of books during the year 1890-91 from the Central and Barnwell Branch libraries amounted to 98,234 volumes, the number of borrowers being over 3,000 : a large number of books are kept for ready reference in the reading-room, and for these no written orders are required : the Reference Library includes a good selection of works relating to the county, town and University of Cambridge, and also a Shakespeare Memorial Library, of 1,824 volumes, nearly the whole of which were presented by Henry Thomas Hall esq.: the reading-room is well supplied with periodicals and with newspapers both daily and weekly : in 1875 a branch library was opened in the East road, in the district of Barnwell, which comprises a reading-room and lending library, the latter having over 5,000 volumes ; the issue for the year 1890-91 was 17,199 volumes : the selection of books and management of the library is intrusted to a committee appointed by the Town Council, one half of whom are members of the Town Council and the other private inhabitants of the town.

The Shire Hall, on Castle Hill, is a structure of brick and stone in the Italian style, with a portico supported on columns ; the interior comprises two courts, with magistrates' room and the usual offices, and here also are the offices of the Clerk of the Peace for the county, the clerk to the County Council and the Inspector of Weights and Measures. The assizes and sessions for the county are held here and the magistrates also meet to transact all business and matters relating to county affairs. The Police Station, erected in 1879, near the Assize Courts, is a plain building of stone, with a residence for the chief constable, rooms for unmarried constables, cells for prisoners, stabling and a parade ground.

Her Majesty's Prison and House of Correction, on Castle hill, in the parish of Chesterton, was erected in 1804, on the site of the old Castle, and has been considerably improved and enlarged. Prisoners are received here from the counties of Cambridge, Huntingdon, Herts, Suffolk and Essex.

The Theatre Royal, in St. Andrew's street, Cambridge, licensed for theatrical performances, has a good stage, with scenery and appliances, and will seat about 900 persons.

The chief trade of Cambridge consists in supplying the wants of the University, but there is also a considerable trade in corn for the supply of the town and for the London markets, and the town is also the centre of a large and prosperous agricultural district, which it supplies: there are iron and brass foundries, a tobacco manufactory, brick and tile works, breweries, maltings, some large flour mills, and in the immediate neighbourhood several extensive nurseries.

The Market place, in the centre of the town, was greatly enlarged and improved about 1857: there is a daily market, but the principal market is on Saturday, and the corn market is held on the same day, in the Corn Exchange, a large building at the back of the Guildhall, opening to Guildhall street, near the centre of the town, and containing a statue of Jonas Webb, the eminent breeder of sheep, by the late Baron Marochetti. A Cattle Market has been formed by the Corporation at a cost of about £15,000, on land situated between the station and Cherry Hinton road, and was opened in 1885.

Several fairs are held during the year, the principal of which are Midsummer fair, commencing on 24th June and continuing three days, for horses, cattle and earthenware; and Sturbridge fair, commencing on the 25th of September; this fair, founded 31 Elizabeth (1588-9), was formerly one of the largest in England, and beginning on the Feast of the Nativity of the Virgin Mary (September 8) lasted six weeks; the fair was held on a large space of ground bounded by the Cam on the north and on the east by a small stream called the "Stour" or "Sture," over which there was a bridge, and hence the name of the fair: the whole area was covered with shops or booths arranged in rows like streets, for various trades and handicrafts, with taverns, coffee houses &c. and there was a great open quadrangle from 240 to 300 feet square, called "The Duddery," especially assigned to woollen drapers and clothes dealers; in the centre of this square a pulpit was erected, from which the minister of Barnwell preached on the two chief Sundays of the fair. This fair has now much fallen off and lasts for one week only: there are cattle fairs three times in the year.

Hobson's Conduit, erected in the Market place in 1614 by the well-known and eccentric carrier, Thomas Hobson, but removed in 1856 to Trumpington street, is a several-sided structure with a niche in each face and a cornice supporting a domical roof around which are placed the royal arms and other adornments: this conduit and the streams running down on either side of St. Andrew's and Trumpington streets are supplied from nine wells at Great Shelford, about 4 miles south-east. In 1865 a handsome drinking fountain was erected on the old site of the conduit in the Market place.

Sturton Town Hall, in the Mill road, built by and the property of a limited liability company, is now used by the Salvation Army, and will seat about 800 persons.

The Beaconsfield Club, Gwydir street, is a structure of brick, erected in 1884 by a limited liability company, as a working men's club: there are now (1892) 500 members: political meetings are also held here.

The Henry Martyn Memorial Hall, in Market street, adjoining Trinity Church, and erected in 1887 at a cost of £4,500, is intended both to commemorate the distinguished career and services of the Rev. Henry Martyn M.A. the first Cambridge missionary to India, and to afford a local habitation for the University Church Missionary Union, the meetings of which are held here weekly, besides furnishing, at the discretion of the trustees, a place of meeting for other missionary and religious societies: it comprises a large hall, seating 150 persons, committee room with missionary library, caretaker's apartments, and a room below, now let as a shop. Hon. sec. Rev. J. Barton M.A. vicar of Holy Trinity.

The premises of the Church of England Young Men's Association are in St. Edward's passage; the Cambridge Young Men's Christian Association has premises in Alexandra street, erected in 1870, on a plot of freehold land purchased by the association: these associations each possess a library and reading and class rooms.

The Good Templar Mission Hall, Victoria street, erected at a cost of nearly £400, and opened early in 1885, is a building of red brick with Bath stone dressings: the hall will hold 50 persons.

The Working Men's Institute and Mission Room, in Shelly row, Castle end, erected in 1884, at a cost of about £700, is an edifice of red Suffolk brick and Bath stone dressings in the English Domestic style: the large room will hold 300, and attached is a reading room furnished with papers and periodicals, and a small gymnasium.

Hospitals and Almshouses.

Addenbrooke's Hospital, in Trumpington street, founded by a bequest of John Addenbrooke M.D. of St. Catharine's College, and first opened at Michaelmas, 1766, consists of a long pedimented central block with advanced wings, united in front by an open colonnade with balustrading: the hospital was further endowed in 1813 by John Bowtell, a bookbinder in this town; and has an income of £1,421 from invested funds, but it derives its chief support from the voluntary contributions of the public. During the years 1864 and 1865 the hospital was almost rebuilt and greatly enlarged from the designs of Sir M. Digby Wyatt at a cost of about £15,000: in 1878 additional wards were built at a cost of £3,590; and in 1883 a dormitory was provided at a cost of about £1,200: it has now upwards of 153 beds and affords relief to a large number of out-patients. The hospital has a present income of £6,700. Certificates of attendance on the practice in this hospital are recognized by the University, by the Royal Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons, and by the Society of Apothecaries. During term, clinical lectures are delivered weekly by the physicians, and a course of lectures on the principles of surgery. In 1884 the Corporation built a hospital for infectious diseases, on a site purchased for that purpose, in Mill road, Romsey town.

The Royal Albert Asylum for decayed tradespeople, at Brooklands, established in 1846, is a structure of white brick in the Gothic style, consisting of twenty houses: its funds were augmented in 1868 by a legacy of upwards of £6,000, left by the late Mr. J. Reynolds, of this town, and it is generally supported by members' contributions and donations and subscriptions.

The "Spinning House," in St. Andrew's street, originally founded in 1628 by Thomas Hobson, as a workhouse for the unemployed poor, as well as for a house of correction, is a large structure of brick. This charity has been augmented by various benefactors; but the institution has for many years ceased to be a workhouse, and is now a receptacle for profligate and disorderly women: it has an income of about £251 yearly, the greater part of which is applied to educational purposes and apprenticing.

Knight and Mortlock's Almshouses, formerly in Jesus lane but re-erected in King street in 1882, were founded in 1647 by Elizabeth Knight, of Denny Abbey, for two widows and four spinsters, and were rebuilt in 1818 at the cost of William Mortlock esq.: the present income is valued at £187 yearly.

The Hospital of SS. Anthony and Eligius, Panton street, founded in 1361 by Henry de Tangmer, a burgess of the borough, for six poor women, was removed to its present site in 1851: the income of the charity is £70 yearly.

Jakenett's Almshouses, in King street, founded in 1469 by Thomas Jakenett, a burgess of the town, and rebuilt in 1790, are for eight poor women of the parish of St. Mary the Great, each inmate receiving about £20 yearly.

Queens' College Almshouses, in Queens' lane, founded in 1484 by Dr. Andrew Docket, president of Queens' College, are for eight widows, appointed by the president and fellows of Queens' College.

Perse's Almshouses, in Newnham, founded in 1615 by Dr. Perse, of Caius College, for six poor women, are neat dwellings with gardens in front: the income is now (1892) £174 yearly, and the houses are kept in repair by the master and fellows of Caius College.

Wray's Almshouses, in King street, founded in 1620 by Mr. Henry Wray, stationer, of Cambridge, are for four widows and four widowers, each inmate receiving about £22 yearly: the total income is now £247 yearly.

Storey's Almshouses, in Mount Pleasant, were founded in 1692 by Edward Storey gent. for clergymen's widows, maidens over forty years of age, and widows of tradesmen. There are at present 6 almshouses belonging to this charity in Mount Pleasant, occupied by clergymen's widows, and 9 almshouses in Shelly row, occupied by widows and maidens from the parishes of Holy Trinity and St. Giles, in Cambridge, the total number of inmates being now (1892) 15. Dr. Goddard, master of Clare College, the Rev. William Cole, of Milton Court, the Rev. Robert Tyrwhitt and Thomas Loombes esq. added to the charity £1,150 yearly.

The King's College Almswomen, four in number, receive an annual pension from the college, of about £30, including a payment in lieu of the dwellings formerly assigned to them.

Elizabeth, widow of the famous Capt. James Cook R.N. left, in 1835, a sum of £27 annually to be divided amongst 5 poor widows of St. Andrew's parish.

There are numerous other private charities, for visiting the sick and infirm at their own houses, and a sum of about £350 is distributed yearly in money and kind.

The Priory of Barnwell, dedicated to SS. Giles and Andrew, was first founded in Cambridge in 1092 by Picot, a Norman, for six canons of the Augustinian order, and translated to Barnwell in 1102 by Payn Peverell, standard bearer in the Holy Land to Robert Curthose, Duke of Normandy, who refounded the priory, increasing the number of canons to 30, and dying in 1112, was buried in the priory church. The last prior, John Badcock, surrendered the monastery Nov. 8, 1539, when the revenues were estimated at £256. The existing remains, situated about 1½ miles east of Cambridge market place, consist only of part of the north-west angle of the cloisters, with traces of arcading, and a portion of the boundary wall; the site has at one time been quarried, and more recently has been excavated by the Cambridge Antiquarian Society, but with slight results: it is now laid out with streets.

Cambridge University.

The origin of this University has been the subject of much controversy: it is generally stated that Sigebert, King of the East English (629-35), was the first person of influence who fostered learning in this place: to this, Bede says, he was advised, as to many other works of piety, by St. Felix, the first Bishop of Dunwich, who presided over the churches of East England from A.D. 630 to his decease in A.D. 638. During the Danish invasions, about 871, the town was burnt, and the progress of learning here arrested; but the University was re-established by Edward the Elder in 915; and a further revival took place in 1110; Henry III. about 1230, granted a charter to the University, but its most important privileges were bestowed by Edward III. in 1333: Letters Patent were granted by Henry VIII. in 1534, and a charter by Queen Elizabeth in 1561; and later the University was incorporated by Act of Parliament, in 1571 (13 Eliz. c. 29): its statutes have been revised on several occasions, and were altered to a very considerable extent under the "Cambridge University Act, 1856" (19 and 20 Vict. c. 88): new statutes were confirmed by the Queen in Council, 31 July, 1858, under the "Universities' Act, 1858" (21 and 22 Vict. cc. 57 and 58), and the statutes of the University were further revised by the "Oxford and Cambridge Universities' Act, 1877" (40 and 41 Vict. c. 48), and confirmed anew by Her Majesty in 1882. James I. in 1614, conferred on the University the privilege of sending two members to Parliament, the right of election being vested in the members of the senate: all Doctors of Divinity, Law and Physic, and Masters of Arts or Laws, having their names upon the register, have votes in this assembly. By Order in Council, 13th May, 1869, power was given to the University to admit as students, and to confer degrees, on persons who are not members of any college or hall.

The University of Cambridge is a society of students in all and every of the liberal arts and sciences, incorporated, as stated, by Queen Elizabeth, under the title of "The Chancellor, Masters and Scholars of the University of Cambridge." This corporation is a union of seventeen Colleges or Societies, and of certain Masters of Arts and students, who, though not members of any colleges, are members of the larger Corporation of the University, and entitled to share in all privileges within its precincts, other than those which are accessible only to members of colleges. Both this larger corporation of the University and the smaller ones of the colleges are devoted to the study of learning and knowledge, and are intended to promote the better service of the Church and State. All the colleges have been founded since the first year of Edward I. and are maintained by the endowments of their respective founders and benefactors. Each college is a corporation governed by its own statutes, but all are controlled by the statutes of the University.

The Senate consists of all persons of the degree of Master of Arts and of any higher degree, who retain their names on the books (excepting those whose first degree has been that of B.D. under the now repealed "Ten year" statute of Queen Elizabeth), and no new statute can become law without the assent of this body.

The Electoral Roll consists of certain official persons, including the heads of Colleges and Professors and of all members of the Senate who live within certain limits of the University and its neighbourhood for 120 days in the year.

The Council of the Senate, established by 19 and 20 Vic. cap. 88, consists of the Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, four heads of Colleges, four Professors, and eight other members of the Senate, chosen from the electoral roll by the Senate. No measure can be submitted till it has obtained the sanction of the Council.

The several degrees of the University are conferred upon such persons as are duly presented to the Vice-Chancellor by their respective college officials after satisfying the University Examiners or Professors respectively in the several examinations and exercises required by the statutes of the University, after a statutable residence and a course of instruction, partly under college tutors and partly under the University Professors &c. The college authorities are responsible for the behaviour of students within the walls of their respective colleges; and the Proctors for their conduct outside the colleges and in the University at large.

The University Terms, three in number, are fixed by invariable rules; October or Michaelmas Term begins on the 1st October and ends on the 16th December; Lent or January Term from the 13th January to the Friday before Palm Sunday; and Easter or Midsummer Term from the Friday after Easter Sunday to the Friday after the last Tuesday but one in June.

University Buildings.

The Senate House, in Trumpington street, erected at a cost of about £20,000, is a structure of Portland stone, surrounded by pilasters of the Corinthian order, supporting a frieze and cornice and finished with a balustrading, each front being also relieved by a Decorated pediment: six ornamental stone vases, completing the original design, were placed above the east and south fronts in 1891, at the cost of Samuel Sandars esq. M.A. of Trinity College. The interior, which is ornamented with columns of the Doric order, is 101 feet in length, 42 in breadth, and 32 in height: the galleries are of Norway oak, richly carved, and the floor of black and white marble; at the east end are statues of Charles, Duke of Somerset, by Rysbrack, and of the Right Hon. William Pitt, by Nollekens: at the upper, or west end, is the Vice-Chancellor's chair, with seats on each side for the proctors, heads of colleges, doctors of the several faculties and noblemen. Here degrees are conferred and other public business of the University is transacted. Members of Parliament for the University are also elected here, the Vice-Chancellor being the returning officer.

The Fitzwilliam Museum, in Trumpington street, and perhaps the finest of modern Classical structures in this country, was erected in 1837-47 from the designs of George Basevi esq. architect, who being accidentally killed by a fall at Ely Cathedral (October 16th, 1845), the work was completed by Charles R. Cockerell esq. R.A.: the principal front exhibits a grand portico of eight Corinthian columns, the order being continued on each side and flanked by advanced wings, inclosing loggia, the whole supporting a cornice and pediment: the wings and loggia are relieved by niches, containing in bold relief figures of the Muses: the Museum was founded and endowed by Richard, Viscount Fitzwilliam, who died in 1816, and bequeathed to the University his splendid collection of books, paintings, drawings and engravings, together with the dividends arising from £100,000 South Sea Annuities for the erection of a museum for their reception; to the above has been added a valuable collection, presented by the late Mr. Mesman to the University, and for many years deposited in one of the apartments of the Pit Press: the majority of the paintings in this collection are of the Flemish and Dutch schools; the library contains a collection of engravings, etchings, drawings and illuminated manuscripts and coins (including Col. Leake's collection), which makes the museum, in this respect, one of the most important in Europe: in 1850 John Disney LL.D. presented a valuable collection of ancient marbles, eighty-three in number; and in the same year John Kirkpatrick esq. presented a collection of thirty-four casts of antique statuary: the museum has been further enriched by many other valuable presents of paintings, prints, books, statues, models and curiosities by various individuals, especially twenty-five water-colour drawings by the late J. M. W. Turner, presented by John Ruskin esq. in May, 1861; thirty valuable modern paintings given by Mrs. Elizabeth Ellison, of Sudbrook Hall, Lincolnshire, in 1863: in 1872, by the will of the late Rev. R. E. Kerrich, the museum acquired seven paintings, 200 volumes of books, together with many portfolios of valuable engravings: in 1876, the late A. A. Vansittart esq. presented seventeen pictures, including fine examples of Ruysdael, Guercino, Marieschi &c.; other benefactors have been the Rev. J. W. Arnold D.D. in 1859, and the Rev. C. Leasingham Smith in 1878, their gifts including works by Salvator Rosa, Pierre de Molyn, Cooper &c. The museum has been augmented by other valuable presents and purchases. The general management is intrusted to a syndicate, composed of the Vice-Chancellor and eight other members of the Senate. The museum is open to the public every day but Friday (when it is reserved for members of the University and friends accompanying them) from 10 to 4 from the 1st of September to the 30th of April, and from 10 to 6 from the 1st of May to the 31st of August.

The Museum of Archæology, Little St. Mary lane, was opened in May, 1884, and consists of two departments, viz: Classical and Local Archæology. The former occupies four galleries containing over 600 casts, arranged chronologically, each gallery representing, so far as practicable, a marked period in the history of art, and the collection, as a whole, is second only to the famous Museum of casts at Berlin. The Local collection, occupying the southern part of the building, consists of four galleries, and includes the museum of the Cambridge Antiquarian Society. Two important ethnological collections formed in Fiji by Sir Arthur Gordon G.C.M.G. and A. P. Maudsley esq. M.A. have been presented by them; the museum is open to the public at the same hours as the Fitzwilliam Museum.

The Museum of Geology, now placed in a suite of rooms under the north wing of the University Library, consists of the original collections of Dr. Woodward, founder of the Professorship, bequeathed by him to the University in 1727, together with the large additions made by the different professors since that time, and especially by the Rev. Adam Sedgwick M.A., F.R.S. Professor from 1818 to 1873. The collections are very large, and are chiefly arranged in drawers rather than under glass. For educational purposes and research no other Geological museum equals this, and for general interest it is hardly surpassed even by the National Museum at South Kensington. Amongst other things is a collection made by Agostino Scilla, a distinguished Italian painter, who, in 1670, published a work on fossils, the illustrative sketches for which, made by him, as well as the original fossils themselves, are preserved here. Besides the Palæontological series there is a fine collection of rocks, and of specimens prepared for the microscope and for illustrating the mode in which the earth's crust has been built up and modified from time to time. There are also many objects illustrating economic geology, the various phosphates exactly assigned to the locality and geological horizon from which they were procured, and an extensive series of polished marbles.

The Museums and Lecture Rooms form an extensive range of buildings on the site of the old Botanic Garden, on the north side of Downing street, and include a connected series of museums and lecture rooms for the use of the professors, comprising a museum of zoology and comparative anatomy, physiological and morphological class-rooms, botanical museum and herbarium; mineralogical museum; museum of mechanism, with workshops; optical and astronomical lecture room, chemical laboratory &c.

The new Chemical Laboratory, in Pembroke street, was erected in 1887, from designs by Mr. J. J. Stevenson, based on a plan proposed by Professor Liveing. The ground floor contains laboratories for elementary work and three lecture rooms, the largest room seating 240 and the two others, 60 each; and in addition a preparation room and specimen room: on the mezzanine floor is the private room and laboratory of the professor of chemistry, and a room for organic analysis: on the first floor are the advanced students' laboratories, a laboratory for organic chemistry, balance room, lecture room, and a private room for the Jacksonian Professor: higher up is the library, and one or two rooms for special researches.

The new buildings for the study of anatomy, in Corn Exchange street, consist of dissecting rooms, anatomical museum and lecture rooms. The old anatomical school is now devoted to surgery, and the former chemical laboratory to pathology. These museums are open to members of the University and the general public daily from 9 to 6.

The University Library, occupying that part of the two quadrangles which lies between the Senate House and Trinity Hall, now contains about 500,000 volumes, and has been enriched at different time by royal and private benefactors, including King George I. (1715), Thomas Rotherham or Scot, Archbishop of York (1484), Dr. Richard Holdsworth, master of Emmanuel College (1649), Henry Lucas (1664), Tobias Rustat (1666), John Hacket, Bishop of Lichfield (1670), William Worts (1709), and John Manistre (1826); and it is continually increased by the provisions of the Copyright Acts, under which the University may claim a copy of every new work published in this country: the building was very considerably enlarged in 1866, at an expense of £14,500, and further enlarged in 1889, at a cost of £16,000, of which £10,000 was derived from a bequest by the late John Hancock esq. some time fellow of St. John's College.

The Divinity School, probably the oldest University building in the town, originally stood on the north side of the Schools quadrangle, under the present catalogue-room of the University Library, with which it was incorporated in accordance with a report of the library syndicate in the year 1856; in the same year the Rev. W. Selwyn D.D. of St. John's College, Lady Margaret Professor of Divinity, set apart £700 a year from the income of his chair as an augmentation of the stipend of the Norrisian professorship, proposing at the same time, if the Norrisian professorship should meanwhile become vacant, to continue the same contribution during his tenure of office for the furtherance of theological study in such a way as might seem best: in accordance with this provision a trust was formed in 1864 to receive and administer the sums so set apart with a view to the erection of a Divinity school, and shortly before Professor Selwyn's death (April 24, 1875), when the accumulated fund amounted to nearly £10,000, a site opposite St. John's College was purchased by the University at a cost of £3,750; the building, erected in 1878-9, is in the Gothic style of the 15th century, from designs of Mr. Basil Champneys M.A. and contains a large lecture room capable of holding about 300 students, a small lecture room, library and four rooms for the professors. In Nov. 1890, the library was augmented by the addition of the library of the late Dr. Lightfoot, Bishop of Durham, bequeathed by him to the Divinity school.

The University Pitt Club, Reading and News Rooms, established in 1827, and now occupying rooms at 7A, Jesus lane, is open daily from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. to members of the University only: it is well supplied with all the principal newspapers and periodicals, London and provincial, and has a good selection of useful and standard works.

The Pitt Press, or University Printing Office, on the west side of Trumpington street, and erected in 1831-3, is an embattled structure of three stories in the Perpendicular style, from designs by Mr. Edward Blore, architect, and surrounds three sides of a square: the principal front is relieved by buttresses rising into crocketed pinnacles above the parapet, and in the centre is a large square tower, with a canopied oriel over the entrance, an open embattled parapet and crocketed pinnacles at the angles: the foundation stone was laid in November, 1831, by the Marquess Camden, who also opened the building 30th April, 1833: the University printers are Mr. Charles John Clay M.A.; Mr. J. Clay M.A. and Mr. C. F. Clay M.A.

The Cambridge University Union Society, established in 1815, averages about 4,560 members, 3,220 of whom are now honorary: the buildings, in Bridge street, are of red brick in the Gothic style of the 14th century, from designs by Alfred Waterhouse esq. R.A.: an addition, containing the library, smoking and tea rooms, was erected in 1884 from plans by the same architect, at a cost of £8,000: the library comprises 30,000 volumes and there are several rooms supplied with all the principal newspapers and periodicals of the day: debates take place every Tuesday evening during term: the society is managed by a committee and certain officers, including a president, who are elected terminally.

The Cambridge Philosophical Society, established in 1819, was incorporated by charter in 1832, and is managed by a council, consisting of a president, three vice-presidents, treasurer and three secretaries, who are elected in October in each year, that being the anniversary of the society; the meetings are held once a fortnight during term at the New Museums.

The Botanic Gardens, south of the town, between the Hills road and the Trumpington road, occupy an area of about 21 acres: the garden is well arranged and contains an extensive collection of indigenous and foreign plants, including a variety of singular trees and plants from Australia and the islands in the South Seas: in the centre is a piece of ornamental water, and the whole garden is surrounded by trees and shrubs, arranged in such a manner as to afford the most complete facility for reference: the hot-houses are spacious, and contain a variety of curious and valuable exotics, and in 1891 the plant houses were considerably enlarged, at a cost of over £5,000: the whole is under the management of a syndicate, of which the Vice-Chancellor is chairman: the public are admitted free daily, Sundays excepted, and to the hot-houses between the hours of 2 and 5 p.m.; but strangers will readily obtain admission at any reasonable hour by making application to the curator at the gardens.

The University Observatory, erected in 1822-24, at a cost of nearly £20,000, on the Madingley road, and surrounded by tastefully laid-out grounds, is an edifice of Bath stone, on a plinth of granite, in the Classic style, from designs by Mr. J. C. Mead, of London, and consists of a centre with east and west wings and a pedimented porch carried on pillars of the Grecian Doric order: the principal instruments are a mural circle of 8 feet diameter and an equatorial of 5 feet focal length, with declination circle of 3 feet diameter and hour circle of 2 feet diameter; there is also a transit clock by Hardy and a very fine transit circle by Troughton and Simms, having a telescope of 8 inches aperture by Cooke and two divided circles of 3 feet in diameter; in 1835 a magnificent telescope, of nearly 12 inches aperture and 20 feet focal length, by Cauchoix, of Paris, was presented to the Observatory by his Grace the Duke of Northumberland, and is placed under a revolving dome 27 feet in diameter, and in 1891 a large equatorial telescope, 29 feet focal length and 25 inches aperture, was presented by the late Mr. Newall, of Gateshead: the Observatory is open to members of the University and their friends daily (Sundays excepted) from 12 to half-past 1; no strangers are admitted, except in company with a member of the University.

The University Boat Club contends annually with Oxford in a boat-race, which takes place at Easter on the Thames between Putney and Mortlake: up to the present year (1892) Oxford has won 26 races and Cambridge 22.

THE COLLEGES.

Colleges are a purely English institution, and although now, for the most part, forming the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, are as an institution not so ancient as the universities. In the earlier times of the universities, the students lived in a way not unlike the "non ascript" or unattached students of the present day. After a time, however, halls or hostels began to be formed in which the students lived a more cœnobitic life, and by degrees the existing colleges, as one by one they came into existence, superseded the halls, and for some centuries afforded a collegiate life and régime to every member of the two great Universities. In Oxford the difference between a college and a hall is that the colleges are corporate bodies, holding and managing their own property and endowments, the corporation consisting (with only three exceptions in Oxford and none in Cambridge) of a Head, a body of Fellows and a body of Scholars, the Head and Fellows being the governing body. The halls, on the other hand, are not corporate bodies, and any endowments they possess are held in trust for them by the University. In Cambridge there are no halls proper: Clare and Catharine have within the last few years each taken the names, as they already possessed the status, of a college: and Trinity hall only retains its original name for the obvious reason that a Trinity College already exists. The heads of all the colleges in Cambridge are called Masters, with the exception of those of King's and Queens', who are called respectively Provost and President.

In most of the colleges the head is elected by the fellows: but the Master of Trinity is appointed by the Crown, and the Master of Magdalene by the possessor of the Audley End Estate. The Fellows and Scholars are elected by the Heads and Fellows of the colleges after competitive examinations. Fellowships were originally tenable for life on the condition of celibacy; this condition, however, has been much modified, and marriage does not vacate a Fellowship held in conjunction with a Professorship, while in some colleges provision is made for marriage conditionally on the acceptance of a college living within a specified time. Scholarships are usually tenable for about four or five years. The undergraduate members of colleges are called Fellow Commoners, Pensioners and Sizars. There are Sizarships in some of the colleges, and numerous Scholarships and Exhibitions are open to undergraduates.

CAIUS COLLEGE (See Gonville and Caius).

CHRIST'S COLLEGE.

Visitor—The Vice-Chancellor, with two Senior Doctors in Divinity of the University; the Provost of King's acting if the Master of the College be the Vice-Chancellor.

The college was originally built on the site of a Hostel called "God's House," but was removed to its present site by Henry VI. to make room for the additions to King's College. It was founded, in its collegiate capacity, by Henry VI. for a Master, three Fellows and twenty-four Scholars, with an intention of enlargement, prevented, however, by the civil wars, but his half-sister, the Lady Margaret, Countess of Richmond and Derby, and mother of Henry VII. re-founded it in 1505 for a Master, twelve Fellows and forty-seven Scholars, changing its name to that which it now bears. The foundress dedicated her foundation "Ad honorem Christi Jesu et fidei ejus incrementum." Edward VI. added a fellowship and three scholarships, and Sir John Finch and Sir Thomas Baines two more fellowships and two more scholarships. Further additions were made at different times to the scholarships by succeeding benefactors. Under recent legislation the scholarships have been consolidated and improved in value, and the society now consists of a Master, fifteen Fellows and thirty or more Scholars. The college buildings consist of three principal courts, with an elegant chapel and hall. The college presents to eighteen benefices.

CLARE COLLEGE.

Visitor—The Chancellor of the University, with two persons appointed by Grace of Senate.

This college, formerly called Clare Hall, was founded by Richard de Badew, Chancellor of the University, who in 1326 built a small college, known as University Hall. This building having been destroyed by fire in 1342, the present building was erected four years later by Elizabeth, sister and co-heiress of Gilbert, last Earl of Clare, and endowed for a Master, Fellows and Scholars, under the name of "the College House or Hall of Clare." Among its benefactors were Henry VI. Thomas Cecil, 2nd Baron Burghley and 1st Earl of Exeter and Dr. Samuel Blythe, Master from 1678 to 1713. The buildings, which consist of one spacious court, 150 by 111 feet, and the chapel, were erected in 1769, at a cost of £7,000. The hall, library and combination room are all fine and well-proportioned rooms; and the walks, lawns and gardens of the college are among the most beautiful in the University. The present society consists of a Master, eight senior and seven junior Fellows and about 36 Scholars. The college presents to eighteen benefices.

CORPUS CHRISTI COLLEGE.

The Visitors are the Vice-Chancellor and two senior Doctors in Divinity of the University; the Sovereign being Extraordinary Visitor.

This college, the origin of which is very remarkable, and differs from that of any other in the University, was founded by the union of two Cambridge Guilds, called "Gilda Corporis Christi," and "Gilda Beatæ Mariæ Virginis." In 1351, Henry Plantagenet, Duke of Lancaster, being then Alderman of the Gilds, by licence from Edward III. formed these societies into a College for a Master and two Fellows, Sir John Cambridge soon adding two more Fellows, and other benefactors, especially Archbishop Parker (who gave the college a most valuable collection of books) subsequently enlarged the foundation still further. By the benefactions of Archbishop Herring and Drs. Greene and Mawson, Bishops of Ely, the college was almost rebuilt, and very considerably enlarged during the time of the late Master, Dean Lamb. A very complete history of this college was written and published by a former Fellow, the Rev. Robert Masters B.D. in 1753. The present society consists of a Master, twelve Fellows, besides Scholars. The hall and chapel of this college are remarkably fine buildings, and the library, especially the portion forming the Parker collection, is one of the most valuable in the kingdom, some of the manuscripts being as ancient as the 8th century; they are chiefly remarkable as comprising an extensive and very rare collection of papers relating to ecclesiastical affairs, collected on the dissolution of the monasteries by Henry VIII. and including some most interesting documents relating to the Reformation, and the original copy of the Thirty-nine Articles. Under the donor's will, this library is to be visited every sixth of August, by the Masters of Trinity Hall and Caius, and two of the Parker Scholars of Corpus, when, if twenty-five books are missing, and not restored within six months, the whole collection is to pass to Caius College, thence on the same condition to Trinity Hall, and thence in turn to revert to Corpus, the masters of the two colleges not in possession being the yearly visitors in such case: not even a Fellow may enter this library, according to the conditions of the donor's will, without another Fellow or a Parker Scholar; and a Fellow and Scholar must attend any and every visitor: it may be added that not a single book has ever been missing; the library was enriched in 1883 through the generosity of Dr. R. Caulfield of Cork, by the addition of 60 manuscripts in the Sanskrit, Persian, Urdú, and Hindí languages collected by Colonel Honnor in India: among the Sanskrit MSS. is an accented copy of the Black "Yajur Veda," dated Samvet, 1783 (A.D. 1726): the Urdú and Hindí MSS. include several collections of native songs and ballads. The college plate includes a silver-mounted drinking horn with two feet, presented in 1347 by John Goldcorne, and a set of Apostle spoons, given by Archbishop Parker, an original portrait of whom hangs in the library. The college presents to ten benefices.

DOWNING COLLEGE.

Visitor—The Vice-Chancellor, as the representative of the Sovereign.

This college was founded by the will of Sir George Downing bart. of Gamlingay Park in this county, dated 1717, for a Master, two Professors of Law and Medicine respectively, two Chaplains and six Scholars. The founder died in 1749, but litigation prevented the operation of the will till 1800, when the Charter of Incorporation was granted. The first Master, Francis Annesley, was appointed in 1805; the buildings, which are in the Classic style, were commenced in 1807, and the college was opened in 1821; in 1860 new statutes were given by the University Commissioners. The foundation now consists of a Master, two Professors, six Fellows, six foundation Scholars, and some minor Scholars. The college presents to two benefices.

EMMANUEL COLLEGE.

Visitors—The Vice-Chancellor with the Regius Professors of Divinity and Law as assessors.

This college was erected on the site of the Dominican Friary, established here before 1275, and was founded in 1584 by Sir Walter Mildmay, who had purchased the site, for a Master, three Fellows, and four Scholars. The foundation has since been considerably enlarged by the liberality of various benefactors, and now consists of a Master, thirteen foundation Fellows, and twenty-four Scholars. This college has a handsome west front facing the street, and its buildings have been almost entirely reconstructed: the principal court is 107 by 128 feet: the chapel, erected from designs by Sir Christopher Wren, and completed in 1677, has a flooring of marble: over the communion table is a painting of "the Return of the Prodigal Son:" the windows were filled with stained glass at the time of the tercentenary celebration in 1884, and chiefly exhibit portraits of distinguished men who have been connected with the college. On the 15th of October, 1811, a fire broke out in the south side of the principal court, the damage caused by which was estimated at between £7,000 and £8,000: there is a spacious hall, and the library (formerly the chapel) contains some valuable manuscripts and a choice collection of books, chiefly on divinity and classics. In 1886 the buildings were enlarged by the erection of a hostel for 14 additional students, a new lecture room being at the same time built over the library. The college presents to twenty-three benefices and to the mastership of two endowed grammar schools.

GONVILLE AND CAIUS COLLEGE.

Visitors—The Master of Corpus and Trinity Hall, and the senior Doctor in Medicine of the University.

Gonville and Caius College (usually called Caius College, and pronounced "Keys") was founded in 1348 by Edmund Gonville, and was originally called Gonville Hall, and endowed for a Master and three Fellows: its original site was between Free School lane and St. Botolph's churchyard. The name and site were both changed by William Bateman, Bishop of Norwich, Gonville's executor, who further endowed the college, and may be considered a second founder. The revenues were afterwards increased by various benefactors; and in 1558, John Caius M.D. the third founder, obtained a royal charter, by which the former foundations were all confirmed and his own established, and the name of the college decreed to be "Gonville and Caius College:" it stands on the north side of the Senate House, and is an interesting example of the Jacobean style, but during the years 1868-70 was almost entirely rebuilt, at considerable cost, from the designs of Alfred Waterhouse esq. R.A.; it still retains two of its three celebrated gates: Porta Virtutis and Porta Honoris, the latter appropriately leading to the Senate House; the Porta Humilitatis has been rebuilt in the wall of the Master's garden, and a new gate now occupies its former position. The sequence of the gates originally pointed to the course of a student in the University. The hall and chapel are well proportioned and convenient buildings. The third founder, Dr. Caius, is buried in the chapel in a chambered tomb, discovered under the floor during the re-seating of the chapel in 1892, and found to contain his skeleton, perfectly preserved. His sarcophagus or monument, removed from the east end to the north side when the chapel was rebuilt and lengthened eastward in the early part of the last century, is of alabaster, in the Jacobean style, and includes a handsome canopy, supported by Ionic columns. The quaint epitaph is as follows:

Fui Caius.
Vivit post funera virtus,
Ætatis suæ LXIII.
Obiit 29 Julii,
Anno D. 1573.

Dr. Caius bequeathed to the college a silver mace 2½ feet in length, surmounted by four serpents erect, with their heads turned inwards and meeting together.

The society now consists of a Master, about twenty-eight Fellows and forty Scholars. Four or more studentships in Medicine, founded by Christopher Tancred esq. are also annexed to this college. The college presents to eighteen benefices.

JESUS COLLEGE.

Visitor—The Bishop of Ely.

This college was built on the site of the Benedictine nunnery of St. Rhadegund, founded about 1130, and refounded by Malcolm, King of Scots, in 1160, the possessions of which, on its dissolution by Henry VIII. were granted to Bishop Alcock of Ely, Lord Chancellor of England in 1496, who out of them founded this society for a Master, six Fellows and six Scholars; but the liberality of numerous benefactors has added at different times largely to its possessions; and it now consists of a Master, sixteen Fellows, fifteen Foundation Scholars and seventeen Scholars on the foundation of the late Tobias Rustat esq. yeoman of the robes to Charles II. for the orphan sons of clergymen. The college buildings, situated in spacious grounds, partially surrounded with fine avenues of trees, consist of two courts; but the beautiful cruciform chapel of the convent, with its large square tower, mainly Early English, and the Perpendicular cloisters, are its principal features. Since about 1860 the college buildings have been gradually and efficiently restored, and in 1883-4 a new eastern wing was erected. The new building is of red Suffolk brick and Ancaster stone, in a style harmonizing with the work of Bishop Alcock, from designs by Messrs. R. H. Carpenter and B. Ingelow, architects, of London, and includes rooms for 36 students, besides a porter's lodge and servants' room: in the chapel is a mural tablet, with medallion, to Tobias Rustat, ob. 1693; and the transept retains the grave stone of one of the abbesses, with the inscription—"Moribus ornata jacet hic bona Bertha rosata." The hall is a noble room, with a beautiful open timber roof, and contains some good portraits. The college presents to sixteen benefices.

KING'S COLLEGE.

Visitor—The Bishop of Lincoln.

This magnificent foundation owes its origin to King Henry VI. who, in 1441, founded a small society here, consisting of a Rector and twelve Fellows: but two years later he determined on establishing a college in Cambridge, the Fellows of which were to be supplied in regular succession from a similar foundation for boys at Eton, on the exact model of William of Wykeham's two St. Mary Winton Colleges, viz. Winchester College and New College, Oxford. This new foundation consisted of a Provost, seventy Fellows and Scholars, three Chaplains, six Clerks, sixteen Choristers and a music master, now also organist, and this arrangement continued almost unaltered till modified by the parliamentary action of 1861; the college is now governed by statutes made in 1882, under the Act of 1877, and consists of a Provost, forty-six Fellows, forty-eight Scholars (of whom twenty-four are selected from Eton and the remaining twenty-four by open competition), two chaplains, an organist, a school master, six lay clerks and sixteen choristers. The hall is of unusually large dimensions, and is truly a noble room: and the chapel, 291 feet long, 45½ feet wide and 78 feet high, with its splendid fan-traceried roof, is well known as one of the finest examples of late Perpendicular work in the kingdom: the foundation stone was laid in 1441, but only a small portion of the college was built during the life of the founder: Edward IV. robbed the foundation and did not advance the work, which indeed stood still during the civil commotions of this time; and it was not till the reign of Henry VII. that the exterior was completed, the windows and internal fittings being added in the time of Henry VIII.: the windows, all of which are stained, are justly celebrated for their richness and beauty: the west window, presented by F. E. Stacey esq. late fellow of the college, and representing "The Last Judgment," was finished in 1879 at a cost of upwards of £2,000. The college presents to thirty-seven benefices, and to one alternately with another patron.

MAGDALENE COLLEGE.

Visitor—The possessor of the Audley End Estate, now Lord Braybrooke, who also appoints the Master.

This college, situated on the further bank of the Cam, was founded by Thomas, Baron Audley, in 1542, on the site of an ancient Benedictine Priory, a part of which is still traditionally supposed to exist in the southern angle of the college buildings. The original foundation was for a Master and eight Fellows, but the endowment was found to be sufficient only for four. The fellowships have since been seventeen in number, but are now only six; though, under the statutes of 1860, they will hereafter be eight, with twelve scholarships. The college buildings consist of two courts, a hall, chapel, library, including the "Bibliotheca Pepysiana," a fine gabled building in the Renaissance style, at the back of the second court, with an open colonnade and balustraded parapet; here is preserved in the original presses the library of Samuel Pepys, including his celebrated diary. The college presents to six benefices.

PEMBROKE COLLEGE.

Visitor—The Sovereign.

Pembroke College, situated on the east side of Trumpington street, was founded 1347 by Mary, daughter of Guy de Chastillon, Comte de St. Paul and widow of Aymer de Valence, 2nd Earl of Pembroke, for a Master, six Fellows and two Scholars. The college consists of two courts of nearly equal size. The old portion of the structure is remarkable for the venerable appearance of its buildings, so that Queen Elizabeth on visiting it apostrophised the college in the words:—"O domus antiqua et religiosa." The chapel, one of the most elegant and best proportioned in the University, was built from a design of Sir Christopher Wren, at the sole expense of his uncle, Matthew Wren, Bishop of Ely (1638-67), and was enlarged in 1881. The hall and library are also well proportioned and elegant rooms: the new buildings, completed in 1883, occupy the angle formed by Pembroke street and Downing lane, and were erected from designs by Mr. J. Oldrid Scott F.S.A. architect. The present foundation consists of a Master, thirteen Fellows and twenty-six Scholars. The college presents to twelve benefices.

QUEENS' COLLEGE.

Visitor—H.M. The Queen.

This society was founded in 1446 by Margaret of Anjou, Queen of Henry VI. for a President and four Fellows. The progress of the college was interrupted by civil commotions, and it was not till 1465 that Elizabeth Woodville, the consort of Edward IV. refounded it for a President, nineteen Fellows, and forty-five Scholars. The buildings of this college, principally of brick, have a singularly quaint and picturesque appearance, and include a curious cloistered walk and gallery in the President's Lodge, a bell turret erected in 1849, and an antique wooden bridge leading across the river: the gateway tower is enriched with lierne vaulting. The valuable library was catalogued about 1829 by the well-known Rev. Thomas Hartwell Horne B.D. The hall, a work of the 15th century, has been decorated from the designs of Mr. G. F. Bodley A.R.A., F.S.A. A new building containing thirty-two sets of rooms was completed in 1887, and subsequently a new chapel, to replace the original chapel, built in 1448, but lately found too small, was erected at a cost of about £12,000, subscribed by members of the college and their friends, and dedicated by the Bishop of Ely in Oct. 1891. The chapel, which stands parallel to the old chapel, on the north side of Walnut-Tree court, is an embattled structure of red brick and Ancaster stone, 107 feet in length and 34 feet wide, in the later English Gothic style, also from designs by Mr. G. F. Bodley, and consists of chapel and ante-chapel with a vestry at the east end, next Queen's lane; there are two entrances, that on the south side being enriched with carved work and panelling: the chapel is divided from the ante-chapel by a screen of carved oak, presented by the Weller-Poley family, of Boxted Hall, Suffolk, and supported on the west side by wooden pillars; on the loft above stands the organ, to be replaced in Sept. 1892 by a new instrument now in course of construction; the chapel proper is fitted with carved oak stalls, panelled at the back and overhung by a continuous coved canopy, and is returned at the west end against the screen; the reredos of wood, richly carved, painted and gilt, incloses three pictures of the Cologne school, representing the "Betrayal," "Resurrection" and "Ascension," once forming the altar-piece of the old chapel, but until now hung for many years in the President's Lodge; the stained east window is a memorial to the late Dr. William Wright, a Fellow of the college and Professor of Arabic: on the south side are three stained windows transferred from the old chapel: the roof is panelled and decorated with colour and gilding, and there is a handsome brass lectern: in 1642 the President, Fellows and Scholars of this college were ejected, with but one exception, for refusing to subscribe the covenant. The society now consists of a President, twelve Fellows, one Fellow on the Edwards' foundation, about twenty-two Scholars and four Exhibitioners. The college presents to eleven benefices.

ST. CATHARINE'S COLLEGE.

Visitor—H.M. The Queen.

This society, formerly called Catharine Hall, was founded in 1473 by Robert Wodelarke D.D. Provost of King's and Chancellor of the University, under a Charter from Edward IV. for a Master and three Fellows. The endowment of the foundation was much increased by the ample benefaction of Mrs. Ramsden, of Norton, in the county of York, the Rev. C. W. Burrell, Mr. Yorke and others. The present society consists of a Master, who is ex-officio a canon of Norwich cathedral, six Fellows, and twenty-six Scholars. The buildings, chiefly erected about 1700, are principally of brick, in a heavy Italian style: in the chapel are buried Sir William Dawes bart. archbishop of York (1714-24), and Dr. Eachard, Master of the college (1675-96), and there is a monument to Dr. John Addenbrooke, founder of the hospital of that name, who died 7 June, 1719, and is also buried here. The college presents to seven benefices.

ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE.

Visitor—The Bishop of Ely.

This college was erected on the site of the ancient Hospital of St. John the Evangelist (founded by Henry Frost, A.D. 1134), first by Bishop de Balsham, before he moved his society to Peter House, in 1284, and next by Henry VII. in 1500. The Lady Margaret, Countess of Richmond and Derby, mother of Henry VII. had already done so much for the University of Cambridge by endowing Christ's College, and a professorship and readership in divinity that she intended to have otherwise bestowed the remainder of her large property; but her confessor, Bishop Fisher, of Rochester, afterwards Chancellor of the University, persuaded her to appropriate it to the purpose of erecting and endowing this large and noble college: her death, and the refusal of Henry VIII. to carry out her design, threw considerable difficulties in the way, but eventually Pope Julius II. issued a decretory bill in 1510, authorizing the dissolution of St. John's Hospital and the establishment of the college of St. John the Evangelist. The charter of foundation is dated April 9th, 1511, and the building was then immediately commenced under the constant care and superintendence of the first Master, Robert Shorton, whose appointment was of the same date as the foundation of the college. In 1516 thirty-one Fellows were appointed, the original endowment having provided for fifty, but Henry VIII. having seized the greater part of the college lands and given in exchange land of far less value, the restricted funds would not provide for any larger number. The endowments, however, have been greatly augmented by the munificence of a long succession of benefactors; and the college now consists of a Master, fifty-six Fellows, sixty foundation scholars, nine sizars proper, forty-two other sizars, and an organist. The original part of the college, situated on the right bank of the river, consists of three courts, built of red brick, the entire length from east to west being about 500 feet. The new court, which is on the opposite bank, and approached by a covered stone bridge, is in the Gothic style, from designs by Thomas Rickman, well known as a writer on mediæval architecture: in the first court remain the foundations of the old chapel; the new chapel, erected from designs by the late Sir George Gilbert Scott R.A. and consecrated 12 May, 1869, is a magnificent cruciform building in the Decorated style of the time of Edward III. consisting of choir, nave, transepts and a pinnacled tower at the intersection, 163 feet in height : the tracery of the windows, many of which are filled with stained glass, is rich and varied ; the great west window, erected by the members of the Lady Margaret Boat Club, is a memorial to the foundress ; the interior is adorned with coloured marbles, and the roof is richly decorated ; the fine stalls of the old chapel have been transferred to the new, as well as a mural tablet to Thomas Baker B.D. a celebrated antiquary, d. 1740 ; and there is also here a mural tablet, removed from the old church of St. Mary the Great, and inscribed to Henry Kirke White, the poet, who died 19 Oct. 1806, when an undergraduate of the college : north-west of the chapel is the Master's lodge, erected by the same architect, in the Tudor style, on a site added to that of the college. Between the chapel and the Master's lodge, a new building, containing 18 sets of rooms and several lecture rooms, was erected in 1887-8, from the plans of Mr. F. C. Penrose, architect, the style being the same as that of the second court. The library is extensive and valuable. The college presents to fifty benefices.

St. Peter's College.

Visitor — The Bishop of Ely.

This society, commonly known as Peterhouse, is the most ancient of the collegiate bodies of Cambridge ; it originally consisted of two hostels belonging to the Friars of Penance, purchased for the use of students by Hugh de Balsham, Sub-Prior of Ely, in 1257. When Bishop of Ely, he obtained a royal charter of incorporation in 1284, and endowed a college for a Master and fourteen Scholars, leaving 300 marks by his will for the erection of new buildings in the neighbourhood of the two ancient hostels, part of which remain in the south doorway of the present hall. It was named from the church of St. Peter, which stood near it, on the site of the present church of St. Mary the Less. The Master was until 1861 chosen by the Bishop of Ely, from two persons nominated to him after election by the body of Fellows ; but since then the Master has been elected by the Fellows absolutely. The present foundation consists of the Master, eleven Fellows, and twenty-two Scholars. The former Bye-Fellowships have been consolidated in the general scholarship foundation. The buildings, on the west side of Trumpington street, consist of three courts : in the centre of the court next the street is the chapel, a small building, containing some fine stained windows of Munich glass, including the large east window, and eight others inserted by subscription. The college possesses a valuable library, enriched by John Cosin, bishop of Durham (1660-74), a former Master and a great benefactor to the college. The hall contains some ancient portraits, including those of the founder and several of the Masters of the college. The college presents to ten benefices ; to one alternately with another patron ; and to the mastership of one endowed school.

Sidney Sussex College.

Visitor—The heir of the foundress, Baron de L'Isle and Dudley.

This college, usually called Sidney, was founded on the side of a monastery of Grey Friars, by Lady Frances Sidney, widow of Thomas Ratcliffe, Earl of Sussex, by will in 1588, for a Master, ten Fellows, and twenty Scholars and was incorporated by a charter of Queen Elizabeth granted in 1594 to Henry, Earl of Kent and Sir John Harrington, executors of the Countess, under the title of "the College of the Lady Frances Sidney Sussex." The devise was insufficient for more than seven Fellows at first, but subsequent benefactions have augmented the foundation, which now consists of a Master, ten Fellows and twenty-four Scholars, and there are attached lectureships in mathematics and natural science on the Taylor foundation. The buildings, on the east side of Sidney street, consists of two courts in the later Gothic style, the first 98 by 77 feet, and the latter somewhat smaller. The chapel and library were rebuilt in 1780 ; the former is an elegant building with an excellent altar-piece by Francesco Pittoni, of "The Flight into Egypt." The library consists chiefly of classical and theological works, with a separate collection of mathematical and scientific works, forming the Taylor library ; and there is also a chemical laboratory for the use of students in natural science. The hall is a well-proportioned room, about 60 feet in length, with a music gallery supported on pillars and forming a vestibule, and has a handsome bay window at the upper end. Subsequent to 1832 the buildings were extensively renovated under the direction of Sir Jeffery Wyattville. A new block of buildings has recently been erected in the Fellows' garden from designs by Mr. J. L. Pearson R.A., F.S.A. The college presents to eight benefices.

Trinity College.

Visitor—The Sovereign, who has also the exclusive appointment of the Master.

This large and magnificent foundation occupies the site of the ancient societies of St. Michael's House, the King's Hall, Phiswick's Hostel and Oving's Inn, and also Gregory's, Margaret's, Catharine's, Gerard's and Tyler's Hostels : out of these societies, all of which were duly surrendered for the purpose, Trinity College was founded in 1546, and originally endowed by Henry VIII. and afterwards augmented by his daughter Queen Mary, for the maintenance of a Master, sixty Fellows, and seventy-four scholars : there are also four Chaplains, an organist, a body of Lay Clerks and Choristers, and sixteen Sizars and also Sub-Sizars. The government of the college is vested in a council, of which the Master is a member, ex-officio. The principal entrance to the college is from Trinity street, through an elegant turreted gateway called "the King's Gate," ornamented on both sides with several statues in niches, among which is one of Henry VIII. In the centre of the principal court is a large open octagonal conduit with domed roof from which the college is supplied with excellent water ; the chapel, begun by Queen Mary and completed by her sister Elizabeth, is a spacious edifice in the late Perpendicular style, 204 feet long and 34 feet wide, with stalls for the Master and Fellows and seats below for the students : over the communion table is a baldacchino : in the ante-chapel is a marble statue of Sir Isaac Newton by Roubiliac and statues of Francis Bacon Viscount St. Albans and Dr. Isaac Barrow, who was Master of Trinity from 1672 to 1677 ; Lord Macaulay and Dr. Whewell, Master 1841-66, who enlarged the College buildings by the erection of two courts on the opposite side of Trinity street ; the hall, library and other buildings are unusually spacious and magnificent and contain portraits of the Earl of Essex, Sir Isaac Newton, Shakespeare, Cowley, Dryden and Barrow, the library comprises about 90,000 volumes of books and 3,000 manuscripts, many of them of great value and rarity, besides various curious and interesting objects, including Sir Isaac Newton's telescope and mathematical instruments, and there is also here a seated figure of Lord Byron by Thorwaldsen and a series of busts of distinguished members of the College. The College presents absolutely to sixty-three benefices and to two in turn with other patrons, and to the mastership of one endowed grammar school.

This college was founded in memory of the late Dr. George Augustus Selwyn, bishop of New Zealand (1841-67) and of Lichfield (1867-78), with the twofold object of giving a University education in accordance with the principles of the Church of England, and of conferring the benefits of college life and teaching on those who cannot afford the usual expenses at the older colleges; it stands in six acres of land adjoining the Grange road, and at present consists of two blocks of buildings in the Tudor style from designs by Sir A. W. Blomfield KT., M.A., A.R.A., F.S.A. containing 126 sets of rooms, with eight sets of tutors' rooms, a master's lodge, a temporary chapel and a hall. New buildings were opened in 1889. There are now (1892) 124 undergraduates in residence; the college was incorporated by royal charter September 13th, 1882, and recognised as a public hostel by the University in February, 1883.

NEWNHAM COLLEGE.

Newnham College was founded in 1871 by the amalgamation of the Newnham Hall Company with the Association for Promoting the Higher Education of Women in Cambridge, with the object of establishing and maintaining at or near Cambridge a residence in which women students might reside and study, and to do such other things as are incidental or conducive to the advancement of education and learning among women in Cambridge and elsewhere; the buildings consist of three halls occupying a site of about 8½ acres, the latest being erected in 1887, and the whole affords rooms for the principal and vice-principal, resident lecturers and about 140 students: there is also a library, dining hall, lecture rooms, chemical and biological laboratories and a gymnasium. By a Grace of the Senate in 1881 duly qualified students who have fulfilled the conditions as to residence required from members of the University are now admitted to the Honour Examinations of the University. Instruction is given both within the College and at intercollegiate and University lectures and classes, by resident lecturers and members of the University.

RIDLEY HALL.

Ridley Hall, at Newnham, erected in 1879-82, is a large and handsome structure of brick in the Tudor-Gothic style, from designs by Mr. C. L. Luck, architect, standing in its own grounds of some 2½ acres in extent, the main front of the building looking east, and the space behind being laid out in gardens and tennis lawns: the buildings include principal's house, rooms for the vice-principal, library, reading-room, dining-hall, the Carr library, and twenty sets of students' rooms: the library, which contains about 3,000 volumes, is used also for a lecture-room: in 1891 new buildings were added, from the designs of Mr. W. Wallace, comprising a residence for the vice-principal and 10 students and a small but handsome chapel in the Perpendicular style, erected at the cost of a former student. Ridley Hall is a hostel for students who are graduates of the University and candidates for holy orders in the Church of England, its founders and promoters being members of the Evangelical School: the number of students has now risen to a yearly average of 30. Students enter on the personal permission of the principal, with the consent of their own College authorities, subject to the revising power of the London Committee of the Hall; the length of residence averages three terms.

AYERST HALL.

Ayerst Hall, on the south side of Parker's piece, is a building in the Queen Anne style, and was opened by the Vice-Chancellor in 1884, under statutes confirmed by the Queen in Council, in 1858, its primary object being to enable theological students, who might otherwise prepare for holy orders at theological colleges only, to keep terms at Cambridge; the college is open, however, to candidates for all University examinations.

AFFILIATED COLLEGES.

The University has power to adopt as an affiliated College in any place within the United Kingdom or in any part of the British dominions any institution founded for the education of adult students, under such conditions as may from time to time be determined, and varying as may be necessary in different cases. Students of affiliated colleges who have continued members of them for not less than two years, and have attended the lectures and passed the examinations required, if admitted members of the University, are deemed to have already kept three of the terms required for any degree, and are excused the Previous examination. The University may at any time terminate its connexion with any institution received as an affiliated college.

The institutions at present admitted are:—

University College, Nottingham
St. David's College, Lampeter
Firth College, Sheffield
The University of New Zealand
The University of Adelaide
The University College of Wales, Aberystwith

NON-COLLEGIATE STUDENTS.

Under a statute passed in 1869 students may, under certain conditions, be admitted members of the University without being members of any college; such students keep terms by residing in Cambridge, in lodgings duly licensed by the University authorities; all applications to be addressed to the Censor, at the Fitzwilliam Hall.

The area of the municipal borough, including the Colleges and Halls, is 3,470 acres, and the population in 1881 was as follows; but the census having been taken in the interval between terms, the great body of professors, fellows and students were not in residence:—

CARLETON (or CARLETON-CUM-WILLINGHAM) is a village and parish, on the borders of Suffolk, 7 miles south from Newmarket, 8 north-east from Linton, 5 south-east from the Six Mile Bottom station and 5 south-south-east from the Dullingham station, both on the Cambridge and Newmarket branch of the Great Eastern railway, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Radfield, union and petty sessional division of Linton, Newmarket county court district, rural deanery of Fordham, archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Peter is a small but ancient building of rubble in the Early English style, consisting of chancel and nave and a western turret containing 2 bells: there are 100 sittings. The register dates from the year 1600. The living is a rectory, including the ancient chapelry of Willingham in this parish, net yearly value £280, including 35½ acres of glebe, in the gift of the trustees of the Rev. John McMahon Wilder B.D. rector of Brandeston, Norfolk, and held since 1881 by the Rev. Alfred Edward Gover M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. There is a small benefaction called "Brigg's Charity," of 10s. yearly value. Here are two manors: Viscount Hampden is lord of the manor of Carleton Parva and R. B. Jenyns esq. of the manor of Lopham Hall. Viscount Hampden, R. B. Jenyns esq. and William Henry Hall esq. D.L., J.P. of Six Mile Bottom, are the principal landowners. The soil is various; subsoil, clay, chalk and gravel. The crops are wheat, barley, oats and beans. The area is 2,200 acres; rateable value, £2,107; the population in 1891 was 324. By an order which came into operation March 25th, 1886, a detached part of Brinkley, in Newmarket union, was amalgamated with this parish.

CASTLE CAMPS is a large and straggling parish 5 miles south-east from Linton, and 3 south-east from Bartlow station on the Great Eastern railway (Cambridge and Melford branch), in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Chilford, union and petty sessional division of Linton, county court district of Haverhill, rural deanery of Camps second division and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of All Saints is an edifice of flint and rubble, with stone dressings, in the Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a very fine peal of 5 bells: in the church is a marble monument to Sir James Reynolds kt. appointed a Baron of the Exchequer in 1740 and knighted 23 May, 1745; he died 20 May, 1747: the old tower fell down in 1850 and was rebuilt in 1851 in the Decorated style: the porch was rebuilt in 1855 and the chancel and nave restored in 1883: there are 246 sittings, two-thirds being free. The register dates from the year 1565. The living is a rectory; average tithe rent-charge £490, net yearly value, £437, with 71 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Governors of the Charterhouse, London, and held since 1879 by the Rev. Edward Lynch Pearson M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. Here is a Congregational chapel, with sittings for 350 persons. The charities amount to £13 yearly, principally for fuel. This and the neighbouring parish of Shudy Camps are said to have derived their names from ancient encampments in these parishes. Here was once a castle of the De Veres, Earls of Oxford; on the site which adjoins the church there is now a farmhouse, surrounded by a deep moat. The Governors of the Charterhouse, London, are lords of the manor and principal landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, chalk and clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 2,703 acres; rateable value, £2,847; the population in 1891 was 859. By a provisional order which came into operation March 25th, 1885, all that portion of Helions Bumpsted (Essex) parish in Cambridgeshire was amalgamated with this parish.

Half a mile west of the church is CAMPS END, a hamlet of this parish.

Parish Clerk, Henry Wallis.

CAXTON is a decayed town and parish, on Ermine street, the Roman road between London and York, and on the borders of Huntingdonshire; it is the head of a petty sessional division, and of the union of Caxton and Arrington, and is about 12 miles west from Cambridge, 12 north from Royston, 8 east from St. Neots and 2½ north-west from the Old North Road station on the Bedford and Cambridge line of the London and North Western railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Long Stowe, county court district of St. Neots, rural deanery of Bourn and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Andrew is a building of stone and flint, chiefly Early English, but with portions in the Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and a low embattled western tower containing 5 bells: the chancel retains a piscina with Geometric tracery in the head, and a plain sedile: the nave is curiously placed on a higher level than the chancel, and is separated from the aisle by an arcade of four very lofty arches, carried on clustered piers: there are several memorials of the Barnard family, who had a seat at Caxton, and a memorial window to the late John Augustus Wright, surgeon, of this parish, d. 1869: there were formerly brasses to Sir John Myton, vicar, with effigy, 1479; John Cretyng, 1500, and Walter Cretyng, 1483: the chancel was redecorated in 1874 and the church was completely restored in 1874: there are 195 sittings. The church of Caxton, which had belonged to the priory of Lewes, was in 1351 given to the Dean and Canons of Windsor. Dowsing, the Puritan iconoclast, on coming here removed "a cross on ye steeple, and one on ye church, and 20 superstitious pictures." The register dates from the year 1741. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £35, gross yearly value £300, net £229, with residence and including 9 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Canons of Windsor, and held since 1873 by the Rev. Henry Meade Smythe M.A. of Trinity College, Oxford. A vicarage house was erected in 1868, at a cost of upwards of £1,500. Here is a Baptist chapel with 200 sittings. The charities amount to £18 yearly and are for fuel and clothing. Matthew Paris, the historian, probably connected with the Paris family of Hildersham and born about 1195, is said to have been a native of this place. Kennels were erected here for the Cambridgeshire hounds in 1871: Cambridge, St. Ives, Huntingdon and St. Neots are convenient places for hunting visitors. The town had formerly a market, which was originally granted to Sir Baldwin de Frèville in the year 1247; it was then held on Monday, but the day was afterwards changed to Tuesday, on which day it was held until the early part of the present century, since which time it has become obsolete. A police station was erected in 1859. Major James John Gape J.P. of St. Michael's Manor, St. Alban's, who is lord of the manor, Francis William Edward Beldam esq. B.A., J.P. of Toft Rectory, and Capt. Sidney Stanley M.A., J.P, D.L. of Long Stowe Hall, are the principal landowners. The soil here is stiff and clayey and the subsoil a stiff blue gault. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 2,168 acres; rateable value, £2,024; the population in 1891 was 515, including 94 officers and inmates in the workhouse.

Parish Clerk, George Horton.

CHATTERIS—in Domesday Book written "Cetriz" and "Cateriz," by some old authors "Chateriz," and by Camden "Cheaterizt"—is a parish and market town with a station on the Wisbech and St. Ives branch of the Great Eastern railway, 71 miles from London by road and 83 by railway, 19 south from Wisbech, 25½ north-by-west from Cambridge, 10¾ north-by-east from St. Ives and 12 north-west from the city of Ely by road, but 26½ by railway, in the Northern division of the county, hundred and union of North Witchford, in the Isle of Ely, petty sessional subdivision of Chatteris and county court district of March, rural deanery of March, and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. The Local Government Act, 1858, was adopted here July 11, 1873, and the town is governed by a Local Board of 9 members and lighted with gas from works the property of the Chatteris Gas and Coke Co. Limited: the water supply is derived from wells. The church of St. Peter is an ancient building of stone, in various styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with a low spire containing a clock and 5 bells: the chancel is divided from the body of the church by a handsome screen: there are 750 sittings, 500 being free. The register dates from the year 1650. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge £650, net yearly value £1,200, with 330½ acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1877 by the Rev. Sidney Anderson Smith M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. The Particular Baptist chapel in Hive lane was endowed by Miss Claridge in 1800 with lands now producing £50 yearly for the support of a minister, and has sittings for 250; there is another in Park street with 900 sittings; and a General Baptist chapel in West Park street holding 700 persons; the Congregational chapel, Park street, is a brick building in the Tudor style seating 350; there is a Primitive Methodist chapel at Slade End with about 200 sittings; the Wesleyan chapel, New road, was enlarged in 1855, and now has about 600 sittings. The Society of Friends have a meeting house in High street with sittings for about 300. There are two Cemeteries, both in New street: the Parochial cemetery, formed in 1856, covers an area of nearly 6 acres, with two mortuary chapels, and is under the control of a Burial Board: the General cemetery was formed by a company in 1850 and is 3A. 2R. 13P. in extent.

The trade of Chatteris consists almost entirely in supplying the neighbourhood with necessaries, but it is also an important thoroughfare, being on the direct road from Norfolk to Huntingdon and the western country, and also on the road between Peterborough and Newmarket. The Corn Exchange is in High street, and the Literary Institute in Park street. The market, established in 1834, is held on Friday, and there are two fairs. Here are two banks, a brewery and engineering, mat and rope works. At Ferry farm, in this parish, R. G. Heaton esq. has a stud farm for the breeding of horses. The poor's land of 48 acres produces about £140 yearly. A convent of Benedictine nuns, dedicated to St. Mary, was founded here about the year 980, by Alwina, niece to King Edgar, and wife of Athelstan, Earl of the East Angles; in the reign of Henry I. the nunnery was annexed to the church of Ely, and wholly dissolved in 1538. Many antiquities have been dug up here in excavating for gravel; not many years since part of the skeleton of an elephant was found, ten feet below the level of the ground; and in 1824 an earthen jar, containing about 1,000 copper coins, was ploughed up, about 2 miles from the village; they were mostly Roman, of the Emperors Constantius (A.D. 305) and Constantine (A.D. 306); several other relics of the Romans have been found at several times hereabout, as well as celts and a double-edged sword, the hilt of which was embossed with figures of men fighting; this, when found, was in a perfect state of preservation. In several parts of the fen lands large oak trees have been brought to the surface from a great depth. Near here is Vermuyden's Drain, so named after Sir Cornelius Vermuyden, a celebrated engineer, who drained the Bedford level in 1649-53. St. Matthias' Court, a piece of land of 24 acres, formerly held in trust by the Bishops of Ely, was conveyed in 1869 to 24 inhabitants of Chatteris as trustees, and the rent is applied to the general improvement of the town. John Dunn Gardner esq. J.P., D.L. of Grosvenor place, London S W is lord of the manors of Chatteris Ramsey and Bartle-super-Gardiners; Thomas Jennings esq. of Newmarket, is lord of the manor of Chatteris Nunns; the Master and fellows of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, are lords of the manor of Chatteris. The principal landowners are John Dunn Gardner esq. Harry Spencer Waddington esq. of Mildenhall, Suffolk, John Westwood William Chafy esq. John Richardson Fryer esq. J.P., D.L.; the Master and fellows of Christ's College, Cambridge, John Nix esq. J.P. The Limes, Chatteris; Edwin John Richardson esq. of Westmoor House, Thomas Golden esq. James Curtis Smith esq. of Grove House, William Mason esq. of Somersham, Hunts, Thomas Richards esq. J.P. of Wimblington, Cecil Dunn Gardner esq. and Arthur Ruston esq. The soil is clay, loam and fen land; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, mangolds, carrots and potatoes. The land around has been rendered very productive by draining and gaulting. The area is 12,988 acres; rateable value, £26,193; the population in 1891 was 4,587.

Parish Clerk, Joseph Basham.

CHERRY HINTON is a parish, containing a few extensive farms: the village is in a pleasant position about 2½ miles south-east from Cambridge, in the Eastern division of the county, Flendish hundred, Bottisham petty sessional division, union of Chesterton, Cambridge county court district, rural deanery of Cambridge and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Andrew is a fine and highly interesting structure of stone and clunch, in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells: the chancel, of rich and beautiful Early English work, is lighted by eight lancet windows on each side, arranged in couplets: a cinquefoiled arcading, on banded shafts, extends along the north and south walls, and there is a double piscina and three graduated sedilia of very fine workmanship; a carved oak screen of Perpendicular date separates the chancel from the nave, which has Early English arcades: there is a plain circular font on a pedestal, and several monuments to the Serocold family: the nave and aisles were thoroughly restored in 1880, under the superintendence of the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott R.A. architect, and the chancel was restored six years later under the direction of Mr. J. T. Micklethwaite F.S.A. architect: there are 275 sittings. The register dates from 1538, and is in good preservation. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value from 106 acres of glebe £212, with residence, in the gift of St. Peter's College, Cambridge, and held since 1890 by the Rev. Walter Beck. The vicarage was built in 1818 by the Rev. Bewick Bridge M.A. then vicar. The Baptist chapel, built in 1883, has 300 sittings. A sum of £20 yearly, arising from cottages and land in the parish, is distributed by the vicar and churchwardens every two years to the poor of the parish; £3 6s. 8d. yearly arising from other charities is also distributed. The village feast is held in the first week in October. At the south end of the village are the Cambridge Water Works: the engine-house and reservoir were erected in 1855, at a cost of £40,000. Nether Hall is a mile and a half south from the village and the manor of Uphall a little to the north. The manorial rights are vested in St. Thomas's Hospital, London, St. Peter's College, Cambridge, and William Ward Asplen esq. of Foxton Hall, and these are also the principal landowners. The soil is light and the subsoil chalky. The chief crops are wheat, barley, beans, oats and turnips. The area is 2,043 acres; rateable value, £6,352; the population in 1881 was 869.

Parish Clerk, William Archer.

CHESTERTON is a parish which gives name to a hundred and rural deanery, and is the head of a poor-law union, and by the "Boundary Act, 1868," a portion was included in the parliamentary borough of Cambridge. The village is a long, straggling place on the north bank of the river Cam, a mile and a half north from Cambridge station, in the Western division of the county, petty sessional division and county court district of Cambridge, and in the rural deanery of Chesterton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The parish was constituted a Local Government district in 1880, and is governed by a Local Board of 9 members. It is lighted with gas and supplied with water by the Cambridge Gas and Water Companies. The church of St. Andrew, picturesquely situated near the river, is a large and interesting embattled structure of flint, chiefly in the Decorated style with Perpendicular additions, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of seven bays, aisles, north porch and an embattled western tower, with a beautiful octagonal spire, and containing a clock and five bells: the chancel was restored about 1844, when a piscina and three sedilia of Late Perpendicular work were discovered: there are remains of a Late screen and a roof of the 15th century: the nave is Decorated, but has a Perpendicular clerestory and roof, some of the corbels bearing shields of arms: on the spandrels between the arches and in other parts of the church are remains of frescoes, c. 1300: in the north aisle is a plain sepulchral recess; and both this and the south aisle have finely-carved corbels: the chancel still retains some good chestnut benches, richly carved: in the churchyard are several stone coffin slabs, bearing floriated crosses: there are 650 sittings, 600 being free. The register dates from the year 1564. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £152, net yearly value £300, with residence and including 90 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Master and fellows of Trinity College, Cambridge, and held since 1890 by the Rev. John Gregory Forbes M.A. of that college. St. Luke's is a district parish, formed April 1, 1881: the church, built in 1874 at a cost of £10,000, is an edifice of white brick and stone in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, transept, nave of five bays, and a tower with spire, the principal entrance being under the tower: there are 770 sittings, all free. The register dates from the year 1874. The living is a vicarage without endowment, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1892 by the Rev. Arthur James Micklethwaite M.A. of St. Peter's College, Cambridge. The Baptist chapel, in Church street, was erected in 1842, and enlarged and restored in 1863: the Wesleyan chapel, in High street, was erected in 1858. The Congregational church, in the Victoria road, was built in 1884 at a cost of £4,000. The General Cemetery, in the Histon road, opened in December, 1843, and covering an area of four acres, has one chapel, and is under the control of a private company, the offices being at 7 Downing street, Cambridge. Her Majesty's Prison and the Shire Hall at Castle hill are both in this parish, for an account of which see Cambridge. The Victoria Friendly Society's Asylum, for old members of friendly societies, opened in 1841, is also here. Here was once an ancient fortified house, said to have been built by the Abbot of Vercellis; a portion of this building, massively constructed and probably a well-room, still exists. About £60 yearly from land is distributed in fuel and money. In the parish are brick and tile manufactories, breweries, and boathouses, where boats for the use of the undergraduates of the University are built and kept. The boathouses built by the Cambridge University Boat Club in 1882, Christ's College in 1886, Caius in 1887, and Jesus in 1882 add much to the picturesqueness of the river at this point. The Recreation Ground is situated near the church. The manor belongs to the Benson family; and the principal landowners are Trinity, St. Catharine's, Clare, Queens', and St. John's Colleges and Trinity Hall, Cambridge, and Mrs. Wragg-Gurney and Mr. E. Bell. The soil is light, and the subsoil gravel and blue clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, beans, roots and seeds. The area is 2,729 acres; rateable value, £23,690; the population in 1871 was 4,102, and in 1881 was 5,706, and in 1891, 7,526. The population of Chesterton St. Andrew's in 1881 was 1,850, that of Chesterton St. Luke's being then 3,904.

Parish Clerk, Edwin Wilson.

CHETISHAM (or CHETTISHAM) is an ecclesiastical parish formed from the civil parish of St. Mary, Ely, and enlarged July 7th, 1876, about a quarter of a mile west from the high road from Ely to Littleport, 2 miles north from the former, with a station on the Ely and Peterborough branch of the Great Eastern railway, 77 miles from London, in the Eastern division of the county, jurisdiction of the city of Ely, hundred, union, petty sessional division and county court district of Ely, rural deanery of Ely and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. The church of St. Michael is a small but ancient building of rubble in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western turret containing one bell: the church was restored in 1889, including a new roof, at a cost of £700: there are 100 sittings, nearly all being free. The register of baptisms dates from 1701 and marriages 1754; burials are registered at St. Mary's, in Ely. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £120, including 31½ acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Ely, and held since 1874 by the Rev. Richard Winkfield M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, who is master of the Cathedral Grammar school, Ely, where he resides. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are lords of the manor and sole landowners. The land is heavy, principally arable. The chief crops are wheat, barley and beans. The population in 1891 was 151.

The WOODHOUSE estate and KETLESWORTH, now in the occupation of Mr. Silcock, comprise the parish.

Parish Clerk, William Kirby.

CHILDERLEY is a parish, 9 miles north-west from Cambridge, 13 north-east from St. Neots, 6½ north-east from the Old North Road station on the Bedford and Cambridge branch of the London and North Western railway and about 6 miles from Swavesey station on the Great Eastern railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred and union of Chesterton, petty sessional division and county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Bourn and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. There were originally two churches here, one of which was dedicated to St. Mary; both were destroyed and the village depopulated by Sir John Cutts bart. of Childerley, about the middle of the 17th century, for the purpose of forming a deer park. Divine service is now conducted in the chapel attached to Childerley Hall. The living is a rectory, average yearly value from tithe rent-charge £30, in the gift of John Clayton esq. and held since 1890 by the Rev. Robert Wells Close M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, who is rector of and resides at Conington. Childerley Hall is a mansion in the Elizabethan style, was rebuilt upon the foundation of the manor-house, the old seat of the Cutts family: to this house Charles I. was brought by the messengers of Cromwell, after his seizure at Holdenby Hall, in Northamptonshire; the ancient and elaborately painted and wainscoted room which he occupied, now called by his name, is carefully preserved, and the paintings in it have been restored. The farm buildings on the estate are most extensive, and include a barn 333 feet in length. The soil is strong clay; subsoil, yellow clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 1,052 acres; rateable value, £593; the population in 1881 was 46.

CHIPPENHAM is a village and parish, 5 miles north-east from Newmarket station, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Staploe, Newmarket union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Mildenhall, archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Margaret is a building of stone in the Gothic style, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, containing 5 bells: the chancel was restored in 1886 and a stained east window inserted in memory of Joseph Sidney Tharp, who died March 4th, 1875, and Laura, his second wife (daughter of Sir John Trollope, and sister of John, 1st Baron Kesteven), who died 19 Jan. 1877: there are three other memorial windows to various members of the same family: near the porch is a marble tomb, erected over the grave of the Rt. Hon. Sir Thomas Erskine May K.C.B., P.C., D.C.L. Baron Farnborough, clerk of the House of Commons 1871-86, d. May 17th, 1886: the church provides sittings for 300 persons. The register dates from the year 1595. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £236, net yearly value £184, including 19 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of William Montagu Tharp esq. D.L., J.P. and held since 1886 by the Rev. Robert William Barber M.A. of Magdalen College, Oxford. There is a Congregational chapel. Charities of £25 yearly are distributed in money and kind. Chippenham Hall, standing in a park of about 400 acres, is the seat of William Montagu Tharp esq. D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is mixed; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat and barley. The area is 4,205 acres; rateable value, £4,677; the population in 1891 was 612, including the hamlet of BADLINGHAM 1½ miles north-east.

CONINGTON is a parish on the borders of Hunts, 10 miles north-west from Cambridge, 4 south from St. Ives station on the Great Eastern railway and 7 south-east from Huntingdon, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Papworth, petty sessional division of Cambridge, union of St. Ives, county court district of Huntingdon, rural deanery of Bourn and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Mary is an ancient edifice of brick and stone, in mixed styles, consisting of chancel, nave, north porch and a tower of stone with a spire and containing a clock and 4 bells, with the following inscriptions:—tenor, Virgo coronata duc nos ad regna beata; 2 (early 14th century), Asumpta est Maria in celum gaudent angeli laudantes bendicunt (sic) dominum; 3, Milo Grey me fecit 1635; 4th, Sancta Maria, ora pro nob's (nobis): there is a monumental vault, breast high, running the entire length of the nave on the south side, and several monuments to members of the Cotton, Askham, Hatton and Gardner families: the nave was rebuilt in red brick in 1737, by Dingley Askham esq. and the chancel in stone in 1871: there are 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £185, from 279 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1890 by the Rev. Robert Wells Close M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, who is also rector of Childerley. The town lands produce £18 yearly, which sum is applied to the purchase of fuel for the poor. The manor of Conington (Contone or Cunitone, in the Domesday Survey, A.D. 1086) was successively in the families of Connington, Dansie, Hatton, Baker and Watson: and in 1644 was purchased by Sir Thomas Cotton bart. M.P. of Connington, Hunts, son of Sir Robert Cotton bart. the founder of the famous Cottonian library; and afterwards, by the marriage of Frances, heiress of the Cotton family, to Dingley Askham esq. it thence successively descended by female heirs to the families of Hatton, of Long Stanton, and Gardner, the last named family acquiring it by the marriage of the Rev. Philip Gardner D.D. of Brynadda, Merionethshire (great-grandfather of the present owner) with Harriet, daughter of Sir Thos. Hatton, 8th bart. of Longstanton. Conington Hall, the seat of Philip Thomas Gardner esq. D.L., J.P. is an ancient mansion of brick, restored at different periods. P. T. Gardner esq. and Capt. H. M. Sproule are the principal landowners. The land is all freehold. The soil is clay and loamy gravel; subsoil, clay and gault. The chief crops are wheat, beans and barley. The area is 1,477 acres; rateable value, £8,170; the population in 1881 was 145.

COTON is a parish, half-a-mile off the road from Cambridge to St. Neots, 3½ miles west from Cambridge station in the Western division of the county, hundred of Wetherley, union of Chesterton, petty sessional division and county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Barton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Peter, which stands in the centre of the village, is a small building of stone and flint chiefly in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles with a chancel of Norman date, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, north and south porches and a Perpendicular embattled western tower, carried on arches and finished with pinnacles and spire; it contains 3 bells: the font, of Norman work, consists of a square basin on a circular stem: the church was partly rebuilt in 1880, and affords 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1630. The living is a discharged rectory, gross yearly value £80, arising from 140 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Frederick Stephen Trevor-Garrick M.A. of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge. King's, Queens', St. John's, Corpus Christi and St. Catharine's colleges, Cambridge, are the principal landowners (the last being lords of the manor). The soil is clayey; subsoil, gault; there is also a greensand stratum, which crops out and yields excellent water. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and beans. The area is 949 acres; rateable value, £1,089; the population in 1891 was 263.

COTTENHAM is a large village and parish, 4 miles north from the Histon station on the St. Ives and Cambridge branch of the Great Eastern railway, 2½ miles south-west from Oakington station on the same line and 6½ north from Cambridge, in the Western division of the county, hundred and union of Chesterton, petty sessional division and county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Chesterton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The principal street is lighted with gas from works the property of the Cottenham Gas Co. Limited. The church of All Saints is an edifice of stone and rubble in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north and south porches and lofty tower with four pinnacles containing a clock and 6 bells: the chancel is Perpendicular, and has richly carved sedilia and a piscina: the east window is a copy from one in Prior Crauden's chapel at Ely: the nave arcades are Early Decorated, and part of the tower is also of this period: there are two memorial windows and an oak chest bound with iron: in 1867 the church was partially restored and fitted with oak benches, enriched with carvings reproducing the forms of the plants, ferns and flowers of the district: there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1572. The living is a rectory, average tithe rentcharge £617, net yearly value about £600, with residence, and including 133 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1886 by the Rev. David Greig M.A. of Marischal College, Aberdeen. A Mission room, in connection with the church, was opened in November, 1882. The old Baptist chapel was erected in 1731 and rebuilt in 1856; Ebenezer Baptist chapel was built in 1837, there is also a Wesleyan chapel and a Salvation Army hall. The Nonconformist cemetery here has an area of one acre. There are eight charities, producing together about £420 yearly, which sum is expended in education and apprenticing, the maintenance of charity houses and in gifts of money to the poor, as well as bibles and prayer-books. The church and causeway are repaired out of a fund left for that purpose, producing £162 18s. yearly. The "Cottenham Philo-Union," a species of village club, opened in February, 1881, is well supplied with the principal daily and weekly papers, and has a coffee and reading room. The recreation ground on which a handsome pavilion has been erected, can be flooded in case of severe frost and used for skating. The road from Belsar's Hills to Aldreth High bridge, which was the old British road out of the Isle of Ely, runs along a corner of the parish, The ancient Carr Dyke traverses the fens, and close to it, on the boundary next Landbeach, many remains of Roman pottery have been found, and in 1855 a beautiful bronze bust was discovered on this site. This village was formerly noted for the superior quality of its cheese, produced here some years ago in large quantities, but latterly the extensive pastures have been converted into arable land. The fruit gardens are extensive and increasing and hundreds of tons of fruit are sent during the season to London, Manchester and other markets. There are six manors—viz. Crowlands, Lyles, Sames, Burdley or Harlston, Rectory manor and Pelhams. The representatives of the late Archbishop Musgrave, of York, are lords of the manors of Crowlands, Lyles and Sames; Christ's College, Cambridge, of Burdley or Harlston; the rector, of the Rectory manor; and the Dean and Chapter of Ely, of Pelhams manor: the greater part of the land in the parish has been enfranchised. The principal landowners are William Peed esq. of Histon Hall, Thomas Hall and the Messrs. Ivatt. This was the birthplace of Thomas Tenison, archbishop of Canterbury, 1694-1715. The soil is various; subsoil, loamy clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and beans, fruit and vegetable produce. The area is 6,926 acres; rateable value, £12,738; the population in 1891 was 2,518.

Parish Clerk, vacant.

COVENEY is a village and parish in the Isle of Ely, 4 miles north-west from Ely station, 7 by road, and 4 north-east from Sutton station on the Ely and St. Ives branch of the Great Eastern railway, in the Northern division of the county, South Witchford hundred, Ely union, petty sessional division and county court district and rural deanery of Ely, and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. The church of St. Peter is a thatched building of stone, dating from the 13th century, and consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western tower containing one bell: there are some interesting, though rude, carved bench ends, dating from about 1500: the church affords 160 sittings, 110 being free. The register dates from the year 1676. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £161, gross yearly value £200, including 30 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Athelstan Riley esq. of Kensington Court, and held since 1890 by the Rev. Edward Tottenham M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. The rectory house was rebuilt in 1864. Here is a Baptist chapel, and there is a Wesleyan chapel at Wardy Hill. Walter Porter esq. of the Manor House, is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are John Nix Chambers esq. Walter Porter esq. Mrs. R. C. Golding and Charles Kirk esq. of Sleaford, Lincoln. The soil is loam with clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, beans and oats. The area is 2,481 acres; rateable value, £3,628; the population of the civil parish, with Wardy Hill, in 1881 was 488.

WARDY HILL (or Wady Hill), 1 mile north-west, is a hamlet of Coveney, attached to the above. WAYHEAD, another hamlet, is 1 mile north from the parish church.

MANEA, formerly a chapelry of this parish, but now a distinct parish, is given under a separate heading.

CROXTON is a parish on the Huntingdonshire border, about 4 miles east from St. Neots station on the Great Northern main line, and 13 west from Cambridge, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Longstow, petty sessional division of Caxton, union of Caxton and Arrington, county court district of St. Neots, rural deanery of Bourn and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. James is an ancient building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 6 bells: there are several monuments to the Leeds family, and on a door on the north side is carved, in very bold relief, a curious representation of the Virgin and Child: the church affords 100 sittings. The register dates from the year 1535. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £200, with residence, and including 336 acres of glebe, in the gift of George Onslow Newton esq. D.L., J.P. and held since 1870 by the Rev. Samuel Lovick Astley Cooper M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford, rural dean of Bourn and vicar of the adjoining parish of Eltisley. The charities amount to £24 yearly, and are expended in bread and fuel for the poor. Croxton Park contains a large mansion of brick with stuccoed front, situated near the church in well-wooded grounds of about 100 acres, with a small lake, and is the seat of George Onslow Newton esq. D.L., J.P. lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is stiff clay; subsoil, gault. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 1,951 acres; rateable value, £1,517; the population in 1891 was 284.

CROYDON-cum-CLOPTON is a parish, and is generally known by the name of Croydon; it is 7 miles north-west from Royston and 4 south from Old North Road station, on the Bedford and Cambridge line of the London and North Western railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Armingford, petty sessional division of Arrington and Melbourn, union of Caxton and Arrington, county court district of Royston, rural deanery of Shingay and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of All Saints, Croydon, is described in the decree of the Bishop of Ely for the union of the two parishes, A.D. 1561, as "ampla et ornata," but seems to have been reduced; it is a structure of brick and stone, in the Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts, south porch and a tower containing one bell: the stained east window is a memorial to the wife of the Rev. R. S. B. Sandilands, late rector, to whom and to his sister other memorial windows have also been erected: the chancel was repaired in 1867, and there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1672. The living is a rectory, consisting of the vicarage of Croydon, endowed with part of the rectory and with the rectory of Clopton annexed, average tithe rent-charge £406, net yearly value £348, with 8½ acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Major Gape, and held since 1864 by the Rev. Henry Stone M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. Major James John Gape J.P. of St. Michael's Manor, St. Albans, Herts, who is lord of the manor, and the Master and Fellows of Downing College, Cambridge, are the chief landowners. The soil is clayey, and the subsoil chalk and gault. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 2,711 acres; rateable value, £2,419; the population in 1891 was 426.

DODDINGTON is a parish, formerly comprising the chapelry and market town of MARCH and the hamlets of BENWICK and WIMBLINGTON; but by an Act of Parliament passed in 1856, called the "Doddington Rectory Division Act" (19 & 20 Vict. c. 1), and which came into operation on the death of the late rector, in November, 1868, these places are now distinct parishes; it is in the Northern division of the county, hundred and union of North Witchford, Isle of Ely, petty sessional division and county court district of March and rural deanery of Ely, and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. The village is on the main road between March and Chatteris, equi-distant 4 miles from each place, and 1¼ miles south-west from Wimblington station, on the Cambridge, St. Ives and Wisbech branch of the Great Eastern railway. The church of St. Mary is an edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of a fine chancel, nave, aisles, north and south porches, vestry and a western tower with spire containing a clock and 5 bells: the chancel, separated from the nave by a carved oak screen, was restored in 1891 at a cost of £978, and a vestry, the gift of J. H. Marshall esq. of Grimsby, built at a cost of £103: the stained west window, a memorial to John Thomas Waddington esq. was presented by his widow about 1867: the stained east window was presented in 1891 by T. R. Harding esq. as a memorial to his wife and other members of the Harding family, and there are three others, besides several tablets to the Peyton family, whose family vault is under the chancel: the church affords 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1681. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £1,738, net yearly value £1,325, with residence, and including 61 acres of glebe, in the gift of Capt. Sir Algernon Francis Peyton bart. J.P. and held since 1887 by the Rev. Frederick Charles Marshall M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. This living was formerly the richest in England; but under the Act of 1856 and a previous Act in 1847 (10 & 11 Vict. c. 3) it is now divided into seven rectories, viz. Benwick, Doddington, Wimblington, March Old Town, March St. Peter, March St. John, and March St. Mary. Here are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. The principal landowners are Capt. Sir Algernon Francis Peyton bart. J.P. of Swift's House, Bicester, who is lord of the manor, Henry Spencer Waddington esq. the Duke of Manchester, Thomas Richards Harding D.L., J.P. and Robert Lamb esqrs. The Workhouse for the North Witchford Union, erected here about 1838, is a large building of light-coloured brick, and will hold 283 inmates, the average number being about 100: particulars relating to this union will be found under March. The soil is clay and fen; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, beans, oats and roots. The area is 6,845 acres; rateable value, £10,847; the population in 1891 was 1,366, including the officers and inmates in North Witchford Workhouse.

RANSONMOOR and NORMOOR are in the neighbourhood of Doddington.

Parish Clerk, Edward Lenton.

DOWNHAM (better known as LITTLE DOWNHAM) is a village and parish, 1 mile south-west from Black Bank station on the Ely and Peterborough section of the Great Eastern railway, 75 miles from London and 3 north-west from Ely, in the Northern division of the county, hundred, union, petty sessional division and county court district of Ely, rural deanery of Ely and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the bishop of the diocese (Ely). The church of St. Leonard is a structure of rubble in the Norman and Early English styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, Norman south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 4 bells, two of which are dated 1659; the church was restored and a vestry and organ chamber erected in 1890, at a cost of £1,000; it was previously reseated, and now affords 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558, but is not continuous. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £999, net yearly value about £900, with 194 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1892 by the Rev. Frederick Ferdinand Martin Schleicher Thornton, of Trinity College, Dublin, and hon. canon of Ely. About half a mile from the church are the remains of the palace erected here by John Alcock, Bishop of Ely (1486-1501), once celebrated for its beauty and magnificent exterior, but now a farm house, occupied by Mr. W. E. Stockdale; on the stonework of one part of the building, now detached, are the arms of the see —gu. three ducal crowns or; with various other devices now nearly obliterated: Matthew Wren, uncle to Sir Christopher Wren, was the last resident bishop, and died 24 April, 1667. The soil is chiefly clay, gravel, and fen land; and the crops are generally wheat, oats, beans and barley. In the Fen are two hamlets, OXLODE 3 miles north-west and PYEMOOR 2½ north-west; between these hamlets stands a mission church and school, built at the sole expense of the Rev. Frederick Fisher M.A. late rector in 1865. In the village are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels: there is a Primitive Methodist chapel in the Fen, and a Wesleyan chapel at Oxlode. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are lords of the manor; the principal landowners are Mrs. Key, Edward Bowyer Sparke esq. D.L., J.P. of Gunthorpe Hall, East Dereham, Norfolk, Charles Bidwell esq. J.P. of Ely, and Mason Cooke esq. of "The Lawns." The area is 10,172 acres, 7,000 of which are in the Fen, the remainder being highland; rateable value, £15,092; the population in 1881 was 1,965, and in 1891, 1,873.

DRY DRAYTON is a parish, 5½ miles north-west from Cambridge and 3 south-west from Oakington station on the St. Ives and Cambridge section of the Great Eastern railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred and union of Chesterton, petty sessional division and county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Chesterton, archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is a building of stone in the Early Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, aisles, north porch and a western tower containing a clock and 5 bells: the north aisle was added and the whole fabric restored in 1859, and the ancient tower in 1874, at a cost of £200: the stained east window is a memorial to the Rev. Samuel Smith D.D. dean of Christ Church, Oxford, prebendary of Durham and formerly rector here, 1831-41, and has in a lunette at the bottom a kneeling figure of the rector in surplice and hood: the organ was erected in 1881: near the west end are two windows of the Decorated period, with transoms, and the south doorway is of the same date: there are 200 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1564; marriages, 1565. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value from 430 acres of glebe £216, with residence, in the gift of Jesse Henstock esq. and held since 1887 by the Rev. Francis William Henstock M.A. of Downing College, Cambridge There are Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels. This parish has two manors—Coventry, held on a lease of lives under the Bishop of Ely, and Crowlands, of which William Brown esq. is lord. The land of the parish is vested in several proprietors, the chief of whom are the Rev. Francis Procter M.A. vicar of Witton, Norfolk, John Piggott esq. Trinity College, Cambridge, Thomas Dence esq. and John Osborn Daintree esq. J.P. of Norwood cottage, Teignmouth, Devon. The soil is heavy clay; subsoil, gault and chalk. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 2,389 acres; rateable value, £1,852; the population in 1881 was 374.

DULLINGHAM is a village and parish, with a station on the Cambridge and Newmarket section of the Great Eastern railway, 68 miles from London, 4 south-west from Newmarket and 10 east from Cambridge, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Radfield, union, petty sessional division and county court district of Newmarket, rural deanery of Fordham, archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Mary is an ancient building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 5 bells: in the chancel are several fine monuments to the Jeaffreson family, dating from 1733, one of which bears a recumbent figure in white marble of Lieut.-General Christopher Jeaffreson, d. 22 Oct. 1824: there is also a tablet to Henrietta, wife of Anthony, 11th Viscount Gormanston, and subsequently of Lieut.-General Christopher Jeaffreson, d. 6 Feb. 1826: the church affords 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value, arising from 87 acres of glebe, £120, with residence, in the gift of Mrs. Robinson, and held since 1889 by the Rev. William Boden Bladon M.A. of Clare College, Cambridge. There is a small Wesleyan Methodist chapel. There are charities to the amount of about £100 yearly, the greater portion of which is given to the poor in clothing. Dullingham House, the seat of Mrs. Robinson, is pleasantly situated in the centre of the village. Hare Park, 3 miles north-west, also the property of Mrs. Robinson, is at present occupied by the Duke of Hamiltonas a racing and shooting box. Mrs. Robinson is lady of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is various; subsoil, chalk and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 3,374 acres; rateable value, £4,650; the population in 1891 was 822.

DUXFORD, comprising the ancient parishes of St. Peter and St. John (now constituting a single parish for all purposes), is 9 miles south from Cambridge, 7 west from Linton and 1½ miles south from the Whittlesford station on main line of the Great Eastern railway, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Whittlesford, union and petty sessional division of Linton, county court district of Saffron Walden, rural deanery of Camps second division and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. St. Peter's church is a building of rubble, partly in the Norman style, and consists of chancel, nave with clerestory, aisles, south porch and a lofty embattled western tower with a small spire and containing a clock and one bell: there are several examples of Early English work of the 13th century, including a beautiful "leper window" on the north side of the chancel, an aumbry, or locker, two good sedilia and a piscina: the church was thoroughly restored in 1884 at a cost of £2,000 and affords 150 sittings, 51 being free. The register dates from the year 1684. The living consists of the rectory of St. Peter's, consolidated with the vicarage of St. John's, the two having been united May 15, 1874; average tithe rent-charge, £504; joint net yearly value, £500 with residence and including 43 acres of glebe, in the gift of Clare College, Cambridge, and held since 1865 by the Rev. Henry James Carter M.A. of that college. St. John's church is an edifice in similar styles, and consists of chancel with chantry chapel, nave, north aisle, south porch and a fine central embattled tower of Norman date with a small spire and containing 5 bells: the chapel retains a piscina, and the rood stairs in the north-west angle of the tower are in very good preservation; there are 220 sittings; the church is now only used for burial services. The register dates from the year 1685. The Congregational chapel was thoroughly repaired and a school-room and vestry added in 1859, at a cost of £350; it will seat 300 persons. A cemetery of 1 acre, presented by the rector, was inclosed by the parishioners and landowners at a cost of £224, and is under the control of a Burial Board of six members. James Bedwell, in 1573, left certain estates in the parish, the rents to be distributed in herrings during Lent and Passion week; this money has now been commuted into a money payment of £3, which is distributed annually in clothes or coals: here is also a charity called "dole money," left by a lady, and now (1892) amounting to £1 16s. annually. The Red Lion inn, in this parish, at WHITTLESFORD BRIDGE, is said to have formerly been part of a small monastic establishment anciently existing here: the rafters of the ceiling and the mantelpiece are very fancifully carved: a massive oaken table with ponderous carved legs is also preserved here. The chapel belonging to this religious house, now used as a barn and but little known, is a very exquisite structure of rubble of the Decorated period; its design, though simple, being of extraordinary merit: the tracery of the once fine east window has disappeared, but the piscina and sedile recess remain, and there are side lancet windows with beautifully moulded hood arches; the building may fairly be regarded as a perfect model for a small but plain chapel. The great tithes of Duxford St. John are owned by Clare College. In this parish are four manors; Mrs. Fisher owns one, Col. William Beeston Long B.A., J.P., D.L. of Hurts Hall, Saxmundham, two, and Caius College, Cambridge, the fourth: the lords of the manors, Capt. the Hon. Victor Montagu and Visct. Hampden, and — Robinson esq. of Lynn, are the principal landowners. The soil is gravelly and chalky; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 3,132 acres; rateable value, £5,154; the population in 1891 was 777.

Sexton, George Morgan.

POST OFFICE.—Alfred Webb, postmaster. Letters arrive by mail cart from Cambridge at 7 a.m. & by train at 2.30 p.m.; dispatched at 7.10 p.m. The nearest money order office is at Whittlesford & telegraph office at Sawston. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid

The Rev. Richard King left 19 acres of land here for educational purposes, & by order of the Court of Chancery the rents are appropriated to the National school of this parish. Schools, with teachers' house were built in 1847 & enlarged in 1875, the total cost being £1,100; they will hold 150 children; average attendance, 123; Charles Golden Greaves, master

ELM is a village and extensive parish in the isle of Ely, on the Wisbech canal, on the borders of Norfolk, 2 miles south-south-east from Wisbech, 9 from March and 87 north from London, in the Northern division of the county, Wisbech hundred, union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Wisbech, and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. The Coldham station of the Great Eastern railway is in this parish. The church of All Saints is a large building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north porch and an embattled western tower with small spire containing 5 bells: the church has been restored and the chancel was renovated internally in 1875 by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners: there are 468 sittings, 364 being free. The register dates from the year 1539. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £386, net yearly value £345, with residence and including 20 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Frederick Holdship Cox M.A. of Pembroke College, Cambridge, and rural dean of Wisbech. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. A reading room is maintained in the village during the winter months. The charities, now (1892) amounting to £278 yearly, are distributed in flour, clothing and fuel. The Bishop of Ely is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Col. Lewis Vivian Loyd M.P., J.P., D.L. of Charlecote Park, Warwick, Benjamin Stockdale esq. of Wood House, Fridaybridge, Samuel Stockdale esq. Thomas Launcelot Reed esq. Alexander Peckover esq. F.L.S., F.R.G.S. of Bank House, Wisbech, Algernon Peckover F.L.S. of Sibald's Holme, Wisbech, James Burdock esq. Col. Lancelot Reed J.P. Rev. Percival Fiennes Swann, Edward Hugh Jackson, Wisbech and Mrs. S. Catling, Redmoor, Elm. Under the provisions of the "Allotment Act of 1882," land in this parish is let out in allotments, viz.: on the vicar's glebe, 9 acres 3 roods divided into allotments of 1 rood each and 27 acres granted by the trustees of the Elm United Charities, let out in unequal allotments. The soil is loamy; the subsoil is clay. The chief crops are wheat and oats, with potatoes and fruit in large quantities. The area is 11,042 acres; rateable value, £19,120; the population in 1891 was 1779.

The following are in this parish:—BEGDALE, 1 mile south-west; COTTONS, 2½ miles south-east, and WALDERSEA, a district of about 5,500 acres, drained by steam power, the water being pumped into the river Nene by a powerful engine on the south brink, about 3 miles from Wisbech.

COLDHAM, including MARCH CHAIN, STAGSHOLT, and PEARTREE HILL, has been formed into an ecclesiastical parish, and will be found under the head of "COLDHAM."

FRIDAYBRIDGE has also a separate heading.

ELSWORTH is a parish on the Huntingdonshire border of the county, about 10 miles north-west from Cambridge, 8 south-east from Huntingdon and 6 south-by-west from St. Ives station, on the Great Eastern and Midland railways, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Papworth, petty sessional division of Caxton, union of Caxton and Arrington, county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Bourn and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of the Holy Trinity, which belonged to Ramsey Abbey from a very early period until the dissolution of the monasteries, is a building of stone in the pure Decorated style, and consists of chancel, clerestoried nave of four bays, aisles, south porch and a low embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing a clock and 4 bells, 3 of which bear the following inscriptions:—1, Non vox sed votum non musica cordeala sed cor. 1628; 3, Cum moveo admoneo. R.G.I.A. churchwardens. 1616; 4, + Christopher Graye made me. 1675: the triple sedilia and double piscina are especially good examples of the Decorated style, and there is also some excellent Perpendicular wood work in the chancel, consisting of stalls returned at the west end, with poppy heads and "linen fold" panelling; under the book rests of the stalls are little lockers retaining their original panelled doors, locks and hinges: on the south side of the chancel is a lepers' window, with the original iron staples remaining: over the porch door is a sun dial with the inscription "MOX NOX;" and on the east gable is a most beautiful and perfect Decorated cross; on the floor are two slabs with matrices of 15th century brasses, and there are traces of others; in the tower is a plain chest: the church is now (1892) being thoroughly restored, the north aisle completely rebuilt and several new windows inserted, at a cost of £900, of which £300 was contributed by the late Rev. Edward Cheere M.A. of Papworth Hall, to whose memory a new east window is being inserted: the church affords 590 sittings. The register dates from 1528 and is in excellent preservation. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £233, with residence, and including 663 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Duke of Portland, and held since 1884 by the Rev. Henry Thomas Knox Hutchinson M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. The Particular Baptist chapel here will seat 250 persons. There are almshouses for three persons and charities of £6 8s. 6d. yearly for distribution. Captain Walter Henry Octavius Duncombe J.P. of Waresley Park, Hunts, is lord of the manor, and the rector of the rectorial manor. The principal landowners are Richard Parsons esq. and Mr. Samuel Papworth. The soil of this neighbourhood is stiff clay, and the subsoil blue gault, with chalk, stones and flints. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 3,700 acres; rateable value, £3,687; the population in 1891 was 620.

ELTISLEY is a parish and pretty village, on the road from Cambridge to St. Neots, and on the Huntingdonshire border of the county, 5 miles east from St. Neots station on the Great Northern main line, and 12 west from Cambridge, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Longstow, petty sessional division of Caxton, union of Caxton and Arrington, county court district of St. Neots, rural deanery of Bourn and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. John the Baptist and St. Pandionia, appropriated in 1572 to the Abbey of Denny, in this county, is an ancient edifice of stone, chiefly in the Early English style, and was partially repaired about the year 1840: it consists of chancel, clerestoried nave of three bays, aisles, north transept or chapel, south porch and a lofty embattled western tower of Early English date, with a fine Decorated octagonal spire and containing 4 bells: the nave arcades date from the early part of the 13th century; the clerestory is Perpendicular; the north chapel has a very beautiful east window and a sort of arched tomb: St. Wendreth is said by tradition to have been buried in the church: there is a brass tablet to the Marshall family, dated 1640: the tower and nave were completely restored and the latter reseated about 1879; the church affords 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1600. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £45, including 35 acres of glebe in the parish of Elsworth, in the gift of George Onslow Newton esq. and held since 1870 by the Rev. Samuel Lovick Astley Cooper M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford, rural dean of Bourn and rector of Croxton, where he resides. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels here. Here was a convent of Benedictine nuns, removed in the reign of William I. to Hinchinbrooke in Huntingdonshire: some remains, consisting of a small portion of a wall, are still standing, and there are traces of a moat. St. Pandionia was the daughter of a Scottish king, who, in her flight from some persons who attempted her chastity, is said to have taken refuge in the nunnery at Eltisley, the prioress of which was her kinswoman; she eventually adopted the religious life, and on account of her piety was canonized; she died, it is said, in the convent, and was buried by a well called St. Pandionia's Well, whence her body was removed into Eltisley church in the year 1344, a sermon for her translation having been composed by Sir Richard, then the parish priest. George Onslow Newton esq. D.L., J.P. of Croxton Hall, is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Jesus College, Cambridge, Philip Meyer esq. of Orwell, Arthur Hugh Meyer esq. of Orwell, the Governors of St. Thomas' Hospital, London, and Emmanuel College, Cambridge. The soil is strong clay; subsoil, blue gault. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 1,922 acres; rateable value, £1,534; the population in 1891 was 438.

ISLE OF ELY.

THE ISLE OF ELY, forming the northern portion of the county and bounded on the south by the river Ouse or Old West river, and intersected by drains or cuts, notably the Old Bedford river, extending from north-east to south-west, comprises the hundreds of Ely, Wisbech, North Witchford and South Witchford, the city of Ely, the borough of Wisbech and the liberties of Whittlesey and Thorney: it has separate quarter sessions and commission of the peace, and a county treasurer, and makes its own levy, which is in the nature of a county rate; the Isle is divided into four petty sessional divisions, and for ecclesiastical purposes into the rural deaneries of Ely, March and Wisbech, forming together a division over which the bishop of Ely also exercises archidiaconal functions, with the exception of the parishes of Haddenham and Wilburton, which are in the archdeaconry of Ely.

Under the "Local Government Act, 1888," the Isle is, for certain purposes of that Act, constituted a "separate administrative county" distinct from the remainder of the county.

The soil of Ely is partly drift and partly lower green sand, resting on an impervious substratum of Kimmeridge clay, which contains some fine geological specimens. The fen lands in this vicinity are protected from inundation by artificial banks along the sides of the rivers; these lands, which formerly produced only reeds and sedge, now yield abundant crops, steam engines having superseded the old windmills for pumping the water from the land into the rivers.

Ely is famous for its asparagus and orchard fruits, which are grown here to a great extent and sent to the London markets.

The area of the island is 227,326 acres, and the population in 1881 was 63,328.

The parishes in the Isle of Ely are arranged in this work with the parishes in the remainder of the county and comprise the following places:—Benwick, Chatteris, Chettisham, Coldham, Coveney, Doddington, Downham, Elm, Ely College, Ely St. Mary, Ely Trinity, Ely Westmoor Fen, Fridaybridge, Gorefield, Grunty Fen, Guyhurn with Ringsend, Haddenham, Leverington, Littleport, Manea, March, Mepal, Newton, Outwell, Parson Drove, Southea-cum-Murrow, Stretham, Stuntney, Sutton, Thorney, Tydd St. Giles, Upwell, Welches Dam, Wentworth, Whittlesey (St. Mary and St. Andrew), Wilburton, Wimblington, Witcham, Witchford, Wisbech St. Mary and Wisbech St. Peter.

ELY is a city and head of an episcopal see, the head of a union, county court district and petty sessional division and is the capital of the Isle of its name, in the Eastern division of the county, with a station on the Great Eastern railway, 72½ miles from London by rail and 67 north-east by road, 16 from Cambridge by road and 15 by rail; 26¾ from Lynn harbour and 13 from Newmarket by road; the Great Eastern railway affords ample means of communication with Cambridge and London, Huntingdon, Lynn, Peterborough, Yarmouth and Lowestoft, viâ Norwich, and through these places to all parts of the kingdom: there is also a short line from Ely to Haddenham, Sutton and St. Ives, and a branch to Newmarket, opened in September, 1879: there is navigation by the rivers Ouse and Cam to Cambridge, Lynn, Wisbech, St. Ives, Huntingdon and other markets.

Ely was constituted a Local Board district 23 July, 1850, and is governed by a Local Board of 15 members.

Under the "Public Health Act," 1848 (11 & 12 Vict. c. 63), applied by Order in Council in 1850, the city has been drained and supplied with water, mainly by the zeal of Dr. Peacock, then dean: the works and pumping station are at Isleham, the supply being derived from springs in the chalk, and the water forced thence into a tank at Ely, from which it is distributed to all parts of the town, the system of communication in which is now (1892) approaching completion. To cover the cost, loans were contracted with the Public Works Commissioners of £13,428 in 1885 and £6,000 in 1887, repayable in 60 half yearly instalments. In 1891 the capital debt was reduced to £16,599. The town is lighted with gas from works in Station road, the property of the City of Ely Gas Company Limited.

The diocese of Ely was created in 1108, out of the see of Lincoln, the first bishop being Herveus, Bishop of Bangor, consecrated at Ely, 27th June, 1109: by an Order in Council, 19th April, 1837, the archdeaconries of Bedford and Huntingdon were transferred from Lincoln to Ely, and part of the archdeaconry of Sudbury from Norwich; and by a second order, 10th April, 1839, certain other parishes were transferred from Lincoln. The area includes Cambridgeshire, Bedfordshire, Huntingdonshire and part of Suffolk.

The CATHEDRAL of SS. ETHELDREDA and PETER was originally the church of a convent, founded here in 673 by Etheldreda, daughter of Anna, King of the East Angles, and wife of Ecgfrid, King of Northumbria, and endowed by her with large possessions, including the whole of the Isle of Ely; it was despoiled by the Danes in 870, and refounded in 970 by Ethelwold, Bishop of Winchester (963-83). The Norman portion of the church was begun in 1081, by Abbot Symeon, who also laid the foundations of an apsidal choir, and completed the basement of the main transept: Richard, his successor, completed the choir, making it a square-ended presbytery; he further added the clerestory of the transept, and probably also a central tower over a new choir, and erected the greater part of the nave: in 1106, the year preceding his death, the relics of St. Etheldreda were translated into the new shrine in the presbytery, which stood immediately under a boss in the vaulting of the choir which bears her image; the main transept was finished about 1083, the nave in 1150, and the west transept and tower in 1107-89, being partly completed by Bishop Geoffry Ridel (1174-89), who was also a Baron of the Exchequer: the octagonal lantern of the west tower, 64 feet high, is said to have been added in the reign of Henry VI. in place of a spire, removed in 1380: the north wing of the western transept, perfect until the Reformation, either fell or was demolished at some unknown date: in 1234, Hugh Northwold, eighth Bishop, began a new presbytery of six bays, which was dedicated September 17th, 1252, in the presence of Henry III.; on February 12th, 1322, the central Norman tower fell, destroying the choir, upon which Alan de Walsingham, the sacristan, in 1322-8, replaced the tower by the present octagon and lantern, at a cost of £2,406 3s. 11d.; and Bishop Hotham (1316-37), rebuilt the three bays of the Norman presbytery, which was finished in 1381, at a cost of £2,034 12s. 8d. and thenceforth used as a choir: the stallwork of the choir was erected by Richard de Saxmundham in 1338-46, and the lady chapel, begun by John of Wisbeach on March 25, 1321, was completed in 1349: Bishop Barnet (1366-73), added Decorated windows in the presbytery, and Bishop Gray (1445-78), those in the aisles: of the two eastern chapels, that of Bishop Alcock was built in 1488: and Bishop West's in 1534: in 1643, Cromwell, then governor, prohibited the choir service, and swept out the congregation, and in 1647, the Parliament proposed to sell the materials of the church for the relief of the maimed soldiers of the Commonwealth.

The cathedral, as now existing, consists of a presbytery of six bays, with two eastern chapels, choir of three bays, both with continuous aisles, great transepts of three bays each, with aisles, central octagon, on the north side a lady chapel of five bays entered from the north-east angle of the transept, nave of twelve bays, south-west transept, with a small apsidal chapel of St. Catherine, slight remains of the ruined north-west transept, western Galilee porch of two bays, and a lofty western tower, containing 5 bells, all cast by Henry Penn, of Peterborough, but the tenor only is inscribed, and dated 1723; the treble is used as a clock bell. The presbytery is in a style of rich, but correct and beautiful Early English: the chapels of Bishops West and Alcock, placed at the extremity of the aisles, are perhaps the most elaborate examples of Perpendicular work in the kingdom: the former contains some good stained glass, and well-wrought gates which have been restored: the remains of the late Bishop Woodford, who died in 1885, are interred in Bishop West's chapel, where a memorial has been erected by the Rev. Arthur Robertson Evans M.A. consisting of a black marble slab bearing a floriated brass cross, on one side of which is a mitre and on the other side a copy of the Ely pastoral staff with the arms of the see, the Bishop's arms appearing on shields below, and round the margin an inscription: the east end has three deeply recessed lancets of equal height, with a range of five unequal lancets above; externally, this portion of the building is one of the finest specimens extant of an Early English east front, the gable having a third tier of arches, surmounted by three foliated openings, and the whole is flanked by bold buttresses of six stages, five of which have canopied niches, and each buttress is crowned by a crocketed pinnacle; tall crocketed spirelets also rise from the angle buttresses of the aisles. The choir, reached by a descent of several steps, consists of three bays of rich Decorated work, which, in their general arrangement and elevation, harmonize in a singular but admirable manner with the earlier presbytery: the stalls, 48 in number, have richly carved figures and groups in the upper canopies, and in front, on either side, are ranges of subsidiary stalls: the organ is placed above the stalls on the north side: a splendid reredos has been erected in the presbytery by John Dunn Gardner esq. of Chatteris, as a memorial to his first wife; it is of alabaster, divided into five compartments, separated by enriched spiral columns, inlaid with cornelial and bloodstone, and ornamented with gilding; the lower part of each compartment is occupied by quatrefoils ornamented with ball flowers and filled in with marble mosaic; the upper part is panelled and adorned with sculpture in high relief; the whole is surmounted by figures of Christ and of angels bearing instruments of the Passion: the total cost was £4,000: an elegant brass lectern has also been placed in the choir as a memorial to H. S. Le Strange esq. by the Rev. Canon E. B. Sparke: the pulpit, provided by a legacy left by a daughter of the late Bishop Allen (1836-45), is of Ancaster stone, resting upon columns of Purbeck marble, the front being relieved by figures in alabaster of St. Peter and St. Paul: the steps are also of Purbeck marble, guarded by elaborate scroll work in iron. The monuments in this part of the church include those of Bishop Northwold, ob. 1254, with effigy and figures under canopies at the sides; Bishop Kilkenny, who died in Spain, 1256, altar tomb with mitred effigy; Bishop Luda, 1298, a lofty decorated canopy of three arches, with crocketed pinnacles; Bishop Hotham, 1337, a panelled altar tomb, with decorated screen of two stages, restored by Richardson; Bishop Barnet, 1373, altar tomb of grey marble, brass lost; Cardinal de Luxemburgh, 1443, altar tomb, with effigy and panelled canopy of three arches; John Tiptoft, Earl of Worcester, Constable of England, beheaded 1470, altar tomb, with effigies of himself and two wives, under an open canopy of three arches; Bishop Gray, 1478, slab, brass effigy lost, under a tall panelled arch; Bishop Redman, 1505, fine panelled altar tomb, with mitred effigy, under a highly enriched panelled canopy; Bishop Thirlby, 1554, mitred effigy in brass, with staff; Bishop Heton, 1609, altar tomb, with effigy in cope, under a flat canopy, supported by Corinthian pillars; Bishop Laney, 1675, classic mural monument, with arms; Bishop Gunning, 1684, with semi-recumbent mitred effigy on a high pedestal; Bishop Patrick, 1707, elaborate tomb in a debased classic style; Bishops Moore, 1714, Fleetwood, 1723, and Greene, 1738, lofty mural tombs in the same style, and Bishop Butts, 1748, mural monument with bust; here also are buried Robert Steward esq. 1570, and Sir Mark Steward, both with canopied tombs of classic character, bearing their effigies in armour with shields of arms. At the intersection of the choir with the nave and transepts rises the octagon, a Decorated work of great originality and singularly beautiful effect: the four greater sides open by lofty arches into the four arms of the cross, and the four smaller sides by subordinate arches into the aisles, the space over these arches being chiefly occupied by magnificent clerestory windows; at the angles of the octagon, at about half the height, are eight canopied niches, the corbels of which are sculptured with scenes from the life of St. Etheldreda; the groining of the lower part of the lantern is peculiarly fine, the actual construction being effected by a system of vast timbers behind it; above this vaulting rises the lantern proper, lighted by eight rich windows, and crowned again by a second timber vault; the lantern was restored in 1858, as a memorial to the late Dean Peacock, at a cost of £6,607, of which £2,407 was contributed by the friends of the dean. One bay west of the octagon are niches on the pillars, marking the site of the ancient rood loft: the present screen, designed by the late Sir Gilbert Scott R.A. extends across the eastern arch of the octagon, and comprises a central trefoil arch, flanked on each side by three smaller arches; each has a triangular crocketed head, the central arch terminating in a rich cross rising above the cresting; the spandrils and other spaces are filled with delicate tracery; the screen is closed by a pair of superb brass gates, and at the sides by open iron work. The main transept is Norman, and though earlier, differs but little in character from the nave: besides eastern and western aisles, it has, at the north and south ends, what was once a continuous aisle, but eventually a gallery for the exhibition of relics: the hammer-beam roof is Perpendicular, and painted with various devices: the east aisle of the south arm is now divided into a library, containing upwards of 7,000 volumes, and sacristy; the roof of the north arm, after restoration, was painted at the expense of the tradesmen employed upon the cathedral. The Norman nave, a plain but stately avenue of lofty arches in three tiers, supported in the arcades on sternly massive clustered piers, is contemporaneous with that of Peterborough; the triforium, unusually light in style, has Perpendicular windows, and the clerestory exhibits three arches in each bay; the coved timber roof, restored in 1845, has been painted by the late Mr. H. L'Estrange, of Hunstanton Hall, Norfolk, and Mr. Gambier Parry, of Highnam Court, Gloucestershire, with admirably studied subjects, illustrating the sacred history of Man, the design being based on an untouched ceiling at Hildesheim of corresponding date: the aisles retain their original stone vaulting; the south aisle has only three of the original windows, the rest being late insertions, but it retains two rich Norman cloister doors, one of which, the prior's door, in the fifth bay from the west end, is a fine example of Transition Norman, highly enriched with beautiful scroll work, and in the tympanum is a seated figure of Our Lord, with attendant angels: at the west end of the north aisle, formerly closed off, is a fragment of a pre-Norman Cross, with a square base, and inscribed on one side "+ LVCEM · TVAM · OVINO · DA · DEVS · ET · REQUIE' · AMEN:" this cross, found some years since at Haddenham, near Ely, is a memorial to Ovin, steward to Queen Etheldreda, and the words form a prayer for the use of travellers and pilgrims, "Grant, O God, to Ovin Thy light and rest;" it is believed to belong to the latter part of the seventh, or beginning of the eighth century, and if so, would be earlier by nearly 400 years than anything else in the cathedral. The north door and choir door, also on the north side, are both good examples of early Norman: the western transept, in its lower stages, displays Norman work of a still more advanced character than that of the nave, with great richness of detail: the upper stage is Transition; the southern wing has at its angles two polygonal towers of unequal size, 120 feet in height, adorned with nine tiers of panelled work, and terminating in an embattled parapet, and from the east side projects the apsidal chapel of St. Catherine, rebuilt in 1845, on the restoration of this transept, at the cost, in part, of Canon E. B. Sparke; it was during the progress of the work, in the same year, that Mr. Basevi, while inspecting the works with the dean, unhappily met his death by a fall on to the stone floor. The great west tower is Transition Norman, the lower stage opening to the church and Galilee by four tall arches, and massive, but elegant clustered piers: externally it exhibits three stages of deeply recessed arches, relieved by two bands of arcading and an embattled parapet, from within which rises an octagonal lantern, lighted on four sides by Decorated windows, and at the angles of the tower are tall octagonal panelled turrets, overtopping the lantern, and united to it by flying buttresses; the total height is now about 215 feet, but there was formerly a slender wooden spire, the vane of which reached a height of 270 feet; the tower was opened, re-roofed and ceiled in 1845, partly at the expense of the late H. R. Evans esq. and his son, and the ceiling very successfully painted by Mr. L'Estrange; in 1870 it was further strengthened, and braced with iron bands. The western Galilee porch, 45 feet long, furnishes an example of perfect Early English and is two storeys high, with four tiers of arcading, and an embattled parapet; three united lancets light the upper stage, and the entrance is through an arch subdivided by a single shaft; the interior, of two bays, is richly arcaded at the sides, with a vaulted roof, and opens to the nave by a beautiful double portal: the whole has been especially restored by Mrs. J. T. Waddington, at a cost of about £1,169. A very small portion of the south-east angle of the cloister, built about 1504 and destroyed in 1650, still remains, but the chapter house has entirely disappeared. The great modern restoration of the cathedral was begun by Dean Peacock in 1845, and has been continued almost uninterruptedly by his successors, Deans Goodwin and Merivale, under the successive direction of Mr. Essex, Professor Willis and the late Sir Gilbert Scott R.A. the total sum expended up to October, 1873, being about £70,000, of which £3,600 was contributed by the Bishops of Ely and their families and £37,835 by the Dean and Chapter and members of their families, and from 1874 to 1884, a further sum of £7,083, acquired from various sources, was expended in repairs and additions; these sums include some special gifts, but are wholly exclusive of many others, particularly of stained windows, introduced mainly under the auspices of Canon Sparke, and of which there are now upwards of 60, not including the eight lights at the east end; these represent a total value of about £9,000, and amongst the donors were Her Majesty the Queen and the late Prince Consort and the officers of the Cambridgeshire militia, who in 1882 erected a memorial window to the Hon. Col. Duncombe; the carved panels above the choir stalls have also been chiefly supplied by individual donors at a cost of about £18 each; Bishop Alcock's chapel has been restored by Jesus College, Cambridge, and the south-east pinnacle of the choir by the late Right Hon. A. J. B. Beresford Hope; other special gifts comprise the font, presented by Canon Selwyn; the gates of the choir aisles, by Alan Lowndes esq.; the brass eagle lectern, by Canon E. B. Sparke and various legacies and donations, applied to the decoration of the ceiling and repaving of the nave and to the erection of a new pulpit. The interior dimensions are:—Whole length from west to east 517 feet, diameter octagon 65 feet; length of transept 179 feet, width of nave with aisles 73 feet, the western tower is 48 feet square; the general height is about 70 feet, but from the floor to the centre of the lantern is 142 feet; the cloisters, when perfect, formed a quadrangle of 183 by 143 feet. Of the conventual buildings may be noticed the remains of the hall and chapel of the infirmary, 158 feet long, a masterpiece of late and refined Norman work; the prior's lodge with its 13th century guest hall and the refectory, now the deanery, begun by Prior Hemingstone about 1270; these buildings form part of a quadrangle, on the south side of which is the exquisite chapel of Prior Crauden, c. 1324, which has finely traceried windows, and a curious encaustic pavement representing "The Fall of Man," and has been partially but well restored under the direction of Professor Willis, Mr. Stewart, and in 1884 by Mr. G. F. Bodley A.R.A.; the building is now allowed to the cathedral school for chapel services. The cathedral registers contain records of baptisms from 1693; marriages, 1691; burials, 1735.

The palace, built by Bishop Alcock before 1500, consists of two wings and a hall, and has a gallery 100 feet in length, added by Bishop Goodrich (1534-54); the extremity of each wing, facing the road, forms a kind of tower of four stages, that on the east side having a rich triple canopy in the second story and above this the arms of Alcock; in the palace is preserved the famous "Tabula Eliensis," a late work of the 16th century, representing 40 knights whom William I. quartered on the abbey, with shields of arms and figures of monks accompanying each knight; there is also a curious picture of the funeral of Bishop Cox in 1581.

At the Dissolution of the Monasteries in the reign of Henry VIII. a charter was granted, about 1538, and the cathedral, with its revenues and precincts, was given to the Dean and Chapter for perpetual succession; the establishment now consists of a bishop, dean, six canons, four minor canons, eight lay clerks and ten choristers. As the bishop represents the former abbots, and the dean takes the place of the prior, the former occupies the abbot's stall in the angle of the screen on the south side, and the latter the corresponding, or prior's seat, on the north side, and there is consequently no bishop's throne, as in most other cathedrals. The bi-sexcentenary celebration of the foundation of the monastery took place on Friday, October 17th, 1873, being the festival of St. Etheldreda, the foundress, and on the four following days, when special services were held in the cathedral, with addresses by the diocesan and other bishops: lectures on the history of the fabric were delivered by the late Sir Gilbert Scott R.A. and the late Mr. Edmund Sharpe M.A. and on the closing day a great meeting of parish choirs was held in the nave: on the south side of the cathedral is an artificial mound called "Cherry Hill," the origin of which is uncertain, but is thought to be the site of the keep of an ancient castle erected for the defence of the monastery: it is now covered with trees and shrubs: a winding path leads to the summit, from which a fine view of the surrounding country may be obtained.

Holy Trinity church, formerly the Lady Chapel of the cathedral, is a rectangular edifice of stone, consisting of five bays, in the Late Decorated style, and was begun in 1321, by John Wisbech, a monk, from a design by Alan de Walsingham, then sub-prior, and finished in 1349; its unusual position, northward of the choir, is owing to the circumstance of a public road passing over the ground at the east end of the cathedral which would otherwise have been its site, and which would then have made this cathedral the longest in the world; the interior of the church, to the level of the window sills, is surrounded by a singularly beautiful arcading of canopied ogee arches, richly feathered and inclining forward; the spaces between the windows, which are of great size, with finely conceived tracery, are similarly treated, and above spreads a superb vaulting, intricately groined, and studded with bosses, illustrating the history of the Virgin, and other subjects; the east window is of seven, and the west is of eight lights; exterior space above each is filled with an arcade of nine crocketed arches, and at the west end a similar arcade extends below the window, with other arches and shields at the sides; the whole of these arches retain moulded pedestals, but of the 32 figures which they once supported, none now exist; the building is 100 feet long by 46 wide and 60 feet high, its only fault being its undue width, but this is amply compensated for by the wonderful and exquisite beauty of its parts and especially for the "gorgeous and unrivalled series of stone stalls," which constitute its choicest feature; there is one bell, dated 1648, and a sanctus bell, inscribed "Ave gracia plena;" these, however, are not hung above the church, but in a belfry at the school opposite: there are 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £289, with residence and including 13 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter, and held since 1880 by the Rev. Edward Henry Lowe M.A. of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, chaplain of Ely cathedral, and surrogate.

The church of St. Mary, standing at a short distance from the cathedral, is a building of stone in the Transitional and Early English styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, and a western tower with spire of the Decorated period, containing a clock and 8 bells, of which the 7th was cast in 1670, the third in 1766, and all the others in 1781: the church was rebuilt about 1215, by Bishop Eustachius, on the site of a former church; the arches of the nave arcades may be his work, but the heavy circular pillars are not improbably part of the original structure; the curious mixture in this church of Norman and Early English features, in the arches and columns, is perhaps unique: the building was restored in 1878, and affords 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1670. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £300, with residence and including 9 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter, and held since 1874 by the Rev. John Franey M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, chaplain of Ely cathedral, and surrogate.

The district church of St. Etheldreda, at Queen Adelaide, erected in 1884, is a plain edifice of brick, consisting of nave, south porch and a turret containing one bell: there are sittings for 200: the services are conducted by the clergy of Holy Trinity.

Ely Theological College, founded in 1876, is a handsome building of red brick with stone facings, in the Gothic style, and was opened in 1881 for 20 students. A marble effigy of the late Bishop Woodford was placed in a niche on the outside wall of the chapel in 1886, by the principal and students. The usual period of training is one year, lectures being given daily, except on Saturdays and saints' days, by the Bishop, Principal, Vice-Principal and Chaplain. The students preach regularly at a mission chapel, besides reading the lessons in the city churches; they also give cottage lectures at the almshouses. A sum of £300 a year, left by the founder, is offered by the Bishop in bursaries to deserving students. The college is under the direction of a Principal and Vice-Principal, the Bishop of the diocese being the Visitor. The Rev. Berkley William Randolph M.A. has been principal since 1891.

A parish room for St. Mary's was erected in the Cambridge road in 1891.

The Catholic Chapel, in Egremont street, was built in 1891.

Zion Baptist Chapel is in High street, the Countess of Huntingdon's in Chapel street, and the Primitive Methodist chapel in Victoria street; the Wesleyan, in Chapel street, was renovated in 1891, at a cost of £600.

A Cemetery of 10½ acres was formed in 1855, at a cost of £3,500, and is under the control of a Burial Board of 15 members.

There are two mortuary chapels connected by a tower, carried on open arches, and surmounted by a spire.

The Shire Hall, built in 1820, is a structure of brick, consisting of a centre and two wings: the former contains apartments for holding the courts and public meetings; the north wing is appropriated partly as an armoury for the H Company 3rd (Cambridgeshire) Volunteer Battalion Suffolk Regiment, and the south wing forms a police station; the Hall will hold about 250 persons At Fore Hill is a reading-room for the public and Volunteers. There is a militia depôt here, and Ely is also a central recruiting station for all branches of the service.

The Corporation of the Bedford Level, which, though deprived by Act of Parliament of one half of its jurisdiction, still superintends the drainage of a very large district of marsh land called the South Level of the Fens, has its offices here.

The Corn Exchange, in the Market place, was built in 1847, and a cattle market formed, both of which are the property of the Corn Exchange, Fairs and Cattle Market Company, and are well attended. Thursday is the market day.

The fairs, anciently held on Ascension Day or Holy Thursday and October 29th, the former for three and the latter for nine days, have been reduced to three days each, the May or summer fair commencing on the last Thursday in May, except when that day falls on Holy Thursday, and then the Thursday before, and the October or winter fair on the last Thursday in October.

Parsons' charity, an ancient benefaction, produces upwards of £1,000 net yearly revenue, from lands in Ely and Stretham, out of which the feoffees or governors pay £360 to the National schools for education and clothing, £150 to the Ely Dispensary, £10 10s. to Addenbrooke's Hospital, Cambridge, £200 in the distribution of coal to the poor, £40 to the poor people in their almshouses, £75 for general relief to the poor, £50 in renting of allotments of land and subletting to the poor, and besides this a considerable portion of the charity land is let to the poor in husbandry allotments: there is also another large charity, derived from estates at Soham and Fordham, left by Benjamin Laney, Bishop of Ely, 1675-77, for the apprenticing of poor children of Ely and Soham to honest trades, the premium not to exceed £20.

The boundaries of the city of Ely include 16,507 acres; the population in the Local Board district in 1891 was 8,017; the rateable values are—of Holy Trinity, £27,403; of St. Mary, £15,554; and of Ely College, £726. The population of the parishes in 1881 was—Ely College, 112; Holy Trinity, 5,048; and St. Mary, 5,011 (including 124 officers and inmates in the workhouse).

Parish Clerks (Trinity church), William Rickwood, Fore hill; (St. Mary's church) Arthur Henry Pilgrim, Church lane.

Cathedral Grammar School, College, founded by King Henry VIII. in 1541, is now carried on in the stately structure anciently forming the principal entrance to the monastery, & generally known as "Ely Porta;" it stands a little to the south of the cathedral, & is a rectangular pile of three storeys, with square embattled turrets at the angles: the gateway consists of a single deep arch, with a postern on the south, & above, in the third storey, is a Decorated window of three lights, flanked on either side by two canopied niches: the remaining windows are small & of two lights each: this gatehouse is said to have been begun about 1366, in the time of Prior Buckton, & was still unfinished in 1397; in 1873 the upper storey was thrown into a single chamber, to serve as a schoolroom, a fives' court constructed & the porter's lodge enlarged, & in 1880-1 a hostel of brick & stone, in the Gothic style, called "Hereward Hall," was erected from designs by Mr. Carpenter, architect, on the west side, to hold 60 boys; among the eminent men educated here may be named James Bentham M.A. author of the "History of Ely Cathedral;" Rev. Richard Winkfield M.A. master

GREAT EVERSDEN is a parish, 2 miles south-west from Lord's Bridge station on the Bedford and Cambridge branch of the London and North Western railway and 7 south-west from Cambridge, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Longstow, petty sessional division of Arrington and Melbourn, union of Caxton and Arrington, county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Bourn and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Mary is a plain building of rubble, in the Perpendicular style, and bears the date 1636: it consists of chancel, nave, north porch and an embattled western tower, with a short wooden spire covered with lead and a projecting belfry containing 3 bells: in the east wall of the chancel is a piscina, and on the other side a small aumbry: the rood staircase and upper door remain: there are some old benches, two having misereres, and a Jacobean pulpit: the chancel is kept in repair by Lord Hardwicke: the interior was restored about the year 1864, and affords 175 sittings. The register dates from the year 1541. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £65, including 48 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Alfred Hall Ellaby M.A. of Queens' College, Cambridge, who is also rector of and resides at Little Eversden. The Congregational chapel was erected in 1845, at a cost of £1,000: in the chapel is a tablet to the Rev. Francis Holcraft M.A. who was imprisoned for nearly nine years, in 1663, for preaching to an Independent congregation here: there are 300 sittings: the chapel is endowed with a bequest of about £500 from Robert Leete esq. and his family. The parish has a small charity in land, the produce of which, now (1892), under £5, is given away in coals at Christmas by the principal parishioners. The lands here are all freehold. The President and fellows of Queens' College, Cambridge, the Earl of Hardwicke, the trustees of the late Mrs. Susan Clarence, Joseph Merry esq. of London and Joseph Morris esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is clayey; and the subsoil, gravel, gault, and in some parts chalk, of which there are several quarries. The area is 1,343 acres; rateable value, £1,561; the population in 1891 was 226.

LITTLE EVERSDEN is a parish, 7 miles south-west from Cambridge and 2 south-west from Lord's Bridge station on the Bedford and Cambridge branch of the London and North Western railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Longstow, petty sessional division of Arrington and Melbourn, union of Caxton and Arrington, county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Bourn, and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Helen, picturesquely situated, is an ancient building of stone, in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, north porch and a low embattled western tower with pinnacles and containing 4 bells: the building was thoroughly restored in 1892 at a cost of £500, when a rood staircase was discovered: there are 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1703. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £180, with residence and including 172 acres of glebe, in the gift of Queens' College, Cambridge, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Alfred Hall Ellaby M.A. of that college, who is also vicar of Great Eversden. The advowson was given to Queens' College, Cambridge, in 1752, by John Chetham, of Great Livermore in Suffolk, in consideration of which benefaction he and his heirs were to have the privilege of nominating to one of the smaller scholarships in that college. In 1775 Mr. Deer left the sum of £100 for the repair of the church, and in 1854 Miss Lydia Leete left £200 Consols, the interest to be spent in coals and clothing for the poor at Christmas. The manorial rights formerly belonged to Queens' College, but the land has been enfranchised. The principal landowners are the Earl of Hardwicke, Edmund John Mortlock esq. M.A., D.L., J.P. of Great Abington and Bene't street, Cambridge. The soil is chalky clay; subsoil, gault and chalk. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 748 acres; rateable value, £1,079; the population in 1891 was 219.

Parish Clerk, R. Pauley.

FEN DITTON is a parish and village, on the east bank of the river Cam, at the junction of the Fleam Dyke, 2½ north-north-east from Cambridge, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Flendish, Bottisham petty sessional division, union of Chesterton, Cambridge county court district, rural deanery of Cambridge and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Mary, which stands near a bend of the river and on its south bank, is an edifice of Barnack ashlar in the Early English, Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of four bays, aisles, south porch and a western tower containing 5 bells: the chancel is a beautiful example of rather late Decorated work, but the nave, arcades and the clerestory are pure Perpendicular: the font, which bears shields of arms, is of the same date: the Early English tower, a curious structure supported on four arches, was taken down to the foundations in 1881 and carefully rebuilt under the direction of J. L. Pearson esq. R.A. the north aisle and chancel being restored at the same time, and the east window filled with stained glass, as a memorial to Professor Haviland by his sons: within the tower arches is a curious and elaborate stone screen, pierced with eight arched lights and a central door and enriched in front by a series of gabled buttresses, terminating in pinnacles: in the chancel is a mural monument with arms, to Richard Willys, of the Inner Temple, ob. 1625; a slab, with arms, to Jane, wife of John Cornwall S.T.P. ob. 1712; and another, also with arms, to Humfrey Gardner esq. ob. 1691. This church was visited in 1643 by Dowsing, the iconoclast, who "beat down two crucifixes, and ye twelve apostles, and many other superstitious pictures:" in 1889 the south aisle, porch, clerestory wall and windows were thoroughly restored, and during the progress of the work two niches quaintly painted, were discovered at the east end of the aisle, and also a piscina in a fair state of preservation: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538, and contains numerous references to the Willys or Willis family. The living is a rectory, net yearly value, arising from 280 acres of glebe, about £400, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Edmund Wodley Ashfield M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. The Primitive Methodist chapel, erected in 1880, will hold 100 persons. Almshouses were founded here by the Willys family in 1665-6 and rebuilt in 1877 by the late Mr. Thomas Bailey, and they have now been endowed by Mr. Frederick Bailey with the rents of land in the Manea Fen, producing £14 yearly, for the purpose of keeping them in repair. In this parish are the remains of Biggin Farm house, formerly a residence of the Bishops of Ely, and here also is "one of the three celebrated ditches or dykes thrown up by the East Angles to protect themselves from the incursions of their enemies, the Mercians:" the market granted to the Bishops of Ely for this place in 1270 has long since become obsolete. John Haviland esq. of Northampton, who is lord of the manor, the rector, the Rev. Canon Musgrave M.A. rector of Hascombe, Surrey, the Provost and fellows of King's College and the Master and fellows of St. Peter's College, Cambridge, and Mr. Jonathan William Fison are the principal landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, beans and peas. The area is 1,862 acres; rateable value, £3,424; the population in 1881 was 668.

FEN DRAYTON (or FENNY DRAYTON) is a village and parish, about 4 miles south-east from St. Ives, 9½ north-west from Cambridge and 2 south-west from the Swavesey station on the St. Ives and Cambridge section of the Great Eastern railway; it is in the western division of the county, hundred of Papworth, Cambridge petty sessional division, union of St. Ives, county court district of Huntingdon, rural deanery of Bourn and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church is a small edifice of stone, in various styles, from the Early English to the Perpendicular, and consists of chancel, nave, south aisle, north and south porches and a western tower with spire containing 1 bell: the church was substantially restored in 1855 and affords 250 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from 1575; marriages, 1580; burials, 1574. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £150, in the gift of Christ's College, Cambridge; the Rev. Huntley Curtois M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge, is in charge and resides at Swavesey. The Wesleyan chapel, erected in 1866, at a cost of £1,035, is a building of white and red dressed bricks in the Gothic style, and has a turret with crocketed spire: the windows are partly stained, and there are 240 sittings. The proceeds of 22 acres of land are applied to parish purposes. There are now no manorial rights. The principal landowners are William Cooper esq. John Weldale Hannell esq. Thomas Longland Priestley esq. and St. John's and Christ's Colleges, Cambridge. The soil varies and is very fertile, producing wheat, beans, barley and turnips; great quantities of turnip seed, cucumbers and onions are grown in the parish; subsoil is gravel. The area is 1,421 acres; rateable value, £2,908; the population in 1891 was 297.

FORDHAM is a village and parish, on the road to Ely, with a station about half a mile from the village, on the Ely and Newmarket and Cambridge and Mildenhall branches of the Great Eastern railway, 5 miles north from Newmarket, 3 miles south-east of Soham, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Staploe, Newmarket union and petty sessional division, county court district of Soham, rural deanery of Fordham, archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Peter is an ancient building of stone and flint in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, organ chamber, faculty chapel, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells: the chapel of St. Mary, over the north entrance, has been restored and opened to the interior as a gallery. The register dates from the year 1567. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £348, arising from 270 acres of glebe, without residence, in the gift of Jesus College, Cambridge, and held since 1892 by the Rev. Arthur William Ivatt M.A. of that college. Here are Congregational, Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. There are six almshouses for aged widows, and a sum of £57 from several charities is distributed yearly to the general poor, in fuel, clothing and money. A fire brigade station was erected in 1889 by voluntary subscriptions. Here was anciently a priory of Gilbertine canons, founded by King Henry III. as a cell to that of Sempringham, in Lincolnshire, and dedicated to St. Peter and St. Mary Magdalen. Its revenues at the Dissolution were estimated at £40. The trustees of the late William Dunn Gardner esq. who are lords of the Priory manor, St. John's College, Cambridge, who possess the manorial rights of Bassingbourn, and Trinity Hall, Cambridge, holding the manorial rights of Felton's manor, are the principal landowners. Fordham Abbey is the seat of Mrs. Gardner. The soil is mixed, consisting of gravel, sand, loam and clay; subsoil, various. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. Here are nurseries and seed growing establishments, belonging to Messrs. Charles Townsend, George Townsend, Robert Bland and Edwin Hills Bland. The area is 4,027A. 0R. 32P.; rateable value, £7,287; the population in 1881 was 1,191, and in 1891 was 1,284.

FOULMIRE (or FOWLMERE), and in Domesday Book, Fuglemere, is a parish 6 miles north-east from Royston, 2 south-east from the Shepreth station on the Hitchin, Royston and Cambridge line of the Great Northern railway, 9 south from Cambridge, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Thriplow, petty sessional division of Arrington and Melbourn, union and county court district of Royston, rural deanery of Barton, archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Mary is a fine structure of flint, in the Early English, Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisle, transepts, south porch and a lofty embattled central tower containing 5 bells: in the chancel is a memorial window to the Rev. William Metcalfe, rector here from Mar. 4, 1814, given by his family, and there is also a monument to the Mitchell family, dated 1745 and 1748: the church was restored in 1877 and has 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1561. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £461, net yearly value £431, including 79 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Earl of Hardwicke, and held since 1870 by the Ven. Henry Martyn Lower M.A. of St. Peter's College, Cambridge, rural dean of Barton and late archdeacon and canon of Montreal. The Congregational chapel was erected in 1780; in 1870 an apse was added and an organ purchased: the chapel underwent a thorough restoration in 1878 at a cost of about £700, and a turret containing a clock and bell was added in 1881: there are 400 sittings. Charities producing £2 8s. yearly are distributed. Capt. Henry Sholto Douglas is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Frederick Meadows Beldam-Johns esq. J.P. of the Manor House, Octavius Wedd esq. Thomas Maulkin Nash esq. of Brook Farm, and Miss M. B. Nash. The soil and subsoil are chalky and gravelly. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley, beans and the usual green crops. The area is 2,211 acres; rateable value, £2,217; the population in 1881 was 542.

FOXTON is a village and parish, near the old road to Cambridge, and on the river Rhea, with a station on the Hitchin, Royston and Cambridge branch of the Great Northern railway, 52 miles from London, about 7 south from Cambridge and 6 north-east from Royston, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Thriplow, petty sessional division of Arrington and Melbourn, union and county court district of Royston, rural deanery of Barton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Lawrence is an ancient edifice of flint, in the Early English, Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, north porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 5 very fine toned bells made by Miles Graye in 1654; the eastern triplet is a very beautiful specimen of Early English work, and contains some fragments of good 14th century glass: there is a large double piscina in the chancel, and opposite it a singular recess like a sedile; the rood staircase and doors are in perfect condition: in the north aisle are two Decorated brackets, and in the south aisle a piscina; the font is Early English, but in bad condition, though restored: in the latter part of the 14th century the church possessed the privilege of sanctuary: it was restored in 1881, at a cost of £3,000, and has 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1640. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £235, net yearly value £193, with residence and 3¾ acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Peterborough, and held since 1878 by the Rev. Henry Gambles Whittington M.A. of St. Peter's College, Cambridge. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. Almshouses for four poor widows were erected in 1843 by public subscription. A charter granted to the De La Hayes in 1325 gave them the privilege also of holding a market here, and two fairs, one at the feast of St. Peter and St. Paul, the other at the feast of St. Andrew: this charter was confirmed in 1326: but there is now only one fair, which is held at Easter. The Rev. Richard Bendyshe M.A. of Barrington Hall, who is lord of the manor, and William Ward Asplen esq. Foxton Hall, are the principal landowners. The soil is gravelly and chalky; the subsoil, gravel and clay. The chief crops are wheat and barley. The area is 1,696 acres; rateable value, £2,530; the population in 1881 was 415.

FULBOURN is a consolidated parish and village, with a station on the Cambridge and Newmarket section of the Great Eastern railway, 5 miles east-south-east from Cambridge, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Flendish, Bottisham petty sessional division, union of Chesterton, Cambridge county court district, rural deanery of Cambridge and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely: it includes two parishes, viz. All Saints' and St. Vigor's. Both churches stood in the same churchyard, but on Sunday, 25th May, 1766, at about 5 a.m. the tower of All Saints' church fell and totally ruined the building; 3 of the 5 bells were lying in the ruins in May, 1774, but the oak benches and fittings had been stolen: the church was eventually taken down under the authority of an Act of Parliament; all the parochial assessments are united, but each parish appoints its own officers, and the livings are consolidated. The church of St. Vigor is a building of stone, chiefly in the Decorated style, but with some Early English and Perpendicular features, and consists of chancel, clerestoried nave of five bays, aisles, south transept or chantry, south porch opening eastward, with parvise, and an embattled western tower, containing a clock and 6 bells: in the chantry is a high tomb, with two recumbent figures of clunch stone, probably representing Edward Wood esq. and his lady, ob. 1633; here also is a tablet to Tyrrell Dalton, ob. 1682. On the north side of the chancel, under a septfoiled arch, and within a wooden shrine of six compartments, is an emaciated recumbent effigy of John Careway, a former rector of St. Vigor's, who died in 1443: in the chancel is a large brass, with effigy in cope, under a canopy, to William de Fulbourn, chaplain to Edward III. and formerly canon of St. Paul's Cathedral, ob. 1390: there are several other brasses, including one of a priest, circa 1520, and in the south aisle are kneeling effigies of a lady and two children, with the matrix of a knightly figure of the 15th century: the tower and north arcade of the nave are Early English, dating from about 1280: the south arcade is very good Decorated: the windows are chiefly Decorated and Perpendicular: on the north side of the chancel is a curious irregular cusped arch, forming a sedile: the pulpit, of carved oak, dates from about 1330, and is enriched with crocketing and quaint figures in the spandrils; the nave is seated with fine open benches, the ends being panelled and finished with poppy heads: in 1887 the beautiful Early Perpendicular east window of five lights was filled with stained glass, and in the south transept is a memorial window to Richard Greaves Townley, who died at Pekin 30th Nov. 1888: there are also several memorial tablets to members of the Townley family: the church affords 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living consists of the rectory of St. Vigor and the vicarage of All Saints, erected July 25th, 1876, joint net yearly value £700, with residence and including 570 acres of glebe, in the gift of St. John's College, Cambridge, and held since 1868 by the Rev. John Vavasor Durell M.A. late fellow and tutor of that college. The Congregational chapel, built in 1821, will seat 500 persons. The Working Men's Institute has a lending library of 900 volumes and a reading room, supplied with daily and weekly papers and magazines. There are eight almshouses, erected by subscription in 1864; the charities are as follows: £118 6s. yearly from Careway's Charity, for clothing; £135 yearly from Bishop's Charity, for flour; £50 yearly from Farmer's Charity, the greater part of which is distributed amongst the poor who regularly attend church; and a sum of £12, given by Thomas Oslar in 1722, to purchase an acre of land for a perpetual charity for the poor widows of St. Vigor's parish, the profits of which are distributed on St. Thomas' Day. A new pumping station of the Cambridge Water Works Company, erected as an auxiliary to the works at Cherry Hinton, was opened in March, 1891, at a cost of £2,000. The annual fair, formerly held here on the Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday following the first Sunday after Trinity, is now held, by Order in Council dated 19th June, 1883, on the Monday and Tuesday only. Charles Watson Townley esq. M.A., J.P. is lord-lieutenant of the county and lord of the manor; he and the rector and Joseph Chaplin esq. are the principal landowners. Fulbourn Manor is the residence of Charles Watson Townley esq. M.A., J.P.: the house stands in its own grounds of 9 acres, and is surrounded by a well-wooded park of about 78 acres. The soil is loam; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat and barley. The area is 5,105 acres; rateable value, £10,857; the population in 1891 was 1,768, including 475 inmates at the asylum.

FULBOURN VALLEY is 1¼ mile south.

NEW SHARDELOWES is 1½ mile south-east.

GAMLINGAY is a village and parish, bounded on the west and south by Bedfordshire, and by Hunts on the north, with a station on the Bedford and Cambridge branch of the London and North Western railway, 50 miles from London and 6 south-east from St. Neots, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Longstow, petty sessional division of Caxton, county court district of Biggleswade, union of Caxton and Arrington, rural deanery of Bourn and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Mary is a cruciform building of stone, in the Early English style, with Late Perpendicular additions, and consists of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, north and south porches and an embattled western tower with small tapering spire and containing 5 bells: a carved oak screen separates the nave from the chancel, and there are monuments to the Lane family, dating from 1717 and 1754, with others of much earlier date, but now defaced: the structure was new roofed in 1843 at a cost of about £200, and thoroughly restored in 1881, under the directions of Mr. J. P. St. Aubyn, architect, at a cost of £3,500: there are 350 sittings. The earliest register dates only from the year 1699, all the previous registers having been disposed of as waste paper by a former vicar. Attached to the parish is a rectory in medieties representing respectively the manors of Merton and Avenells, both in the patronage of Merton College, Oxford; the former mediety is impropriated to the college and leased by them to the incumbent of another college living; the latter is a spiritual benefice, but a sinecure, held, on the presentation of the college, by the incumbent of the vicarage, which is in the gift of the Bishop of Ely: the living is therefore a rectory and vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £426, net yearly value, with half the great tithe, £306, with residence, and including 2 acres of glebe, and held since 1890 by the Rev. William Crouch B.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. The church of St. Silvester, built in 1885-6, for the convenience of parishioners residing on Gamlingay Heath and neighbourhood, and about 1¾ miles from the parish church, is an edifice of red brick, from designs by Mr. J. P. St. Aubyn, architect, and consists of chancel, nave and south porch; there are 110 sittings. The Baptist chapel, restored in 1881 at a cost of £400, will hold 500 persons; John Bunyan is said to have preached here. The Wesleyan chapel, built by Captain W. W. Dennis in 1883, seats 300. There are also Calvinistic and Primitive Methodist chapels. The almshouses, consisting of 10 tenements for widows belonging to the Church of England, were built by Sir John Jacob kt. in 1665; at the east end is a building, formerly a chapel, for 10 poor persons, and endowed by Mrs. Elizabeth Lane in 1745 with the interest of £2,000 Old South Sea Annuities. The market, formerly held on Tuesdays, has been discontinued since 1600, when a dreadful fire having consumed nearly the whole town, the market was transferred to the neighbouring town of Potton in Bedfordshire. Woodbury Hall, the property of William Harvey Astell esq, is a mansion of Portland stone situated on rising ground commanding very extensive and pleasing views of the surrounding country: it stands nearly in the centre of an estate of 500 acres, and is now occupied by Mrs. Astell, widow of John Harvey Astell esq. d. Jan. 17, 1887. The Master and fellows of Merton College, Oxford, are the lords of the manor. The principal landowners are Merton College, Oxford; Downing and Clare Colleges, Cambridge; Captain Walter Henry Octavius Duncombe J.P. of Waresley Park, Hunts; William Harvey Astell esq. D.L., J.P.; John Carbery Evans esq. D.L., J.P. of Hatley Park, Cambs.; Edward Foster esq. D.L., J.P. of Sandy, Beds., and Samuel Woodham esq. The soil is sand, in the lower parts, clay; subsoil, gault. Bricks and tiles are made here to a considerable extent. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley, beans, potatoes and market garden produce. The area is 4,243 acres; rateable value, £7,184; the population in 1891 was

1,692, including the hamlet of WOODBURY, one mile west. TETWORTH is 1½ mile north-west.

Parish Clerk, William Arnold.

GIRTON is a parish and village, on a feeder of the Ouse, close to the road from Cambridge to Huntingdon, 3 miles north-west from Cambridge, and 2½ south-west from Histon station on the St. Ives and Cambridge line of the Great Eastern railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Northstow, union of Chesterton, petty sessional division and county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Chesterton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Andrew is a building of rubble and stone, originally in the Early Decorated style, but now chiefly Perpendicular, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, transept, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 4 bells: there are piscinæ in the chancel and south aisle: the south porch has a parvise of later date and a turret with door at the south-west angle: the tower is a heavy structure carried on three arches with a polygonal tower reaching half way up on the southern face: there are brasses in the church to former rectors, with effigies in cope and almuce, dated respectively 1487 and and 1492: the church was restored in 1853, and affords 300 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1629; marriages, 1630. The living is a rectory; average tithe rent-charge £350, net yearly value £312, with residence, and including 16 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1866 by the Rev. Robert Spedding Wilson M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford, and late fellow and tutor of that college. Here is also a Baptist chapel. The church and town lands produce £38 yearly for fuel and the relief of the village poor. St. John's College, Cambridge; Richard Archer Houblon esq. D.L., J.P. of The Cottage; William Peed esq. of Histon Hall; the trustees of the late Major King, those of the late Elliott Smith esq. D.L., J.P. of Cambridge, and Mr. Charles Sanderson are the principal landowners. The soil is principally heavy: the subsoil, clay, producing excellent crops of all descriptions of grain. The area is 1,637 acres; rateable value, £3,494; the population in 1881 was 484.

Girton College, first opened at Hitchin in 1869 and removed to its present buildings in October, 1873, is designed to hold, in relation to girls' schools and home teaching, a position analogous to that occupied by the universities towards the public schools for boys: the students' fees are fixed on such a scale as to secure that the institution shall be self-supporting, and the memorandum of association contains the following clauses:—The objects for which the association is established are, to erect, maintain and conduct a college for the higher education of women, to take such steps as from time to time may be thought most expedient and effectual to obtain for the students admission to the examination for degrees of the University of Cambridge, and generally to place the college in connection with that university;" the buildings, of plain red brick, are on the Huntingdon road, about 1½ miles from Cambridge, and were erected by voluntary contributions: the charge for board, lodging and instruction is £35 per term; there are three terms in the year, each of about eight weeks: the college course extends over three years. By a grace of the Senate of the University of Cambridge 1881, female students of this or any similar institution within the precincts of the university, who have fulfilled the conditions and standing which members of the university are requested to fulfil, may be admitted to the Previous Examination and the Tripos Examinations: in the course of the year ending June, 1891, there were 100 students in residence: mistress, Miss Welsh; vice-mistress, Miss Florence Ward; librarian, Miss Constance Jones; hon. bursar, Miss Emily Davies; lecturers—divinity, Rev. LITTLE GRANSDEN is a parish on the borders of Huntingdonshire, 2 miles north-west from Gamlingay station on the Bedford and Cambridge branch of the London and North Western railway, 6 south-west from St. Neots and 14 west-by-south from Cambridge; in the Western division of the county, hundred of Longstow, petty sessional division of Caxton, union of Caxton and Arrington, county court district of St. Neots, rural deanery of Bourn, and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is a building of stone of the latter part of the 12th century, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles and a lofty embattled western tower containing 3 bells: the chancel was restored in 1858, and its east end rebuilt and a stained window inserted by the Rev. Alfred Newby, late rector, in 1875: there are 250 sittings: the register dates from the year 1730. The living is a rectory, net yearly value arising from 421 acres of glebe £200, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Arthur Henry Winter M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, who is lord of the rectorial manor. There is a charity of the yearly value of £12, arising from the rent of cottages and land left by James Musgrave, rector of this parish from 1714 to 1747 and son of Sir Richard Musgrave bart. formerly of Hayton Castle, Cumberland: this sum is given away in coals at Christmas, and there is a further distribution of money on the last day in May. John Carbery Evans esq. D.L., J.P. of Hatley Park, Cambs, who is lord of the manor, and Mrs. Martha Sophia Webb, are the principal landowners. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The soil is light and heavy clay and sand; subsoil, beds of stone and sand. The area is 1,896 acres; rateable value, £1,610; the population in 1891 was 227.

GRANTCHESTER, in Domesday "Grauncete" and "Grauntsethe," and supposed by some to be the "Grantaceaster" of Bede, is a village and parish, pleasantly situated on the west bank of the river Cam or Granta, 2½ miles south-west from Cambridge town, 3½ south-west from Cambridge railway station, in the Western division of the county, Wetherley hundred, Chesterton union, Cambridge petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Barton, and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The Bourn brook, which separates this parish from Haslingfield and Trumpington, here joins the Cam. The church of St. Andrew is a building of clunch and rubble, with stone quoins and buttresses, in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, and consists of chancel, nave of four bays, south aisle, north porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 3 bells: the chancel is a small but perfect example of the Decorated style, and has a curious single niche on either side; in the north wall is a low ogee-headed recess, and on the south side a cinque-foiled piscina; there is a memorial window to the Rev. Francis George Howard M.A. curate here 1866-75 d. 1889; one to the Rev. William Martin M.A. the vicar 1850-82; and five other memorial windows to members of the Howard, Lilley and Hawkes families; the nave is Perpendicular and retains a recess, and at the east end of the aisle is an altar-tomb, with the matrices of brass effigies of a man, his wife, children and shields of arms, circa 1470: the font, of Purbeck marble and apparently of Early English date, is a plain circular basin on a simple stem: there is a square Jacobean pulpit ornamented in front with a shield of arms, "two chevronels and a canton:" a south aisle was erected and the nave new-roofed in 1877: the church affords 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1539. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £240, chiefly arising from 100 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Edmund Godfray M.A. formerly fellow of that college. The chapel of ease in Barton road is a structure of brick, consisting of chancel, nave and north porch, and has 200 sittings. The Baptist chapel was built in 1876 and enlarged in 1891. The fair, formerly held annually on July 25th and two following days, is now held on July 25th only, unless the 25th happens to fall on Saturday or Sunday, in which case the fair is held on the following Monday. There are some benefactions for special objects and a few small charities; Mrs. Anne Robson, who died in 1731, left £50 to the schools here.

This village is the site of a Roman station, and traces of a small Roman camp still remain. There also exists an ancient manor-house (once the refuge of the members of King's College, Cambridge, during the time of the Plague) with a moated inclosure: the mill mentioned by Chaucer was higher up the river than the present mill. The Provost and Fellows of King's College, Cambridge, are lords of the manor and chief landowners. The soil is for the most part clayey; subsoil, clay and in some parts gravel. The chief crops are wheat, oats, beans and barley. The area is 1,519 acres; rateable value, £5,217; the population in 1881 was 1,147. [For names in Newnham Croft and Barton road see Cambridge.]

GRAVELEY is a parish on the borders of Huntingdonshire, 6 miles south-east from Huntingdon, 6 north-east from St. Neots, and 3 east from Offord and Buckden station on the Great Northern main line, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Papworth, petty sessional division of Caxton, union and county court district of St. Neots, rural deanery of Bourn and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Botolph is an ancient building, consisting of chancel and nave, north porch and a low embattled western tower containing 4 bells: the chancel was rebuilt of red brick, about the middle of the 18th century; the nave, which is late Early English, and the tower are constructed of rubble with stone dressings; the church was considerably repaired in 1874-5 at a total cost of about £1,000, and affords 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1642. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £180, with residence and including 560 acres of glebe, in the gift of Jesus College, Cambridge, and held since 1881 by the Rev. William Oke Cleave M.A., LL.D. late fellow of that college. There is a small Primitive Methodist chapel. Trotter's charity of £25 yearly was left for a school, founded by a former rector of this name, who died about the middle of the last century; he also left £2 12s. yearly for bread and £2 yearly for the parish clerk. The Master and fellows of Jesus College, Cambridge, who are lords of the manor, the rector and Robert Pulham esq. are the principal landowners. The soil to a considerable depth is clayey; the subsoil is blue gault. The chief crops are wheat, peas, beans and barley. The area is 1,558 acres; rateable value, £1,147; the population in 1891 was 175.

Parish Clerk, James Dilley.

GUILDEN MORDEN is a parish and village on the river Rhea, near the borders of Bedfordshire and Hertfordshire, 3½ miles north from Ashwell station on the Hitchin, Royston and Cambridge branch of the Great Northern railway, 6 north-west from Royston and about 14 south-west from Cambridge, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Armingford, petty sessional division of Arrington and Melbourn, union and county court district of Royston, rural deanery of Shingay and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Mary is an embattled building of flint and stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave with clerestory, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with four crocketed pinnacles and spire containing a clock and 6 bells: in 1856 the interior was thoroughly repaired: in the church are memorials to William Hay, 1620; Thomas Storey, 1670; Frances Storey, 1675; and to Gertrude Storey, 1723: the church affords 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £340, with residence and including 138 acres of glebe, in the gift of Jesus College, Cambridge, and held since 1867 by the Rev. John Robert Wilson M.A. and late scholar of that college. The Congregational chapel, built in 1840, has 500 sittings. A charity, consisting of the rent of 40 acres of land, bequeathed, half for the use of the poor and half towards the expenses of the church, now (1892) produces £80 yearly, which is distributed by the churchwardens and overseer under a scheme of the Charity Commissioners. Bricks are made in the parish. In the reign of Edward II. there were two principal manors in this parish, then belonging to the families of Kyriell and Avenell; one of these was given to the Priory of Barnwell, but after the Reformation it was consolidated with the manors of Bondesbury, Bancis, Foxley and Rychards, as a single manor, and known as the manor of Guilden Morden. Morden Hall, an ancient mansion surrounded by a large moat, is now the residence of Mr. John Westrape, farmer. The manor was purchased in 1806 by Philip, 3rd Earl of Hardwicke; his successor, the present earl, who is lord of the manor, and Richard Bowman esq. of Coldharbour, are the principal landowners. The soil is various; subsoil, clay and chalk. The crops are chiefly wheat, barley, oats and beans. The area is 2,450 acres; rateable value, £3,872; the population in 1881 was 959.

ODSEY is a hamlet, about 4 miles south from the village, near to Ashwell station; Odsey Grange is the residence of Herbert George Fordham esq. and Ernest O. Fordham esq. and also Odsey House.

GUYHIRN WITH RINGSEND.—These places were formed into an ecclesiastical parish March 28, 1871, from the civil parishes of Wisbech St. Peter and St. Mary, including the hamlet of THORNEY TOLL, which is 3½ miles west, and a portion of Wisbech St. Mary, with nearly the whole of Wisbech Fen.

GUYHIRN is on the new Nene navigable river, here crossed by an iron girder bridge, 3 miles north-west from March Junction station on the Great Eastern and Great Northern railways, and 6 south-west from Wisbech, and is in the Northern division of the county, Wisbech hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Wisbech and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. The church of St. Mary, erected at a cost of £3,700 and consecrated in 1878, is built upon the site of an earlier church of the same name, which existed here in the 15th century: the present edifice, designed by the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott R.A. consists of chancel, nave, transepts, south porch and a western turret containing 3 bells: the eagle lectern was carved by the Hon. Mrs. Montgomery, of Edinburgh; the stone pulpit and font were given by friends from Devonshire and the parishioners: there is a memorial window to William Herbert Carpenter, son of the present vicar, d. 1878, and the church affords 350 sittings. The register dates from the year 1871. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £109, net yearly value £302, including 58 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1877 by the Rev. William Carpenter M.A. of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge. The old chapel of ease, now used as a mortuary chapel, is a plain building of stone, erected in 1660, and has a bell dated 1637. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel and a Wesleyan chapel at Ringsend. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners, Algernon Peckover esq. F.L.S. of Wisbech, Samuel Marriott esq. of Hornsey, London, Goddard Jackson esq. and Francis Jackson esq. of Wisbech, are the chief landowners. At THORNEY TOLL is a school church and a Catholic chapel. The soil is clay and silt; subsoil, silt. The chief crops are wheat and oats. The population in 1881 was 1,258.

HADDENHAM is village and parish, with a station on the Ely, Sutton and St. Ives branch of the Great Eastern railway, 78 miles from London, 7 miles south-west from Ely and 15 north from Cambridge, in the Western division of the county, South Witchford hundred, petty sessional division, county court district and union of Ely, Isle of Ely and rural deanery of Ely, and in the jurisdiction of the Archdeacon of Ely, all the other parishes of the Isle of Ely except this and Wilburton being in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely: the village is well lighted with gas from works the property of the Haddenham Gas Co. Limited, and leased to private enterprise. The church of Holy Trinity is a building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts, north and south porches and an Early English tower 72 feet high, rebuilt in 1876 at a cost of £1,900 and containing 6 bells, re-hung by public subscription, to the memory of Charles Phillip Yorke, 4th Earl of Hardwicke, who died Sept. 17, 1873: the chancel has been restored at a cost of £800, and the nave and aisles, including a fine new high pitched roof, at a cost of over £4,000; the transepts were rebuilt at a cost of £800, as a memorial to Archdeacon France, of Ely, sometime president of St. John's College, Cambridge: there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1570. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £222, net yearly value £220, with residence and including 6 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Archdeacon of Ely, and held since 1890 by the Rev. William Henry Shimield TH.A.K.C.L. and J.P. The "Rectory House," built by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners in 1872, stands close to the church on the north side. In 1865 the Ven. W. Emery, archdeacon of Ely, transferred the tithes of Haddenham and Wilburton to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for an annual commutation of £600, on condition that the two livings (which are in the patronage of the archdeacon) should be improved, new parsonages erected and the chancels of the churches restored. There is a Baptist chapel here and one at Aldreth; here is also a Wesleyan chapel, restored in 1891 at a cost of £550. A burial ground of 1 acre, in Church lane, was purchased in 1862 and is under the control of the vicar and churchwardens. The parish of Haddenham was originally part of the patrimony of Queen Etheldreda, foundress of Ely Cathedral A.D. 673: Aldreth, the spot where William the Norman subdued the Saxons under Hereward, as described by the late Canon Kingsley in "Hereward the Wake" and "The Camp of Refuge," are within the boundaries of this parish. The Earl of Hardwicke is lord of the manor, and Caius and St. Peter's Colleges, Cambridge, and M. Pate esq. J.P. are the principal landowners. The soil on the high lands is light gravelly, and part stiff clay; subsoil, sand; the whole of the fen lands have been drained and are in cultivation. The crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 8,845 acres; rateable value, £12,390; and the population in 1881 was 1,900, and in 1891, 1,719, including ALDRETH SOUTH, or Alderwith South, 2 miles south-west, and HILL ROW WEST, 1 mile west, hamlets belonging to Haddenham.

HARDWICK is a parish 3 miles north-by-west from Lord's Bridge station on the Bedford and Cambridge branch of the London and North Western railway, and 6 west from Cambridge, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Longstow, union and petty sessional division of Caxton, county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Bourn and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Mary is an ancient edifice of stone, in the Early Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower with spire containing 3 bells: the chancel retains a piscina: there are 182 sittings, 92 being free. The register dates from the year 1564. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £198, gross yearly value £212, net £165, including residence and 44 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1870 by the Rev. James Smith Brown M.A. of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge. In or about 970, King Edgar, by the advice of Ethelwold, Bishop of Winchester, re-established a monastery here under the Benedictine rule, and gave back to it all the lands with which it was originally endowed, appointing Brithnoth, Prior of Winchester, the first Abbot: the manor, given by him in 991 to the Abbot and Convent of Ely, was afterwards annexed to the see, till alienated by Bishop Heton in 1600: soon after this it was in the family of Long, whose heiress, Elizabeth, daughter of Henry Long esq. of Shingaye, brought it in marriage to Sir William Russell, created in 1603 Baron Russell of Thornhaugh: after some intermediate alienations, it became the property of Dr. Matthew Wren, Bishop of Hereford (1635-6), then of Norwich (1636-8) and afterwards of Ely (1638-67), who gave it to the Master and Fellows of Pembroke College, for the support and repairs of their new chapel, built chiefly at his expense, after a design by his nephew, the famous Sir Christopher Wren. The Master and Fellows of Pembroke College, Cambridge, are lords of the manor. The principal landowners are the Earl of Hardwicke, William Ward Asplen esq. of Foxton Hall, John Hodson esq. and William Hodson esq. The soil is stiff clay; subsoil, gault. The chief crops are wheat, barley and beans. The area is 1,410 acres; rateable value, £1,930; the population in 1891 was 163.

HISTON is a village and parish, with a station about 1 mile north-east, on the Cambridge, St. Ives and Huntingdon line of the Great Eastern railway, 62¼ miles from London by rail and 3 north-west from Cambridge, in the Western division of the county, hundred and union of Chesterton, petty sessional division and county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Chesterton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. There were anciently two churches in this parish, St. Andrew's and St. Etheldreda's, but the latter which stood west of St. Andrew's, about a furlong distant, was sacrilegiously pulled down in 1600 by Sir Francis Hinde, then lord of the manor, and the materials used to build his house at Madingley: in 1874, on the removal of the long unfinished gallery at the end of Madingley Hall, portions of moulded and traceried stone work formerly belonging to St. Etheldreda's were discovered, and re-incorporated in the chancel of St. Andrew's on its restoration. The church of St. Andrew is a cruciform building of rubble, in the Early English, Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of three bays, aisles, transepts, a 14th cent. south porch and a central tower carried on low arches, and containing a clock and 6 bells; the chancel and transepts are very fine Early English, and the latter have internal arcades and double piscinæ and sedilia, all highly finished: the chancel retains two sedilia: the south transept is lighted by two triplets of lancets, and was formerly the mortuary chapel of the Sumpter family, whose memorials still remain under the seats, and was restored in 1871 by the widow of W. R. Sumpter esq.: the nave piers and arches are Decorated: the font is Perpendicular and has quatrefoiled panels, and there are several stained windows, those in the chancel being of Munich glass: the chancel was restored internally, re-seated and new roofed in 1874-5, under the direction of the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott R.A. and the nave and aisles by G. F. Bodley esq. A.R.A., F.S.A.: there are 500 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1685; marriages, 1655. The living comprises the consolidated discharged vicarages of St. Andrew and St. Etheldreda, gross yearly value £350, derived from 218 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1865 by the Rev. Charles White Underwood M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, rural dean of Chesterton and honorary canon of Ely. Here are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. William Peed esq. of Histon Hall, is lord of the manors of Histon St. Andrew and Histon St. Etheldreda. The principal landed proprietors are William Peed esq. Smith Howlett Rowley esq. Messrs. Stephen and Thomas Chivers and Richard Archer Houblon esq. D.L., J.P. of Bartlow, Linton. The land produces excellent crops of grain and turnips, market garden produce and great quantities of fruit, from which Cambridge, London and other markets derive large supplies. The area is 2,300 acres; rateable value, £4,460; the population in 1881 was 969.

HORNINGSEA (or HORNINGSEY) is a parish and village on the east bank of the river Cam, 3¾ miles north-north-east from Cambridge and 2 south from Waterbeach station on the Cambridge and Ely branch of the Great Eastern railway, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Flendish, Bottisham petty sessional division, union of Chesterton, Cambridge county court district, rural deanery of Cambridge and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. Across the Cam, and joining this parish to that of Waterbeach, is a bridge, built by a company formed for the purpose about 1872, and providing a means of communication with the Waterbeach railway station. The church of St. Peter is a building of stone in the Transition Norman and later styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a western tower containing 5 bells; the chancel dates from about 1220; the north arcade of the nave is Decorated, and the south, Transition Norman; some of the windows are of the Late Decorated period, and have beautiful tracery: the east end of the south aisle, anciently a chantry, retains a large niche: the south porch has grotesque sculptures at the eaves: the church was thoroughly restored in 1865, at a cost of over £1,000, the chancel at the expense of St. John's College, and the nave by subscriptions from parishioners and friends: in 1890 the tower and other portions of the fabric were repaired at a cost of £400: there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1628. The living is a vicarage, yearly value from patrons £200, with residence, in the gift of St. John's College, Cambridge, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Herbert Henry Baker Ayles M.A. of that college. Coprolites are dug here to a considerable extent, part by Mr. W. Banyard and part by a local committee out of the common fen for the benefit of the parishes of Horningsey, Ditton and Quy. The parish enjoys one of the fens in Bottisham jointly with the inhabitants of that parish; as well as another fen in Quy and Horningsea. The poor's land produces £6 yearly. John Haviland esq. Northampton, who is lord of the manor, Messrs. Bailey & Co., King's and St. John's Colleges, Major Henry Crawley Norris J.P., D.L. of Swalcliffe Park, Oxon, and Messrs. William Potterton Fison and Samuel Fison and Jonathan William Fison are the principal landowners. The soil is clayey; subsoil, gault. The chief crops are wheat, barley, and oats. The area is 1,580 acres; rateable value, £2,568; the population in 1881 was 409.

CLAY HITHE is in this parish.

HORSEHEATH is a village and parish, pleasantly situated on the Cambridge old road, 3 miles north-east from Bartlow, 4 east from the Linton station of the Cambridge and Sudbury line of the Great Eastern railway, 4 west from Haverhill and 14 south-east from Cambridge, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Chilford, petty sessional division and union of Linton, county court district of Haverhill, rural deanery of Camps, second division, and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of All Saints is an ancient edifice of flint and rubble, in the Gothic style of the 15th century, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 3 bells: in the chancel is a brass supposed to commemorate Sir John de Argentine, ob. 1382; the canopy and inscription are lost: on the south side of the chancel are monuments with effigies to Sir Giles Alington knt. master of the Ordnance, temp. Henry VIII. ob. 1586, and his son Gyles, both clad in armour; and on the north side a monument with effigies to Sir Giles Alington, ob. 1613, his wife Dorothy, and their ten children, figures of whom surround the monument; there is also a tablet to one of the Bromleys, Barons Montfort of Horseheath, a title which became extinct on the death of Henry (Bromley), 3rd baron, April 30, 1851: a brass with mutilated effigy to Robert, son of Sir Giles Alington, ob. 1552, and Margaret (Coningsbie) his wife, and inscribed brasses to Joan Alyngton, sister and heir of John Argentein, ob. 1429 and to Mary (Cheyne), wife of John Alvington, circa 1470: the church was restored and reseated in 1891, at a cost of £400, and now affords 190 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £320, net yearly value £257, with residence and including 12 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Governors of the Charterhouse, London, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Charles Alexander Borrer B.A. of Christ Church, Oxford. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The charities amount to £25 yearly, and are distributed in money. Horseheath Hall, a magnificent mansion, erected here in 1665 by William, Baron Alington, was sold about a century later for the value of the materials, and only the foundations now remain: the park, which consisted of above 870 acres, has been disparked, and the estate was purchased a century since by Stanlake Batson esq. Horseheath Lodge, a mansion of white brick in the Elizabethan style, one mile east of the village, is the property of Stanlake Henry Batson esq. who is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is clay; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 1,849 acres; rateable value, £2,064; the population in 1891 was 507.

ICKLETON is a parish on the borders of Essex, 11 miles south from Cambridge, 6 south-west from Linton, 5 north from Saffron Walden and a mile and a half north from the Great Chesterford station of the London and Cambridge section of the Great Eastern railway, which is in this parish, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Whittlesford, union and petty sessional division of Linton, county court district of Saffron Walden, rural deanery of Camps, second division, and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Mary is a large building of stone in the Early Norman style, some portions being, however, of a later date: it consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south transept, south porch, and a central tower with a lofty spire containing a clock and 6 bells: the chancel was entirely rebuilt by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners in 1882-3, and retains a piscina and sedilia: in the north aisle is a memorial window to the Hon. Algernon Herbert, d. 11 June, 1855, and the walls bear some ancient frescoes, much obscured by time: on the jambs of the clerestory windows are various figures, and the tower ceiling is also painted: the nave arcades are supposed to be Saxon, a part of the rood loft and a screen of Perpendicular date remain, the under part of the rood loft being richly traceried: in 1886 a marble memorial was erected to St. Leger Algernon Herbert C.M.G. war correspondent, who was killed at Abu Klea in the Soudan, January 17, 1885: the church affords 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £85, with residence and including 17 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1864 by the Rev. John Amps M.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. Here is a Congregational chapel, and a Primitive Methodist chapel built in 1852. A Cemetery of 1 acre was formed in 1883 at a cost of £500, with a chapel, and is under the control of a Burial Board of six members. The town lands and cottages produce £148 yearly, which sum, excepting a small portion which is given to the school fund, is distributed in fuel and clothing. Martin's charity of £2 6s. and Swan's, of £1 4s. yearly, are also distributed. Here was once a Benedictine nunnery, founded in 1190 by Aubrey de Vere, first Earl of Oxford, or his father-in-law, Sir William de Cantelupe knt. and dedicated to St. Mary Magdalene; the prioress had a grant from King Henry III. of a weekly market and an annual fair, abolished in 1875: the remains of the Priory, now converted into a farm-house, have walls 3 feet thick: several stone coffins have been dug up on the site, which is on the estate of Col. Hamond. Here are three manors, belonging respectively to Sir Robert George Wyndham Herbert K.C.B., D.C.L., D.L., J.P. and Clare and Trinity Colleges; the lords of the manors, with Col. Robert Thomas Hamond D.L., J.P. of Pampisford Hall, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners and Col. Charles Llewellyn, of London, are the principal landowners. The soil is chalky; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat and barley. The area is 2,672 acres; rateable value, £4,325; the population in 1891 was 604. By an order which came into operation March 25, 1886, a detached part of this parish was amalgamated with Hinxton.

IMPINGTON is a small parish, 3 miles north from Cambridge, and immediately adjacent to Histon station on the St. Ives and Cambridge section of the Great Eastern railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Northstow, union of Chesterton, petty sessional division and county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Chesterton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Andrew, restored in 1879, is a small building of stone in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a low embattled western tower containing 3 bells; the wooden south porch is an interesting structure of the 15th century: the chancel retains some carved work, and in the church are several curious fragments of alabaster figures: during the restoration a fine fresco painting of St. Christopher was discovered on the north wall, where it is still preserved: there is also on the floor under the tower a very fine brass with effigies to John Burgoyne and his wife, ob. 1525, and a fine tombstone inscribed to Thomas Wibrow, ob. 1669: there are 200 sittings. The registers date from the year 1562. The living is a discharged vicarage, gross yearly value from 60 acres of glebe £138, in the gift of and held since 1882 by the Rev. Dennis Hall M.A. of the University of Cambridge, who resides at No. 2 Newnham, Cambridge. In this village resided Elizabeth Woodcock, who, on her return from Cambridge, February, 1799, was enveloped in a drift of snow, under which she remained nearly eight days and nights; she was taken out alive, and lived until the July following: a monument recording the event has been erected by subscription, on the spot where she was found. Impington Hall, a handsome mansion, frequently referred to in Pepys' Diary, was built by a member of that family, but was some years ago transferred by marriage from the family of Pepys to that of Coffin, and is now the property and residence of — Grieve esq.: attached are 34 acres of park land, containing a small lake. The principal landowners are the Master and Fellows of Christ's College, Cambridge, who are also lords of the manor. The soil is red loam and stiff clay; subsoil, clay, producing good crops of wheat and barley. The area is 1,200 acres; rateable value, £3,403; the population in 1881 was 398.

ISLEHAM is an extensive village and parish with a station on the Cambridge and Mildenhall branch of the Great Eastern railway, 6 miles north from Newmarket, 11 south-east from Ely and 16½ from Cambridge, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Staploe, union and petty sessional division of Newmarket, county court district of Soham, rural deanery of Mildenhall, archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Andrew is a spacious building of stone in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, transepts, south porch and an embattled western tower, with squat spire containing a clock and 5 bells: the east window is partly filled with stained glass, erected by George Fletcher Robins esq. of this place, to his two daughters, Caroline Mary Carr, d. 28 Nov. 1875, and Alice Maude Robins, d. 10 Nov. 1866, and there is another erected by the same donor to Frederick and Caroline Robins: the church was partially restored in 1862, under the superintendence of the late G. E. Street R.A. at a cost of upwards of £3,000: the chancel and east window were restored in 1883: a system of heating was adopted in 1886 at a cost of £180: there are 450 sittings. The register dates from the year 1566. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge commuted at £496, with residence and 2 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Henry Wilson Robinson. The rectorial tithes are £670. There is a Particular Baptist chapel in Pound lane and a General Baptist chapel in High street: both are endowed, the latter having about £50 a year: the records of the Pound lane congregation extend back to the year 1693: the Rev. C. H. Spurgeon was baptized at the ferry in the river Lark near here, May 3rd, 1850. There is a small Primitive Methodist chapel. The charities amount to about £300, including an endowment for the school, clothing &c. for the poor and payments to the inmates of the almshouses, founded and endowed by Elizabeth, wife of Sir Robert Peyton, who died in 1518, occupied by five males and five females: the income is about £90 yearly: an invalid room has been added. The village and neighbourhood are famous for the production of limestone, great quantities of which are sent to Wisbech, Peterborough and other parts by Mr. George Frederick Robins. Here also is a pumping station of the Ely Water Works Co. The trustees of the late William Dunn Gardner esq. are lords of the manor. The principal landowners are George Fletcher Robins esq. Edward Stanley Hicks esq. B.A., D.L., J.P. of Wilbraham Temple, T. Wallis esq. and Edmund John Mortlock esq. M.A., D.L., J.P. of Great Abington, and Pembroke and King's Colleges, Cambridge, and the Rev. Tansley Hall M.A. Boylstone rectory, Derby, and 4 Cumberland gate, Kew. The soil is various; subsoil, principally limestone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 5,224 acres; rateable value, £8,173; the population in 1891 was 1,698.

KENNETT is a small parish, with station on the Cambridge and Bury St. Edmunds line of the Great Eastern railway, 70 miles from London and 4 north-east from Newmarket, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Staploe, Newmarket union and petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Mildenhall, archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Ely, and is situated on the Suffolk border of the county. The village derives its name from the brook on which it stands, which was called Kennet, or Kent, by the Iberians, being a common name given by them to small streams, of which there are instances in Berks, Westmorland, Sussex and Wilts. The church of St. Nicholas is a building of flint with stone dressings, chiefly in the Early English style, and consists of large chancel, nave, north porch and an embattled western tower containing 3 bells: the church has been thoroughly restored at the expense of the present rector, at various times down to 1863: there are 100 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, average yearly value from tithe rent-charge £154, with 35 acres of glebe, in the gift of and held since 1835 by the Rev. William Godfrey M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. The charities amount to about £5 13s. 4d. yearly for distribution. Kennett Hall is the seat of the Rev. William Godfrey M.A., J.P. lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is chiefly chalk; subsoil, chalk and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,422 acres; rateable value, £1,634; the population in 1891 was 165.

KINGSTON is a parish about 8 miles north from Royston station on the Hitchin, Royston and Cambridge line of the Great Northern railway, 4 miles east from the Old North Road station on the Bedford and Cambridge branch of the London and North Western railway and 8 south-west from Cambridge, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Longstow, petty sessional division of Caxton, union of Caxton and Arrington, county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Bourn and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of All Saints and St. Andrew is a structure of rubble in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, and consists of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with turret on the north side and containing 3 bells: the north wall of the chancel retains a small recess, probably a reliquary, and on both sides are blocked arches, which appear to have belonged to side chapels or chantries: there is an ancient chancel screen, beautifully carved, and a Decorated font with octagonal basin, supported on low shafts with trefoiled arches under crocketed canopies; the arcades of the nave are Perpendicular; the church chest is of rude construction, with strong iron work: there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1570. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £95, with residence and 300 acres of glebe, in the gift of King's College, Cambridge, and held since 1885 by the Rev. John Griffith Cheshire M.A. of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge. This place had formerly a market on Thursdays, granted in 1305 to Sir Constantine Mortimer, together with two fairs, one at the festival of St. Margaret, for six days, the other for three days at the festival of St. Luke: the market and fairs have long since become obsolete. The Earl of Hardwicke, who is lord of the manor, and the Master and fellows of Queens' College, Cambridge, are the principal landowners. The soil is clay and gravel; subsoil, gault. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 1,841 acres; rateable value, £1,588; the population in 1891 was 278.

KIRTLING is a parish and village 5½ miles south-east from Newmarket, the nearest railway station, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Cheveley, union, petty sessional division and county court district of Newmarket, rural deanery of Thurlow, archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Ely. The church of All Saints is an ancient building of flint with stone dressings, chiefly in the Norman style, and consists of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, north and south porches and a western tower supported by immense buttresses and containing 5 bells: in the church are the tombs of several of the North family, including Sir Edward North M.P. for Cambridgeshire, 1st Baron North, ob. 31 Dec. 1564; and his son, Sir Roger North de Kirtling, knight banneret and 2nd baron, ob. 3 Dec. 1600; the tomb of the latter bears his recumbent effigy in armour with gold spurs, the head resting on a baron's helmet and a couchant lion at the feet, the whole being surmounted by a canopy supported on six carved pillars; a third tomb commemorates Dudley, 4th baron K.B. ob. 1677; and there are memorials to others of the family, dated 1665-6; there is also an ancient brass, but the name is obliterated, and over the entrance to the south porch is a grotesque figure of the Virgin: the church affords 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1585. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £102, arising from 172 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Lord North, and held since 1892 by the Rev. Hugh James Thomas Brookman Th.A.K.C.L. There is a Baptist chapel, seating 100, and a Primitive Methodist chapel, seating 80 persons. Almshouses were built here about 1842 by John, 2nd Marquess of Bute, a former owner of the property in this parish, in memory and at the request of his wife, Maria, eldest daughter of George Augustus (North), 3rd Earl of Guilford; she died in 1841: the buildings were subsequently converted into a nunnery, and at another time used as a Catholic school, but they have since been turned into cottages, and are now occupied by aged farm labourers. Kirtling Tower, the seat of Lord North, is all that now remains of the ancient Kirtling Hall, originally built about the reign of Henry VI. but the main part of the building was pulled down in 1801 by George, 3rd Earl of Guilford and 9th Baron North: Princess Elizabeth, afterwards Queen, was a state prisoner at Kirtling Hall, under the charge of Edward, 1st Lord North: attached to the house is a Catholic chapel, built in 1877 and dedicated to Mary Immaculate and St. Philip, and there is a house for the priest on the estate; the public are admitted to the services, which are as follows:—mass daily at 8.30 and on Sundays at 10 a.m.; Sunday afternoon, service at 4. Lord North is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 3,039 acres; rateable value, £3,433; the population in 1891 was 705.

LEVERINGTON is a parish and village, in the Isle of Ely and on the Norfolk border of the county, 1 mile north-west of the Midland railway station at Wisbech and 2 miles north-west from Wisbech station on the Great Eastern railway, in the Northern division of the county, Wisbech hundred, union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Wisbech, and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. Leverington is now divided into three ecclesiastical parishes, viz.: Leverington proper, Gorefield and Southea-cum-Murrow. The church of SS. Leonard and John is an ancient edifice of Barnack stone, chiefly in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel with aisle, clerestoried nave, aisles, south porch, and an embattled western tower with spire, containing a clock and 6 bells: the chancel retains its sedilia, and there are several monuments and an eagle lectern of oak: the font is adorned with figures under canopies: in 1877 a new roof was placed on the chancel aisle, an organ and new chancel stalls erected and the bells renovated, at a cost of about £900: the very remarkable south porch was restored in 1891; the church was previously restored in 1856 and affords 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living of Leverington proper is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £720, net yearly value £360, with residence and 3 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1891 by the Rev. Charles Bernard Drake M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. The Primitive Methodist chapel here was erected in 1885. There are charities of about £300 a year for distribution, and 19 houses granted rent free to poor parishioners. The Bishop of Ely is lord of the manor of Leverington, and the Ecclesiastical Commissioners are lords of the manor of Wisbech Barton, which extends into this parish. Henry Sharpe esq. J.P. Thomas Dearlove Dearlove, of Oxburgh Hall, Emneth, Francis Jackson esq. of South Brink, Wisbech, Edward Hugh Jackson esq. of North Brink, Wisbech, and John H. Chamberlin esq. are the principal landowners, and there are several other landowners farming their own property. The soil is rich loam. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, beans, potatoes and peas. The parish is divided into two: Leverington, with a population in 1891 of 1,163, and Parson Drove ecclesiastical parish, with a population in 1891 of 716; entire area, 7,871 acres; rateable value, £8,124.

PARSON DROVE is given under a separate heading.

FITTON END is 1 mile north of Leverington. There is a small manor here, detached from the Leverington manor lordship.

GOREFIELD and SOUTHEA-CUM-MURROW are given under separate headings.

LINTON is a small union town, parish and head of a petty sessional division, pleasantly seated on the river Granta, on the confines of the county, bordering upon Essex, with a station on the Cambridge and Sudbury branch of the Great Eastern railway, 48 miles from London, 11 south-east from Cambridge, 13 south-west from Newmarket and 6 north from Saffron Walden, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Chilford, county court district of Saffron Walden, rural deanery of Camps, second division, and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Mary is a building of flint and rubble, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north and south porches and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 5 bells: in the aisles are several monuments to the families of Paris (1551 and 1650), Stanley (1726 and 1780), Millicent (1555 and 1577) and Flack (1693, 1704 and 1705): the chancel and Millicent chapel were restored in 1879 at the expense of Pembroke College, Cambridge, the lay impropriators, a new organ being at the same time erected by the parishioners: the whole church was thoroughly restored in 1887, and has 530 sittings. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £209, net yearly value £199, including 9 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1887 by the Rev. John Charles Longe M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge, and chaplain of Linton union. Here is a Congregational chapel with a graveyard attached; and there are also Salvation Army Barracks and a small Literary Institute. Harrison's charity of £4 9s. yearly is for bread. A fair for smallwares, formerly held on Holy Thursday and the sheep fair formerly held on the 20th July are now abolished, and the market once held here has also fallen into disuse. Barham Hall, in this parish, was anciently a priory of Crutched Friars, founded about 1292, as a cell to the convent of St. Jagu de Lisle in Brittany; it is now a farm house. The remains of a Roman villa were discovered in 1825 in a field separated by the river Granta from the site of Barham Priory, and in 1862, when excavating for the railway from Cambridge to Sudbury, the workmen met with the remains of numerous skeletons in this field at a depth of 3 feet from the surface. The principal landowners are Col. Edmund Ruck-Keene J.P. of Swyncombe, Oxon, who is lord of the manor, and the Master and Fellows of Pembroke College, Cambridge, who are also the owners of the rectorial tithes. The soil here is principally gravel and chalk; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The area is 3,775 acres; rateable value, £6,376; the population in 1891 was 1,726, including 102 officers and inmates in the workhouse.

LITLINGTON is a parish, about 3 miles north-east from Ashwell station on the Hitchin, Royston and Cambridge line of the Great Northern railway, 3½ west from Royston, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Armingford, petty sessional division of Arrington and Melbourn, union and county court district of Royston, rural deanery of Shingay and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Catharine is a fine specimen of the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells: in the church is a gravestone, with an inscription in Norman French; and a memorial to Robert Stoughton, alderman of London, ob. 1690: the church has been restored at a cost of £2,000, and affords 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1652. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £179, net yearly value £170, with residence and 9 acres of glebe, in the gift of Clare College, Cambridge, and held since 1885 by the Rev. John Peter Taylor M.A. fellow of that college. There is a Congregational chapel, rebuilt at a cost of about £350, and seating about 300 persons, and a Primitive Methodist chapel. The charities, amounting to £19 yearly, are for fuel and bread. The remains of a large Roman cemetery, containing sepulchral urns and other funereal vessels, were discovered in 1828; a great part of the articles found were at first deposited in Clare College library, but are now in the Fitzwilliam museum. George Massop esq. of Long Sutton, is lord of the manor of Huntingfield, and the Rev. William Graham Foster Pigott M.A. of Abington Pigotts, holds the manor of Dovesdales. The principal landowners are George Foster esq. of Cambridge, Thomas Williamson Russell, William Russell, Mrs. Dickason and the Earl of Hardwicke. The soil is clayey and chalk; and the subsoil is clay and clunch. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, beans, peas and turnips. The area is 2,098 acres; rateable value, £2,889; the population in 1891 was 568.

Parish Clerk, Charles Lawrence.

LITTLEPORT is a large village and parish, in a fenny part of the Isle of Ely and on the banks of the navigable river Ouse, with a station on the Ely and Lynn section of the Great Eastern railway, 5 miles north from Ely, 78 from London, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Witchford, union, petty sessional division and county court district of Ely, rural deanery of Ely and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. A wrought iron bridge, with one clear opening of 105 feet, was built across the Ouse at this point in 1873, at a cost of £3,700. The place is lighted with gas from works erected in 1867 by a limited company, on a site given by the Earl of Hardwicke. The church of St. George, an edifice of stone, is a fine example of the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north and south porches and a lofty embattled western tower, containing a clock and 8 bells, hung in 1891; the tower, a conspicuous object throughout the surrounding fen district, is remarkable for the beauty of its outline: the church was enlarged in 1857 by the addition of a second nave and aisle on the north side: the chancel was restored by Clare College in 1877, and a carved stone reredos presented by the Rev. H. J. Carter M.A. rector of Duxford and curate of Littleport 1860-5; on the north side is a stained window erected by his widow to the memory of the Rev. Andrew Gatenby (for more than 21 years curate in sole charge here), who died in 1876: in 1891 also a new organ and a stained east window were erected as a memorial to the Rev. William Banner Hopkins D.D. hon. canon of Ely, and vicar here 1866-90: there appears formerly to have been a footway from north to south through the tower, used before the drainage of the fens, when the ordinary roads were impassable for foot passengers: there are sittings for 872 persons, 606 being free. The register dates from the year 1606. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £1,245, net yearly value £750, with residence and including 32 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1890 by the Rev. Samuel Edgar Perry M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. A new vicarage house was erected on the old site in 1892. About 3,000 acres on the north-east side of the parish were separated from Littleport parish and added to the ecclesiastical district of Little Ouse, Norfolk, Nov. 13, 1866, full particulars of which will be found in the Norfolk Directory.

LITTLEPORT ST. MATTHEW is an ecclesiastical parish, formed out of the old parish of Littleport, St. Mary and Holy Trinity Ely, and Downham in the Isle, July 2, 1878. The church, erected in 1878 at a cost, including fittings, of about £1,600, from the designs of W. Bassett Smith esq. architect, of London, is a structure of brick in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, south porch and a western turret containing one bell: there are 230 sittings. The register dates from the year 1878. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £234, net yearly value £220, with residence, and including 2 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1878 by the Rev. William Burleigh B.A. of Downing College, Cambridge. The area is 5,345 acres; the population in 1881 was 595. The school church at Littleport fen, built in 1869, will seat 120 persons; divine service is held here once every Sunday. The Wesleyan chapel in High street, was erected in 1890 at a cost of £1,200, and the old chapel is now used as a Sunday school. Here are also Calvinistic, Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels. A Cemetery of 1 acre was formed in 1858, at a cost of £1,200, and is under the control of a Burial Board of 5 members. The Town Hall and two Gift Houses adjoining were built in 1879 by the Trustees of the Town Lands Charity, in accordance with the provisions of a scheme framed under an Order of the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, dated 12th November, 1875. The Working Men's Club and Institute, established in 1869, and carried on in the Vestry-room of the Town Hall, has a library of 300 volumes, and reading and recreation rooms, and is well supported both by honorary subscribers and by the members, of whom there are about 70; sec. Edwin Taylor. The Public Hall, in Hitches street, will hold 450 persons. The Alexandra Hall, in Victoria street, was erected by Messrs. Hope Brothers, for the use of their work-people, and will hold 400; connected with it is the Alexandra Institute, which has a lending library of about 1,000 volumes, and a lawn tennis court. The Constitutional Hall, in Victoria street, comprises reading rooms and a hall holding about 500 persons. The shirt factory of Messrs. Hope Brothers here was considerably enlarged in 1888 and now employs about 400 hands. A Penny Bank was established in 1868, and is managed and supported by the vicar, deposits being received by the district visitors. Between the G.E. railway and the village a space of about 30 acres has been embanked and prepared as a skating ground, and for this purpose it can be flooded to a uniform depth of about 12 inches; it is managed by the Littleport Skating Association; Thomas Peacock esq. president and proprietor. The local charities, of which the Town Lands Charity is the principal, produce a sum of £350 yearly, which is distributed in coals and other articles to the poor during the winter. From these charities about 120 acres of land have been appropriated, and let in allotments to parishioners. There is also a Ladies' Charity, supported by voluntary contributions. The Earl of Hardwicke is lord of the manor and a considerable owner of property. The other principal landowners are William Luddington esq. Capt. Henry Tansley Luddington M.A., J.P. Joseph Martin esq. J.P. James Little Luddington esq. J.P.; Capt. William Robert Gamul Farmer D.L., J.P. of Nonsuch Park, Cheam, Surrey; John Hibbert esq. M.A., J.P. of Braywick Lodge, Maidenhead, Berks; The Misses Little, of Bedford House, Ely; Sir Thomas Richard Edridge, of Croydon, Surrey, and Thomas Peacock esq. The soil is fen, and subsoil, clay: the fen land has been rendered of great value by skilful draining, and also by the system of claying now generally adopted. The chief crops are wheat, beans, barley and oats. The area is 17,056 acres, about 800 of which are high land, and the remainder fen; rateable value, £20,992; the population in 1881 was 3,532, and in 1891, 3,000. By the Divided Parishes Act, a portion of Hilgay, on the left bank of the river Little Ouse, was amalgamated with this parish in 1885, all the remainder, on the right bank of the river, the property of William Luddington esq. going to Southery parish, Norfolk.

LOLWORTH is a parish on the road from Cambridge to Huntingdon, 8 miles south-east from St. Ives, 3 south from Long Stanton station on the St. Ives and Cambridge line of the Great Eastern railway and 6½ north-west from Cambridge, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Northstow, Cambridge petty sessional division, union of St. Ives, county court district of Huntingdon, rural deanery of Bourn and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of All Saints, seated on a height, is an ancient building of stone in the Late Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western tower containing 3 bells: the church once had aisles; the arcades are now built up, but appear on the inside; there is a rood screen with rich flowing tracery, and an octagonal Decorated font; some floor slabs with crosses, and a slab of alabaster with incised effigies, c. 1470: the tower, constructed of ashlar, with bold buttresses, is Perpendicular: the exterior was restored in 1865: there are 60 sittings. The register dates from the year 1537. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £155, net yearly value £122, with residence and 15 acres of glebe, in the gift of John Osborn Daintree esq. and held since 1876 by the Rev. Josias Pepys Roberts M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. The charities amount to £7 yearly. John Osborn Daintree esq. J.P. of Teignmouth, Devon, who is lord of the manor, and Clare College, Cambridge, are the principal landowners. The soil is heavy clay; subsoil, gault. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 1,076 acres; rateable value, £1,387; the population in 1891 was 140.

Parish Clerk, J. Osborn Daintree.

LONG STANTON is a straggling agricultural village, divided into two parishes, All Saints and St. Michael's, and has a station 1½ miles north from the village on the Cambridge, St. Ives and Huntingdon branch of the Great Eastern railway, 67 miles from London, 9½ north-west from Cambridge by rail and 10½ south-east from Huntingdon, in the Western division of the county, hundred of North Stow, union of Chesterton, petty sessional division and county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Chesterton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. All Saints church is a building of pebble-stone rubble in the pure Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south transept, south porch and an embattled western tower with lofty spire, containing 3 bells; the chancel retains a double piscina, triple graduated sedilia and two aumbries: there is also a piscina in the north aisle; and a very fine octagonal font of the Decorated period, with traceried panels; the tower and spire are Early Perpendicular: the south transept, the burial place of the Hatton family, contains a large altar tomb of alabaster, with recumbent effigies to Sir Thomas Hatton bart. (a former lord of the manor), ob. 23 Sept. 1658, and Mary (Alington) his wife, besides other memorials to this family: the church, including the spire, was restored in 1887, at a cost of about £800, of which £300 was contributed by R. H. Wood esq. F.S.A. of Rugby, and the chancel in 1891 by Mrs. R. H. Wood, who also, at considerable expense, repaired and decorated the tomb of Sir Thomas Hatton: the church now affords 220 sittings. In the churchyard is the base of a cross. The register dates from the year 1672. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £250, including 61½ acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1886 by the Rev.

William Henry Allen M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. The church of St. Michael, an edifice of rubble and flint, erected about 1230, is a simple yet beautiful specimen of the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a double bell gable at the west end containing 2 bells: the chancel was taken down in 1883 and rebuilt as nearly as possible on its pre-Reformation lines: a beautiful triplet adorns the east end, and there is a large and double piscina with semi-circular intersecting arches and an aumbry: the roofs of the nave and porch are covered with thatch: there are 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a rectory, tithe rent-charge £250, net yearly value £235, including 73 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Magdalene College, Cambridge, and held since 1892 by the Rev. Alfred Peskett M.A. of that college. The rectory house was erected in 1883. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The Bishops of Ely formerly had a palace here, in which Queen Elizabeth was entertained by Bishop Cox in August, 1564. From a decree in Chancery, dated 1757, it appears that the ancestors of Sir Thomas Hatton bart. had been then possessed for more than a hundred years of the manors of Long Stanton, Cheynes, Walwyns and Colvilles; the family of Hatton, descended from the Hattons of Cheshire, settled at Long Stanton in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and John Hatton esq. the first of the family who resided there was first cousin of the celebrated Sir Christopher Hatton; his third son Thomas succeeded to the estate, and was created a baronet in 1641. The park, containing the site of the old manor house, pulled down in 1864, when the estates were sold, is now the property of Christopher Hatton Gardner esq. great-nephew of Sir Thomas Dingley Hatton, 10th and last baronet, who died Sept. 19, 1812. The Rev. William Robert Finch-Hatton B.A. rector of Great Weldon, Northants, is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are the trustees of the late William Phypers esq. Henry Ivatt esq. and Queens' College, Cambridge. The soil is stiff loam; the subsoil is blue clay, producing excellent crops of wheat, barley, beans and peas. The population in 1881 of All Saints was 410; area, 1,856 acres; St. Michael's, population 73; area, 828 acres; rateable value, All Saints, £2,921; St. Michael's, £1,172.

LONGSTOWE is a parish on the Huntingdonshire border of the county, 10 miles north-east from Royston, 12 south-west from Cambridge and half a mile west from the Old North Road station on the Bedford and Cambridge branch of the London and North Western railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Longstowe, union and petty sessional division of Caxton, county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Bourn and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is a building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, north chapel, south porch and a low embattled western tower containing one bell: the chancel is pure Early English and the nave Transitional: the small chapel on the north side was built by Captain Sidney Stanley, of Longstowe Hall: the stained east window, a memorial to John Sharp esq. of Manchester, and Dorothy his wife, was erected by their children in 1864; the west window was erected by Mrs. Rushton to her three brothers: the church (with the exception of the ancient tower) was rebuilt in 1863-4, and has 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £350, arising from 406 acres of glebe, with residence, built in 1839, in the gift of and held since 1852 by the Rev. James Rushton M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. A charity here, consisting of the rents of six cottages and about 30 acres of land, was left for the repair of the fabric of the church, and the surplus (if any) is distributed amongst the poor. Longstowe Hall, the seat of Capt. Sidney Stanley M.A., D.L., J.P. is an ancient mansion, to which extensive additions have been made from 1865 to 1870: it stands in a park of about 175 acres, and has well laid out pleasure grounds; there are fish ponds in the park, which is well studded with timber, besides having good plantations. Capt Stanley, who is lord of the manor, the Master and fellows of St. John's College, Cambridge, and the rector are the chief landowners. The soil is heavy clay; subsoil, strong clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 1,496 acres; rateable value, £1,390; the population in 1891 was 296.

MADINGLEY is a parish in a valley, 3½ miles north-west from Cambridge station and 55 from London, in the Western division of the county, hundred of North Stowe, union of Chesterton, petty sessional division and county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Chesterton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Mary, restored in 1885, and standing in the Park, is a small building of stone chiefly in the Early Decorated style, and consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of five bays, north aisle and an embattled western tower with spire, containing 3 bells: the chancel is Early English, but the chancel arch and the nave arcades are Decorated; a very finely moulded arch, acutely pointed, opens into the tower: there is a good Norman font, brought here from the now destroyed church of St. Etheldreda, Histon: there are 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1539. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £57, net yearly value £134, with residence and including 9 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1890 by the Rev. Robert Yates Whytehead M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. Madingley Hall, the seat of Henry Hurrell esq. is a large Elizabethan mansion, standing in a park of 200 acres: adjoining the hall is a fine stone gateway leading to the court-yard: H.R.H. the Prince of Wales occupied this house during the time he was an undergraduate of Cambridge University. Henry Hurrell esq. is lord of the manor and the principal landowner. The soil is clayey; subsoil, gault. The chief crops are wheat, beans & oats. The area is 1,763 acres; rateable value, £1,281; the population in 1891 was 198.

MANEA (or MANEY) is a parochial chapelry and hamlet of Coveney, near the old Bedford river and in the middle of the Fens of the Isle of Ely, with a station 1 mile north from the village on the Ely and Peterborough railway, 81 mile from London, 7 south-east from March, 7 north-east from Chatteris, in the Northern division of the county, North Witchford union, South Witchford hundred, March petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of March and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. The church of St. Nicholas, erected at a cost of £3,700, partly on the site of the old church, and opened April 1, 1875, is a building of stone in the Early Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, north transept, north aisle, vestry, and a turret over the chancel arch containing 1 bell: there are 430 sittings. The register dates from the year 1708. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £663, net yearly value £424, including 10½ acres of glebe, in the gift of the Hon. Mrs. Magdalen Wellesley, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Edward Thory Marshall M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. Here are Primitive and Wesleyan Methodist chapels. Charles I., it is said, once intended to build a residence here, and a hillock in the parish is still known as "Charlemont." Earthen jars and urns containing burnt bones have been frequently found in the parish. Walter Porter esq. of the Manor, Coveney, is lord of the manor; the principal landowners are William Frederick Beart esq. J.P. of Godmanchester, the trustees of William Whitting esq. Lieut.-Col. Charles Isham Strong J.P. of Thorpe Hall, William Wiles Green, Thomas Nix and E. and R. Lamb esqs. and Thomas Gurney Mason esq. The soil is loam and fen; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, beans, potatoes and roots. The area is 5,465 acres; rateable value £9,390; the population in 1891 was 1,357, wholly dependent on husbandry. By orders which came into operation March 25, 1884, detached parts of the parishes of Downham, Wentworth, Witcham and Witchford, in the Ely union, were amalgamated with this parish.

MARCH.

MARCH is a parish and market town and the head of a county court district and petty sessional division, with an important junction station on the Great Eastern and Great Northern railways, 88 miles from London by rail, 29 north from Cambridge, 14 north-west from Ely and 9 south from Wisbech, in the northern division of the county, hundred and union of North Witchford, Isle of Ely, rural deanery of March and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely.

The town is pleasantly situated on the banks of the Nene, which is here navigable, and facilitates the conveyance of coal, corn and timber to Cambridge, Wisbech, Lynn, Peterborough, St. Ives, Bedford and various other places.

A handsome bridge of one arch was erected over the river Nene towards the north end of the town in 1850. The High street, which is the chief thoroughfare, is continued over the bridge to Broad street on the north side of the Nene, and the High causeway is lined with a fine avenue of elm and other trees.

The town is governed by a Local Board of Health of 12 members, first formed in 1851, under the Act 14 and 15 Vict. c. 103 (1851), and is lighted with gas from works the property of the March Gas and Coke Co. Limited. The Wisbech Water Works Company, by a provisional order, obtained in 1884, supply the town with water, which is brought through mains from Wisbech, a distance of 10 miles.

The town is now divided into four ecclesiastical parishes which, with three others, were formed out of the parish of Doddington subsequently to 1868, according to the provisions of the Doddington Rectory Division Acts 10 and 11 Vict. c. 3 (1847) and 19 and 20 Vict. c. 1 (1856).

The church of St. Wendreda, anciently a chapel to Doddington, and situated about a mile from March bridge, on the London road, was originally erected about 1343, and is a building in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, with stone spire, containing a clock and 6 bells: the fine and elaborately-carved oak roof was probably erected towards the close of the 15th century: the stained east window is a memorial to Mary Green, d. 12 July, 1874, and Caroline Hunt, d. 29 Dec. 1874: there are two brasses, one in the nave, immediately under the tower, dated 1517, to Catherine (Southwell), wife of Anthony Hansart, with two kneeling figures and a child, and over these a representation of the angel Gabriel appearing to the Virgin: the other is said to commemorate William Dredman, the reputed donor of the magnificent nave roof, who died in 1503, and his wife, but the inscription is now scarcely legible: the tower stands on open arches, forming a thoroughfare; beneath the parapet on the north side of the church are medallions of flint work with shields of arms: the church was partly rebuilt in 1528, when the aisles and porch were added, and restored in 1875, when a new chancel was erected, and now affords 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558, and fragments remain of a yet earlier date. The living was created a rectory by 10 and 11 Vict. c. 3 (1847), amended by 19 and 20 Vict. c. 1 (1856) and on the death of the Rev. A. Peyton, late rector of Doddington, in 1868, it became a separate living: average tithe rent-charge, £950; net yearly value, £570, with residence and including 4 acres of glebe, in the gift of the representatives of the late Rev. George E. Walker M.A. rector of Doddington, and held since 1886 by the Rev. Charles Edmund Walker M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. Population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1891, 972.

St. Mary's is an ecclesiastical parish formed in 1868: the church, at Westry, about 2 miles north of the town, was erected in 1874, and is a building of stone in the Decorated style of the 14th century, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave, south porch, vestry and a western turret containing 1 bell: there are 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1874. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge, £1,405; net yearly value, £998, with residence, in the gift of Sir Algernon Francis Peyton bart. and held since 1882 by the Rev. Thomas Thornhill Peyton M.A. of Magdalen College, Oxford. The area is 7,143 acres; the population in 1891 was 635.

The chapel of ease of St. Mary Magdalen, West Fen, erected in 1891, is a stone building in the Decorated style, and consists of chancel, nave, vestry and a turret containing 1 bell: there are 80 sittings.

St. John's is an ecclesiastical parish formed in 1872: the church, situated on the station road and built in 1872, is an edifice of stone in the Early English and Decorated styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a western turret containing one bell: in the chancel is a memorial window to Sir Algernon William Peyton bart. of Swift's House, Bicester, Oxon, the late patron, who died 25 March, 1872: there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1872. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge, £905, gross yearly value, £1,160; net, £620, in the gift of Sir Algernon Francis Peyton bart. and held since 1872 by the Rev. Edward Wells B.A., S.C.L. of Worcester College, Oxford, and surrogate. The area is 3,485 acres; the population in 1891 was 3,692.

St. Peter's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed 26th January, 1881, and comprises a central part of the town. The church, which occupies a commanding position, is an edifice of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and a lofty tower at the north-west angle, with spire and containing one bell: the lower stage of the tower forms a porch: the church was consecrated 26th January, 1881, and will seat 756 persons. The register dates from the year 1881. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £879, net yearly value £540, with residence and including 1½ acres of glebe, in the gift of Sir Algernon Francis Peyton bart. and held since 1886 by the Rev. Charles Nattali Edgington M.A. of Hertford College, Oxford. The area of the parish is 4,072 acres, and the population in 1891 was 1,697.

The Centenary Baptist chapel, in High street, erected in 1870 at a cost of £4,600, is of brick in the Italian style, and will seat 670 persons. The Particular Baptist chapel, in Sumpts, is of brick with Bath stone dressings, and affords 750 sittings. There are also Baptist chapels at Whittlesea road, erected in 1845, with sittings for 100 persons, and at Chain bridge, erected in 1859, seating 120 persons. The Wesleyan chapel, in High street, erected in 1889 at a cost of £3,500, is also of brick with stone dressings, in the Gothic style, and seats 550 persons. The Congregational chapel, Station road, erected in 1836, has sittings for 450.

The church and old churchyard and other graveyards were wholly or partially closed against interments, May 4th, 1855.

The Cemetery, on the Station road, formed in the year 1867, is about 3½ acres in extent; it is beautifully laid out, and has a mortuary chapel, with tower and spire: adjoining the cemetery are two acres of land reserved for the purpose of extension. The cemetery is under the control of the Local Board, constituted a Burial Board, May 19, 1865.

The Guildhall, in High street, erected in 1827, is a plain structure of brick: the Manorial courts are held yearly at the Griffin hotel.

The Fire Engine house is in the Market place; there is one 40-horse power steam engine by Shand and Mason, with about half-a-mile of leather and canvas hose. Above the fire engine house is the Surveyor's office; the whole is surmounted by a turret with a clock and fire bell.

The Police Station is at the back of the County Court, High street. The Post Office, in High street, near the bridge, was opened 8 June, 1887, and comprises a large and well-furnished public office, a letter carriers' room and a residence for the postmaster.

The Temperance Hall, with hotel and coffee house attached, was erected in 1885 by Miss Peckover, of Wisbech, at a cost of over £1,000; the hall will hold 250 persons. The Railway Servants' mission services and the quarterly and committee meetings of the County Council for the Isle of Ely are all held in the Temperance Hall.

Here are the head quarters of the G Co. 3rd (Cambridgeshire) Volunteer Batt. Suffolk Regiment, which has now (1892) 82 members. The March Volunteers' Club consists of enrolled volunteers, subscribing 2s. 6d. per annum and honorary members subscribing 10s. 6d. and upwards. There are in all about 150 members. The club has an excellent gymnasium and reading and billiard rooms.

The principal inns are the "Griffin," the "White Hart," and "Wade's Railway Hotel."

The market, formerly held on Friday, was altered in 1850 to Wednesday, and has now become a thriving market for corn and seeds, and is well attended. Fairs are held on the first Monday before Whit Sunday and the third Tuesday in October.

Here are engineering works, agricultural machine works, and agricultural manure works, extensive corn mills, and numerous windmills for grinding corn.

The local charities, known as the March Consolidated Charities, are now administered under a scheme framed by the Endowed Schools Commissioners and dated 29th June, 1888. The management is vested in 12 governors, of whom 5 are co-optative and 7 representative, 4 of the latter being chosen by the School Board of March and the remaining 3 by the Local Board of Health. With the exception of a sum of £220, the whole income of the charities is devoted to educational purposes, viz.:—in maintaining a Grammar School and making grants in aid of the elementary education of the parish. The almshouses, near St. Wendreda's church, were built in 1851 and will hold four married couples and four single people. The allowance to the former is 6s. 6d. per week and to the latter 4s. 6d.

The country round March is flat, and the land, which is mostly under tillage, yields heavy crops of good wheat, oats and potatoes. The land, for the purpose of effecting a drainage, is divided into six districts, comprising in all about 20,000 acres; and much land has been reclaimed and brought under cultivation. The Fen droveways within the first, fourth and fifth drainage districts have been converted into gravel roads at the expense of the owners and occupiers, and similar improvements carried out in some of the other districts within this parish.

In 1730 three urns, full of burnt bones, and some small Roman coins, were dug up in a place called "Robin Goodfellow's lane," near this town.

The area is 19,141 acres; rateable value, £46,138; the population in 1891 was 6,995.

NORWOOD, half-a-mile, and March Chain 2 miles, lie to the north; Hobbs Lot 2½ miles, Granford and White Moor 1½ miles north-west; Burrow Moor 1 mile south-west; Eusimoor and Binnimoor 2 miles east; Ranson Moor and Linwood 2½ miles south.

MELBOURN is a parish and large village, on the road from London to Cambridge, 1 mile south from Meldreth and Melbourn station on the Hitchin and Cambridge line of the Great Northern railway, 3 miles north-east from Royston and 41 from London, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Armingford, petty sessional division of Arrington and Melbourn, union and county court district of Royston, rural deanery of Shingay and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely: the village is lighted with gas from works the property of the Melbourn Gas Co. Lim. The church of All Saints is a building of flint, in the Perpendicular and Decorated styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south transept, large south porch with parvise and an embattled western tower, with four crocketed pinnacles and a small spire and containing a clock and 5 bells: the chancel and nave, as well as the tower, are embattled: there are monuments to Mary Hatton, 1760; Richard Hitch, 1716; Elizabeth Hatton, 1720; and Thomas Trigg, 1819; and a memorial window to the Hitch family, who have been owners of land in the county for upwards of three hundred years: the organ was presented in 1858, and in 1884 the church was restored at a cost of £2,300, chiefly furnished by the late John Hampden Fordham esq.: there are 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £180, net yearly value £230, with 47 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Ely, and held since 1874 by the Rev. James Hamilton M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge. The Congregational chapel, erected in 1866, at a cost of £2,500, on a site given by the Rev. A. C. Wright, then minister, will seat 800 persons: the old chapel is retained for Sunday school purposes and public meetings. The Baptist chapel, a spacious building with school rooms in the rear, and restored in 1868, has 500 sittings. The Primitive Methodist chapel, built in 1874, is now occupied by the Salvation Army. Richard William Hitch esq. and the Dean and Chapter of Ely are lords of the manors, and with Wortham Hitch esq. and St. Peter's and St. John's Colleges, Cambridge, James Ward Beldam esq. Hale Wortham esq. D.L. of Royston, Herts, Samuel Clear esq. of Meldreth, John George Mortlock esq. of Meldreth Court, and the trustees of the late John Hampden Fordham esq. (d. 1885) are the principal landowners. The soil is clayey and clunchy, and the subsoil, clay, gravel aud clunch. The chief crops are wheat, barley, beans, oats and peas. The area is 4,688 acres; rateable value, £6,539; the population in 1881 was 1,803.

MELDRETH is a parish and straggling village on a branch of the river Rhea, with a station on the Hitchin and Cambridge line of the Great Northern railway, 4 miles north-by-east from Royston, 9½ south-west from Cambridge and 42 from London, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Armingford, petty sessional division of Arrington and Melbourn, union and county court district of Royston, rural deanery of Shingay and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of the Holy Trinity is a building of stone and clunch in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 5 bells: in the church is a monument to George Pike esq. who died 1658, and beneath it the family vault of the Mortlock family: there is a memorial window erected by the vicar to the memory of his wife; another by friends of the vicar, and a third was presented by J. G. Mortlock esq. in 1885: the church was restored in 1842, and has 500 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from 1681; marriages, 1692. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £300, arising from 124 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Ely, and held since 1864 by the Rev. Edward William Cory M.A. of St. Peter's College, Cambridge, rural dean of Shingay, and surrogate. There are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. Charities producing £12 yearly are distributed in fuel. Richard William Hitch esq. of Melbourn, who is lord of the manor, Christ's College, Cambridge, Herbert Fordham esq. of Odsey Grange, the trustees of the late John Hampden Fordham esq. (d. 1885), Biscoe Hill Wortham esq. D.L., J.P. of Kneesworth House, Charles Ellis and Thomas Westrope Bowman esqrs. and John George Mortlock esq. and Mrs. Agnes Egg are the principal landowners. The soil is strong clay; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley, beans and peas. The area is 2,415 acres; rateable value, £4,449; the population in 1881 was 718.

MEPAL is a village and parish in the Isle of Ely, 7 miles west of Ely city, 4 south-east from Chatteris and a mile and a half north from Sutton station on the Ely, Sutton and St. Ives branch of the Great Eastern railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of South Witchford, Ely union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Ely and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. The Hundred Foot river, which is navigable from Bedford to Lynn, runs through the village, and forms an important means of communication. The name of the village is said to be a contraction of "Meopa's hall," Meopa being a Saxon lord. The church of St. Mary, anciently belonging, according to the inscription on the tomb of Alan de Walsingham, sub-prior and sacristan of Ely cathedral, to the church of Ely, is a building of flint and stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and a western turret containing one bell: the chancel was restored and reseated by the Rev. Charles S. Harris LL.M. rector (1876-84): there are about 200 sittings, 100 being free. The register dates from the year 1659. The living is a rectory, gross average tithe rent-charge £232, net yearly value £300, with 50 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Ely, and held since 1884 by the Rev. George William Asplen M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. Here is a Baptist chapel. A market was held here up to 1834, when it was removed to Chatteris. A sum of about £12 yearly, arising from 6 acres and known as "Aspland's Charity," is distributed in money at Christmas. Fortrey Hall, now a farm house, derives its name from James Fortrey esq. an exile from Brabant in the reign of James I. The principal landowners are the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, who are lords of the manor, trustees of the late Richard Bryan and of the late Wm. Cole. The soil is loam, with fen land; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 1,524 acres; rateable value, £2,574; the population in 1891 was 389.

POST OFFICE.—Tom Newton, receiver. Letters arrive from Ely at 7.50 a.m. & 3.15 p.m.; dispatched at 10.40 a.m. & 4.50 p.m. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid. The nearest money order & telegraph office is at Sutton

MILTON is a parish and village, on the road from Cambridge to Ely and on the river Cam, 3½ miles north-north-east from Cambridge, and 2½ east from Hilston station on the St. Ives and Cambridge line of the Great Eastern railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of North Stow, union of Chesterton, petty sessional division and county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Chesterton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of All Saints is a building of rubble and stone, in mixed styles, with some remains of Norman work, and exhibits various peculiarities of construction: it consists of chancel, nave, north aisle, south aisle, south porch and a western tower of the Late Decorated period, containing a clock and 3 bells: the north aisle, which had been demolished, was rebuilt in 1864: the chancel retains its Norman arch and a double piscina, which, however, has been mutilated by the insertion in the Perpendicular period of three very beautiful graduated sedilia: there are also some good miserere benches, said to have been brought from King's College chapel, Cambridge, and on the north side an altar tomb with a brass, dated 1553: the nave dates from about the year 1300 and is of Late Geometric character: on the south side of the chancel arch is a singular recess, possibly a hagioscope: in the church is a fine marble monument by Flaxman, to Mrs. Knight, d. 1800; and one by Chantrey to Mr. Samuel Knight, d. 1829: a stained window was placed in the north aisle in 1892 by the present rector to the memory of his wife, who died in 1889: there are 302 sittings, 179 being free. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1707; marriages, 1754; burials, 1709. The living, formerly a sinecure, is now a consolidated rectory, gross yearly value about £450, net £414, with residence and including 274 acres of glebe, in the gift of King's College, Cambridge, and held since 1841 by the Rev. John Chapman M.A. formerly fellow of that college. Here is a Baptist chapel. The charities, producing about £50 yearly, are now administered under a scheme framed by the Charity Commissioners, including the appointment of fresh trustees; two parts of the total sum are applied for the use of the poor, one to the surveyors of highways and one to the church. John Percy Baumgartner esq. is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are King's and Pembroke Colleges, Cambridge, Alfred Marshall Robinson esq. J. V. Pryer, of Cambridge, Professor Babington, of Cambridge, and the trustees of the late Thomas Gunnell esq. The soil is stiff, in places light; subsoil, clay and gravel. The crops are wheat, barley, peas, beans, potatoes and turnips. The area is 1,378 acres; rateable value, £4,487; the population in 1881 was 554.

NEWMARKET.

NEWMARKET is a market and union town and head of a county court district, with a station on the Great Eastern railway, 72 miles from London, the town being 60 miles distant by road and 13 east-by-north from Cambridge; in two parishes, All Saints, Eastern division of Cambridge, and St. Mary's, in the Western division of Suffolk; the former being in Cheveley hundred, Cambridge, and the latter in Lackford hundred, Suffolk—the High street dividing the two counties—it is also in the rural deanery of Fordham, archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Ely.

The town, which includes part of Wood Ditton and part of Exning (Suffolk), is governed by a Local Board of Health of 12 members. It is lighted with gas from works in the Exning road, the property of the Newmarket Gas Co. Limited. The water works, erected in 1883-4, by the Newmarket Water Works Co. Limited, include a covered reservoir on Warren hill, holding 250,000 gallons, supplied from a spring near Exning.

The church of St. Mary is a building of flint with stone dressings, in the Early English and Late Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, with shingled spire, containing a clock and 5 bells: the chancel retains an Early English piscina, discovered in 1856, and found to inclose a small purse containing three Nuremburg jettons of common type: there are memorial windows to the Rev. John Denman M.A. rector (1869-80), and to William and Ann Ratliff and to Joseph Dawson, and inscribed tablets to William, second son of Sir Thomas Martyn kt. of Barton Court, ob. 1683, and to the Flesher and Fisher families, 1697-1704: in the north aisle is buried R. Cooke, a former rector, ob. 1681: the church was enlarged and repaired in 1856, and restored in 1887 at a cost of £3,000: there are about 700 sittings, 120 being free. The register dates from the year 1638. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £54, net yearly value £219, including 39 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Duke of Rutland K.G. and held since 1881 by the Rev. John Imrie M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge, and surrogate.

All Saints' church, erected in 1876-7, on the site of an older structure, as a memorial to Col. Lord George John Manners, of Cheveley Park, who represented the county of Cambridge in parliament for twenty years and died September 8, 1874, is a building of flint with Bath stone dressings, in the Decorated style, and consists of apsidal chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, vestry, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles containing 8 bells: the organ was the gift of Lady Adeliza Manners, and cost £300: there are eight stained windows, including the east and west windows: the handsome stone pulpit and beautiful carved oak lectern were both gifts, as well as an oak screen presented by the Hammond family: the chancel was enlarged in 1887 at a cost of between £700 and £800, and a new east window erected and filled with stained glass in memory of the Rev. Thomas Romaine Govett S.C.L. vicar (1868-80): there are about 800 sittings, 200 being free. The register dates from the year 1622. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £227, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Elijah Harrison Littlewood M.A. of Trinity College, Oxford, and rural dean of Fordham. The vicarage house was built as a memorial to John Henry, fifth Duke of Rutland K.G.

Saint Agnes is an ecclesiastical parish formed in 1887 by an Order in Council, out of the parishes of Exning and Newmarket St. Mary. The church, erected in 1886 by Caroline, Duchess of Montrose, is an edifice of red brick with stone dressings, in the Decorated style, and consists of chancel, with north chapel and organ chamber on the south side, nave and a highly ornamental turret containing 1 bell: there is a handsomely carved oak pulpit and a stone font: the east wall of the chancel is beautifully decorated with mosaics representing "the Angelic order" and "the Heavenly Jerusalem," by Salviati: all the windows are stained: the organ was erected at a cost of about £500: the interior is lighted by electricity: there are about 120 sittings, all being free: in the churchyard is a fine Calvary cross erected as a memorial to W. Stirling Crawfurd esq. and there is an oak lych gate. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of the dowager Duchess of Montrose, and held since 1888 by the Rev. William Colville Wallis M.A. of Emanuel College, Cambridge.

The Catholic church, in Lower Station road, erected in 1861, and dedicated to Our Lady Immaculate and Saint Etheldreda, has about 80 sittings, half being free.

The Congregational church, erected in 1863, at a cost of upwards of £2,000, on the site of the old palace of Charles II. in commemoration of Nonconformists who suffered persecution in that reign, is a structure in the Gothic style, with 640 sittings: the oak pulpit and sittings were made from the timber of the old building.

There is a Primitive Methodist chapel in Granby street with 230 sittings.

The Wesleyan chapel, in St. Mary's square, erected in 1892, at a cost, including site, of £2,000, is an edifice of red brick with stone dressings in the Gothic style, and will seat 350 persons.

The Cemetery, situated on elevated ground at the west end of High street, near the racecourse, has an area of 8½ acres and two mortuary chapels: it is under the control of a Burial Board, formed in 1857, and consisting of 18 members, one third of whom retire annually.

Public Baths and a Steam Laundry were erected in Grafton street in 1886, and are the property of a limited liability company.

The Public Clock tower, erected in 1889, at a cost of £600, at the junction of High street and the Bury and Upper Station roads, is of red brick with stone dressings, and contains a clock given by the late Charles Blanton esq.

A corn market is held here. The market day is Tuesday; the fairs for stock are held on Whit Tuesday and November 8th. A sale of cattle, sheep and pigs is held on market days at the sale yard, "Waggon and Horses."

The Stablemen's Institute, founded in 1887 by Mr. T. J. Moaksom and the Rev. E. H. Littlewood M.A. contains a library of about 300 volumes, and rooms for billiards, bagatelle and other amusements. It is supported chiefly by voluntary contributions amongst the principal race-horse owners of the district. In connection with the institute is a benevolent fund; free instruction classes are also held during the winter months for men and boys.

A Cottage Hospital and Almshouses were erected in 1879-80 as a memorial to the Hon. Henry John Rous, admiral R.N. who died 19th June, 1877: the almshouses are for 12 persons, three married couples and six single persons: the hospital, which is on the pavilion system, contains ten beds for patients, chiefly reserved for those meeting with accidents in connection with the many racing establishments: the buildings occupy an elevated site to the east of the town, given by the late Sir Richard Wallace bart. K.C.B. and form a picturesque group of English Renaissance character on three sides of a quadrangle.

The Fever Hospital, in Fordham road, was erected in 1889 and contains ten beds.

There are several charities, left by different persons, the proceeds of which, amounting to £12 yearly, are divided amongst the poor on St. Thomas' day.

In the town is a house once occupied by Nell Gwynne.

Newmarket is celebrated for its races, racecourse and racing and training establishments, which are frequented by visitors from all parts of the country and the Continent: the course, on which several stands have been erected, adjoins the town and extends to about 4 miles westward: there are generally from 1,500 to 2,000 horses in training on the Downs, where there is a remarkable earthwork, called "The Devil's Ditch," 4 or 5 miles long, and consisting of a deep foss and mound, with a slope of 52 feet on the south-west side and 26 feet on the north-east side, the whole being 100 feet in breadth. The Jockey Club is a body founded in the reign of George II. between 1727 and 1760; the club has commodious buildings here containing suites of rooms for the use of the members during the race meetings. The chief owners of horses in training at Newmarket are Prince Soltykoff, the Duke of Devonshire, Duchess of Montrose, Duke of Portland, Duke of St. Albans, Duke of Hamilton, Marquess of Londonderry K.G. Earl of March, Earl of Zetland, Earl Fitzwilliam, Earl of Rosslyn, Earl of Strafford, Earl Cadogan, Earl of Dudley, Earl of Durham, Lord Calthorpe, Lord Gerard, Lord Randolph Churchill M.P. Hon. C. W. W. Fitzwilliam, Sir George Chetwynd bart. Sir R. Jardine bart. M.P. Colonel J. T. North, Captain J. O. Machell, J. H. Houldsworth esq. Chevalier E. Ginistrelli, Earl of Rosebery, Earl of Ellesmere, M. M. Ephrussi, Mr. R. Peck, Leopold de Rothschild esq. Baron A. de Rothschild, G. A. Baird esq. the Rt. Hon. James Lowther P.C., M.P. Douglas Baird esq. Daniel Cooper esq. Noel Fenwick esq. C. D. Rose esq. and J. Blundell Maple esq. M.P. The race meetings are held as follows: 1st, Craven meeting; 2nd, 1st Spring meeting; 3rd, 2nd Spring meeting; 4th, 1st July meeting; 5th, 2nd July meeting; 6th, 1st October meeting; 7th, 2nd October meeting; 8th, The Houghton meeting.

The population of All Saints in 1891 was 2,322 and of St. Mary's, 2,543; the area is, of the former, 320 acres; rateable value, £14,515; and of the latter, 250 acres; rateable value, £14,849: the population of the Local Board district in 1891 was 6,213.

Parish Clerks (All Saints), Arthur Peck; (St. Mary), Francis Hammond.

NEWTON (near Cambridge) is a parish on the Barkway high road between Cambridge and London, 6 miles south from Cambridge and nearly 1 mile south from Harston station on the Cambridge, Royston and Hitchin branch of the Great Northern railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Thriplow, union of Chesterton, petty sessional division and county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Barton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Margaret is an edifice of stone and clunch in the Early English and later styles, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, transepts, north porch and an embattled western tower with a projecting turret on the south side, and containing 3 bells: the transept arches are Early English, those of the aisle Decorated; both nave and transepts have very good Perpendicular roofs and the north transept contains an aumbry: the tower arch is a very fine example of the Decorated period, with deep continuous mouldings: the font, an interesting feature, dates from about 1200, and consists of a square basin chamfered upwards to an octagon and supported on five shafts: the church was restored in 1851 and has four stained windows: there are 160 sittings. The register dates from the year 1560. The living is a vicarage, annexed to that of Hauxton, average tithe rent-charge £168, joint net yearly value £264, with 66 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Ely, and held since 1890 by the Rev. William Ward TH.A.K.C.L. who resides at Hauxton. Newton Manor House is the residence of William Hurrell esq. J.P, and Newton Hall of Frederick Granville Sinclair esq. The Dean and Chapter of Ely are impropriators of the great tithes and are lords of the manor. The principal landowner is Francis Alexander Richard Pemberton esq. D.L. The soil is chalky; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 963 acres; rateable value, £1,332; the population in 1891 was 196.

Parish Clerk, William Pack.

Letters from Cambridge delivered at 8 a.m. & 2 p.m. PILLAR LETTER BOX cleared at 12 noon & 6 p.m. week days & 10.20 a.m. sundays. The nearest money order & telegraph office is at Harston

National School (mixed), erected in 1852, for 100 children; average attendance, 25 & endowed by the late Christopher Pemberton esq.; Miss Mary Shackle, mistress

NEWTON (near Wisbech) is a parish and picturesque village in the Isle of Ely, on the Norfolk border of the county, one mile from Ferry station on the Peterborough and Sutton Bridge section of the Midland railway, 4 miles north from Wisbech Great Eastern station, in the Northern division of the county, Wisbech hundred, union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Wisbech, and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. The church of St. James is an edifice of stone in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of six bays, aisles, south porch and a western tower with spire containing a clock and 6 bells: the tower, porch and aisles are of good Decorated character; the nave has clerestory windows of Perpendicular date; and the chancel is of the same period: there are several ancient sepulchral slabs and an Early font: the east window and also one of the north and the south windows in the chancel are stained, and there are 360 sittings. The register dates from the year 1685. The living is a rectory, with the chapelry of St. Mary's-in-the-Marsh annexed, average tithe rent-charge £374, net yearly value £436, with residence and including 176 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Arthur Robertson Evans M.A. of Oriel College, Oxford, hon. canon of Ely and chaplain to the Bishop of Ely. Here is a Free Methodist chapel, erected in 1868. There are almshouses for four poor widows, unendowed and let a nominal rate. Edward Hugh Jackson esq. of North Brink, Wisbech, is lord of the manor, and the rector, Samuel Stockdale esq. of Leverington, the trustees of S. West and the trustees of Richard Young esq. are the chief landowners. The soil is loam; subsoil, clay and silt. The chief crops are wheat, oats, beans, peas, mustard and potatoes. The area is 3,056 acres; rateable value, £4,828; the population in 1891 was 436.

OAKINGTON, properly Hockington, the place being really named after the Hocings, one of the royal tribes of Frisia mentioned in Beowulf and "The Travellers' Song," is a parish and village with a station on the St. Ives and Cambridge line of the Great Eastern railway, 64½ miles from London and 5 north-west from Cambridge, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Northstow, union of Chesterton, petty sessional division and county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Chesterton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Andrew is a large edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north porch and an embattled western tower containing 4 bells, of which the treble and third were cast in 1655 and the tenor in 1656, all three by Miles Graye, of Colchester; the second is dated 1748: the south porch was destroyed in 1842: the church retains an ancient stone font consisting of a rudely arcaded basin, supported on five shafts, and there are three massive stone coffin lids, supposed to date from about 1350; these were found under the floor, and one bears a floriated cross: both aisles originally had chantries at the east end, and the north aisle still retains two niches: the tower, very well built of rubble masonry, with Barnack stone quoins, belongs to the Early Decorated period: the church was restored in 1885, under the direction of W. M. Fawcett esq. M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge, architect, and affords 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1561. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £150, with residence and including 91 acres of glebe, in the gift of Queens' College, Cambridge, and held since 1858 by the Rev. William George Searle M.A. late fellow of that college. The list of vicars dates from 1315. In a garden near the church are the graves of three Puritan ministers, Joseph Oddy 1687, Francis Holcroft 1692, and Henry Osland 1711. There are Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels. The manor of Hockington was given in 946 by its owner, Turketyl or Thuraytel, chancellor of King Edred, to Crowland Abbey; it was devastated by the Danes in 1009, but the buildings were restored by Abbot Brittimer in 1018-48: the manor and rectory remained in the possession of Crowland Abbey till the surrender of the monastery December 8, 1539; in 1557 it was purchased by Queens' College, Cambridge. The chief landowners are Queens' College, Cambridge, who are lords of the manor, the trustees of the late H. J. Adeane esq. (d. 1870) and John Linton esq. of Cambridge. The soil is stiff loam, and the subsoil, clay. Wheat, barley, beans, peas, potatoes and turnips are the chief crops. The acreage of the entire parish is 1,618; rateable value, £2,624; the population in 1891 was 430.

WESTWICK is a hamlet of this parish, half a mile north-east, in the hundred and union of Chesterton. The area is 240 acres; rateable value, £521.

ORWELL is a parish, adjacent to a Roman road, 3 miles north-west from Shepreth station on the Hitchin, Royston and Cambridge line of the Great Northern railway, 8 south-west from Cambridge and about 7 north from Royston, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Wetherley, petty sessional division of Arrington and Melbourn, union of Caxton and Arrington, county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Barton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Andrew is a building of stone and flint, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 5 bells: the chancel is Perpendicular and the nave Early English: in the chancel is an effigy of Dr. Jeremiah Radcliffe, one of the forty-seven translators of the Bible in 1608-11, buried here 4 March, 1625: the church was repaired in 1883, under the direction of Mr. William White, architect, of London, when the roof was renewed in oak, part of the old timber being re-incorporated; at the intersections of the ribs is an interesting series of shields, bearing the arms of many of the principal county families painted in distemper, but the blazonry being almost obliterated was restored from a record preserved in a manuscript at Wimpole Hall: there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £300, with residence and including 338½ acres of glebe, in the gift of Trinity College, Cambridge, and held since 1859 by the Rev. Henry Carr Archdale Tayler M.A. formerly fellow of that college. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. Messrs. Philip and Arthur Meyer have an extensive brewery and maltings here. The Rev. Richard Bendyshe M.A. of Barrington Hall, who is lessee of the manor under Christ's College, Cambridge, and Philip and Arthur Hugh Meyer esqs. are the principal landowners. The soil is clayey and chalky, and the subsoil clay, gault and limestone. The crops are wheat, barley, beans and peas. The acreage is 2,025; rateable value, £3,044; the population in 1891, 689.

OUTWELL is a parish mostly in Norfolk, and is given in Kelly's Directory of that county.

OVER is a large parish, near the navigable Ouse, and within 1 mile north-by-east from the Swavesey station on the St. Ives and Cambridge section of the Great Eastern railway, 5 east from St. Ives and 9 north-west from Cambridge, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Papworth, union of St. Ives, Cambridge petty sessional division, county court district of Huntingdon, Chesterton rural deanery and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is an edifice of stone, principally in the Decorated style, and consists of chancel, clerestoried nave of six bays, aisles, a fine south porch and a western tower with lofty octagonal spire, rising to a height of 156 feet and containing a clock with chimes and 6 bells: the chancel is Perpendicular but retains an Early English piscina and chancel arch, the columns of the latter having been cut away in order to insert the rood screen, a good Perpendicular work of seven divisions, with groined loft above: both nave and chancel have high-pitched decorated roofs, and the nave and aisles are embattled: the north aisle retains a piscina, and the south aisle exhibits on the exterior some exceedingly fine and bold gurgoyles: the south porch is a very beautiful and highly enriched composition of the Decorated period, and the tower is Early in this style: over the west doorway is a rude carving of the "Assumption of the Virgin:" the whole of the north aisle has been rebuilt, and the church re-seated: the tower and spire were repaired in 1864, at a cost of £600, defrayed by the churchwardens out of the thirds received by them from the Over town lands charity; and the chancel has also been restored: in 1882 a clock and chimes were placed in the tower: the organ was also repaired at a cost of £105, the spire restored at a cost of £220, and lamps placed in the church at a cost of £69: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1577. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £155, arising from 55½ acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Trinity College, Cambridge, and held since 1892 by the Rev. James Francis Galloway M.A. of that college. The list of rectors and vicars dates from 1315. There are Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels. Lady Kirby's Charity of £22, is applied towards the education of poor children and in providing gifts for the poor: a sum of nearly £370 16s. yearly, derived from the town lands, is, after payment of the various expenses connected therewith, divided into thirds, one-third being paid over to the churchwardens for church purposes; one-third is paid to the overseers for the poor rate account, and the remaining third, called "the constables' third," is applied in various ways for the ease and benefit of the parishioners: Wades' Charity of £5 yearly is for bread. The manor was given to the abbot and convent of Ramsey, by Ednothus, Bishop of Dorchester (1034-50), and in the year 1619 James I. granted it to George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham: in 1676 it was alienated to Sackville Wade esq. and since then it has passed through the families of Kirby, Phillips, Edwards and Taylor to the present owner, John Foster esq. who is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Trinity and Jesus Colleges, Cambridge; Chauncy Arthur Taylor esq. J.P. of Southery Manor, Downham Market; Ebenezer Foster esq. Mrs. Mary Buller, Rev. Francis Cotton Marshall M.A. rector of Little Wilbraham; John Osborne Daintree esq. J.P. of Norwood cottage, Teignmouth, Devon; Mrs. Shaw, of Fen Drayton, Hunts; and the trustees of Over. The soil is strong clay; subsoil, gravel and clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats, beans and garden produce. The acreage is 3,565; rateable value, £7,074; the population in 1891 was 1,004.

PAMPISFORD is a village and parish, with a station 1½ miles north-east from the village, on the Cambridge and Melford branch of the Great Eastern railway, and 1¼ miles north-east from the Whittlesford station on the main line of the same system, 50 miles from London, 8 south from Cambridge, 5 west from Linton and 8 north from Saffron Walden, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Chilford, union and petty sessional division of Linton, county court district of Saffron Walden, rural deanery of Camps second division, archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. John the Baptist, which is surrounded by fine elms, is a structure of flint and rubble, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, wooden south porch and a western tower with spire containing a clock and 4 bells: the arcades are Transition Norman; the font is Norman, and there is an Early Norman south doorway; the rood-screen is in good preservation and an oaken cross was placed above it in 1887: there is a memorial window to Dorothy, wife of F. Prince esq. of Sawston, and another placed by Col. Hamond R.A. and Miss Hamond in memory of William Parker Hamond esq. J.P., D.L. d. 1884: the church was restored about 1850, under the direction of Mr. Philip C. Hardwick F.S.A. architect, and affords 270 sittings, 220 being free. The register dates from about the year 1565. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £70, with residence and including 40 acres of glebe, in the gift of Edmund John Mortlock esq. and held since 1891 by the Rev. Charles Henry Brocklebank M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. A brewery, erected here in 1882 by Messrs. Bathe and Co. has since been rebuilt and considerably enlarged by Mr. P. L. Hudson. Pampisford Hall, the seat of Col. Robert Thomas Hamond R.A., D.L., J.P. and about a mile from the village, is a substantial mansion of brick, remodelled from designs by G. Goldie esq. R.A.: the entrance hall has a beautifully carved oak staircase, and the dining-room an elaborately designed oak fireplace and massive sideboard of oak, the produce of the late Mr. Parker Hamond's estate at Haling Park, in Surrey: there are also here two fine portraits by Gainsborough; the dining-room, library and anteroom have fine ceilings in the Tudor style: the woods and grounds have been much improved and altered, from the designs of Mr. R. Marnock, and an approach made from the village past the mansion to the Newmarket road, near the station, ending in an avenue of cedar and oak: a magnificent collection of conifers has been formed, including specimens from Japan, China, Mexico and California, besides a rich collection of Austrian, Pyrenean and other species: south of the mansion is an Italian flower garden, also laid out from Mr. Marnock's designs: on the south side, running east and west for more than a mile, and in excellent preservation, is an ancient British dyke, the upper or eastern end of which is crossed by the abandoned Chesterford and Newmarket railway; still more southward is the new park, bounded by other plantations and groups of trees. Col. Hamond, who is lord of the manor, and Edmund John Mortlock esq. are the principal landowners. There were formerly two manors here, which appear to have been united prior to the reign of James I. when the manor was the property of the Marsh family: together with other estates it came in the 17th century to the family of Parker, by a marriage with the heiress of the Marsh family, and shortly after, by a marriage with the heiress of the Parkers, it was transferred to the family of Sir William Hamond, from whom the present owner is descended. The soil is mixed, and the subsoil chalk and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley and a little oats. The area is 1,500 acres; rateable value, £2,107; the population in 1891 was 329

PAPWORTH EVERARD is a parish, on the road from Royston to Huntingdon and on the borders of Huntingdonshire, 6 miles south-west from St. Ives, 8 east from St. Neots and 6 south-east from the Huntingdon station, on the main line of the Great Northern railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Papworth, petty sessional division of Caxton, union of Caxton and Arrington, county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Bourn and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Peter is a structure of flint with stone dressings in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north porch and an embattled tower on the north side with spire and containing 2 bells: the church was restored and almost rebuilt in 1850; the tower erected in 1871 and the spire added in 1877: the east and west windows are stained, and there is another erected in 1892 to the late Rev. Edward Cheere M.A., J.P. of Papworth Hall: the church affords 120 sittings. The register dates from the year 1565. The living is a discharged rectory, average tithe rent-charge £144, net yearly value £150, with residence and including 22 acres of glebe, in the gift of Trinity College, Cambridge, and held since 1879 by the Rev. Edward Dale Galloway M.A. of that college. The trustees of the late Rev. Edward Cheere M.A., J.P. and Capt. Walter Henry Octavius Duncombe J.P. of Waresley Park, St. Neot's, Hunts, are the principal landowners. Papworth Hall, the property of the trustees of the late Rev. Edward Cheere M.A., J.P. is a mansion in the Classic style, standing on rising ground adjoining the Old North road, and approached by a carriage drive with two entrance lodges; attached to the house are 10 acres of garden and pleasure grounds. The soil is heavy clay; subsoil, blue gault. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 1,091 acres; rateable value, £1,038; the population in 1891 was 134.

PAPWORTH ST. AGNES is a parish, on the borders of and partly in Huntingdonshire, about 8 miles north-east from St. Neots, about 14 west from Cambridge, 5 south-east from Huntingdon, and 4½ south-east from Offord and Buckden station on the Great Northern main line, in the Western division of the county, hundreds of Papworth and Toseland, petty sessional division of Caxton, union of Caxton and Arrington, county court district of Huntingdon, rural deanery of Bourn and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. John the Baptist, built on the site of a more ancient structure, is an edifice of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, north porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 2 bells: the tower was rebuilt in 1848 and the chancel and nave in 1854, in the Decorated style, by the Rev. H. J. Sperling, then rector: the east window is stained, and the nave contains four memorial windows to the Sperling family: there are 120 sittings. The register dates from the year 1570. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £227, net yearly value £52, with residence and including 79 acres of glebe, in the gift of Arthur Sperling esq. and held since 1858 by the Rev. Frederick Hayne Sperling M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, who is non-resident; the Rev. Arthur Frederick Heaton B.A. of Clare College, Cambridge, has been curate in charge since 1890. The manor of Russells, in this parish, belonged, in the reign of King John, to a family of that name, from whom it passed successively to the families of Papworth and Mallory, and is now the property of Arthur Sperling esq. D.L., J.P. who is the sole landowner. The soil is heavy clay; subsoil, blue gault. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and beans. PRICKWILLOW is a hamlet and ecclesiastical parish formed April 5, 1878, from Holy Trinity and St. Mary parishes Ely and Littleport, Cambridgeshire, and of parts of Lakenheath and Mildenhall, Suffolk, and part of Norfolk, 4 miles north-east from Ely station, on the Cambridge, Ely and Lynn section of the Great Eastern railway, and 4 south-east from Littleport, in the Eastern division of the county, petty sessional division and county court district of Ely, and in the rural deanery of Ely and the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. This hamlet is on the river Lark, which rises at Bury St. Edmunds and here joins the river Ouse: the Lark is spanned within the parish by two bridges. The church of St. Peter is an edifice of brick and flint, consisting of nave with transepts, south porch and a central tower with spire containing one bell, formerly in Ely cathedral: the stained east window is a memorial to the children of a former vicar: the beautiful font of Italian marble, also brought from Ely cathedral, and said to have been designed by Sir Christopher Wren, is dated 1693 and has a cover of wood curiously carved, and surmounted by a group representing the baptism of Our Saviour; the figure of an angel suspended from the roof of the church holds the cover by a long cord; there are 350 sittings. There being no churchyard here interments take place at Ely. The register dates from the year 1861. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value, £310, with residence, in the gift of the vicar of Holy Trinity, Ely, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Claude Drewitt Kingdon B.A. of Keble College, Oxford. A parish room was erected in 1888 by the vicar in the Vicarage garden, and is used for parish gatherings and classes. There are also Wesleyan, Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels. Here are three steam pumping engines for draining the fens. The principal landowners are the Eccliastical Commissioners and the Dean and Chapter of Ely and George Edward Foster esq. of Brooklands, Cambridge, J. Tuck esq. New Barnes, Ely, Joseph Luddington esq. Littleport. The soil is fen; subsoil, clay. The land, which is all fen, is chiefly arable. The population in 1891 was about 1,400, of which 351 were in Suffolk and about 50 in Norfolk.

BURNT FEN, 4½ miles distant, is a hamlet, here is St. James's mission church, an iron structure, consisting of chancel, nave and aisles, and affording 250 sittings. Burnt Fen station is on the Ely and Thetford section of the Great Eastern railway.

ROYSTON is a market and union town principally in Hertfordshire, and will be found in Kelly's Directory of that county.

SAWSTON is a large parish and village, on the river Cam, and on the road from London to Cambridge; 7 miles south from Cambridge, 6 north-west from Linton, 7 north-west from Saffron Walden, and 1½ miles north from Whittlesford station on the London and Cambridge section of the Great Eastern railway, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Whittlesford, union and petty sessional division of Linton, county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Camps second division and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The village is lighted with gas, first used in November, 1882, the sum of £105 being subscribed for that purpose; the works, erected in 1867, are the property of Mr. James Hunter. It is supplied with water from wells. The church of St. Mary, restored in 1870-1, is a structure of flint and rubble, in the Norman, Early English and later styles, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, north porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 8 bells: the chancel retains a piscina, and below it is a trefoiled recess; on the north side are two large tombs in a debased Perpendicular style; the nave arcades are Norman and Early English, the roof Perpendicular, and the aisles have parcloses of this date: in the south aisle is a piscina, an aumbry and a bracket and there is a hagisocope on each side of the chancel: within the church are several monuments to the Huntingdon and Huddleston families, dating from the 16th century, and a brass with effigy, vested, and holding a chalice, and inscribed to William Richardson, alias Byggins, rector of Rainham Mare, ob. 1527: there is another brass figure of a man in armour, wife and five daughters, believed to represent Robert Lockton esq. c. 1500; Joan (Alington), his wife, and their family; a brass effigy of a civilian (feet gone), c. 1420; and inscriptions on brass to Hera, daughter and heir of Thomas, 2nd baron Bradeston, and wife of Sir Walter de la Pole ob. 1423; and to John Huntington esq. 1558, and Joyce, his wife, 1564, benefactors: there are 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1640. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £290, with residence and including 100 acres of glebe, in the gift of Hamer Towgood esq. and held since 1886 by the Rev. Charles Edward Crump M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. The Congregational church in the High street, built and opened in 1879, is an edifice of red brick, with Bath stone dressings: the old Congregational chapel is now used as a lecture room and for Sunday school purposes. There is also a Primitive Methodist chapel and Salvation Army barracks. A cemetery, consisting of 1A. 1R. 8P. the gift of the late Ferdinand Huddleston esq. was formed in 1881, at a cost, including the laying out and inclosing of the grounds and the erection of a mortuary chapel, of about £400: it is under the control of a Burial Board of 9 members. This place formerly had a market, and the remains of a pillar of the market cross are still standing. Messrs. Towgood & Sons have an extensive paper mill, employing 400 hands, with a siding for goods. Here are also the leather works of Messrs. Evans & Son. The Eastern Counties Leather and Parchment Co. Limited have an extensive factory employing from 100 to 150 hands; the works are just within the boundary of Pampisford parish, but in the Sawston postal delivery. Huntingdon's Almshouses are for eight poor men and women. Huntingdon's Charity, producing £128 yearly, is for distribution in coals. Sawston Hall, the seat of Denis Alexander Shine Lawlor Huddleston esq. standing in the centre of the village, was rebuilt in the reign of Mary, and has a Catholic chapel annexed, served from Cambridge. Denis A. Shine Lawlor Huddleston esq. who is lord of the manor, Hamer Towgood esq. and James W. Gosling esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is chalky; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,748 acres; rateable value, £7,548; the population in 1891 was 1,882.

GREAT SHELFORD is a parish on the river Cam, with a station on the main line from London to Cambridge of the Great Eastern railway, 54½ miles from London and about 4 south-by-east from Cambridge, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Thriplow, union of Chesterton, petty sessional division and county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Barton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Mary the Virgin, erected in 1387, at the sole cost of Thomas Patesle, then vicar, who is buried in the nave, is a very fine edifice of stone and clunch, built throughout in the Perpendicular style, and consisting of chancel, clerestoried and embattled nave of four bays, south porch with parvise, aisles and a western tower, square in the lower and octagonal in the upper stage, with embattled parapet and small wooden spire and containing 5 bells: the church retains a very finely designed and elaborately worked Perpendicular rood screen, and a curiously carved pulpit of the Jacobean period: on the north wall of the chancel are six stone panels, inclosing carved shields of arms of the Redman, Torrell and Gouldwell families, three of these commemorating John Gouldwell esq. ob. 15 Feb. 1596, and his wife; and Isabel (Calverly), wife of William Redman, Bishop of Norwich, 1595-1603: in the south aisle is a beautiful trefoil-headed piscina, of the Early English period; all the windows are fine examples of Perpendicular work: the stained east window is a memorial to Thomas Edleston Crisford, d. 1875, son of a former vicar, and several other stained windows: there is a fine brass, with the effigy, under a canopy with shields, of a priest in a cope, commemorating Thomas Patesle, vicar, "a great benefactor to, and re-builder of, the church," ob. 31 Oct. 1418; the inscription, now lost, is given in the Harl. MSS. No. 2,129: there is also a brass inscription to John Redman, and a solitary shield of arms: the south porch is groined in stone: at the beginning of the present century the tower suffered very much from a violent storm, and in 1798 the south-west angle of the tower, with buttresses and side wall, fell to the ground: the church was re-seated and the interior restored about 1862: the chancel was restored and choir stalls on the south side erected, by the present vicar, in 1890, as a memorial to the late Rt. Rev. J. R. Woodford D.D. Bishop of Ely 1873-86: the choir stalls and priests' stall on the north side were erected as a memorial to the late Peter Grain, for forty years vicar's churchwarden: a new organ has been built at a cost of £400, and in 1887 the bells were re-hung and one re-cast: there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1557. The living is a vicarage, tithe rent-charge £100, net yearly value £79, with residence, and including 1½ acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1885 by the Rev. John Ancram Lawson M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. The Baptist chapel, rebuilt in 1856 at a cost of £1,000, is of brick, in imitation of the Norman and Early English styles, with an open timber roof, and affords 400 sittings. Charities:—The vicar, churchwardens and trustees hold in trust 11 cottages and 14½ acres of land, under a scheme of the Charity Commissioners, 1890, for general charitable purposes; the income derived from these sources is now (1892) about £80 yearly. In this parish are nine contiguous wells, which supply Hobson's Conduit, Cambridge, with water. At the Granhams are traces of a Roman encampment. The Masters and Fellows of Caius College are lords of the manor of Buristead. There are also two smaller manors, held by St. John's College and Major Edward Henry Greene-de-Fréville D.L., J.P. who resides at Hinxton Hall. The principal landowners are Jesus College, Caius College and St. John's College, Cambridge, Major E. H. Greene-de-Fréville D.L., J.P. Henry Hurrell esq. of Madingley Hall, George Ezra Hawkins esq. of Middleton, Lynn, and J. Carter Jonas esq. The soil is clay and chalky; subsoil, clay and chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 2,172 acres; rateable value, £7,881; the population in 1891 was 1,020.

LITTLE SHELFORD is a parish on the Cam, 5 miles south-by-east from Cambridge and about half a mile west from Shelford station on the Bishop's Stortford and Cambridge branch of the Great Eastern railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Thriplow, union of Chesterton, petty sessional division and county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Barton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of All Saints is a curious and interesting building of stone, in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, embattled nave, south chapel, south porch and a western tower of the Decorated period, containing 5 bells: the nave incorporates some Norman work: both chancel and nave have wagon roofs: the south chapel, which is on a higher level than the rest of the building, is entered by several steps and has an elaborate niche, piscina, bracket and a singular hagioscope: in the chapel are memorials to the Ingle family, and on the floor are two small but beautiful brasses, with effigies to Robert de Fréville, ob. 1393, and Claricia his wife; and to his son Thomas de Fréville, ob. 1405, and Margaret his wife, ob. 1410: in the chancel, under a richly moulded ogee canopy, with crockets and flanked by pinnacled buttresses, is a large and very beautiful altar tomb, of the late Decorated period, with recumbent effigy in armour and inscription in Norman-French, to Sir John Fréville, and near it a recessed monumental arch, of the Decorated period, now enclosing a Perpendicular doorway leading into the sacristy: the font is Decorated, and consists of an octagonal basin on four engaged shafts: the chancel stalls have traceried panels and a cresting, the panels being enriched with the ermine spots and crescents of the Fréville arms: in the nave is a small brass effigy of a priest, assumed to represent John Cate, rector, ob. 1445: on one side of the arch leading to the chapel is a brass inscription, claiming the chapel as the property of the lords of the manor: there are two tombs of late date, one of which is to Francis Wasley, and bears his arms; the other displays the coat of Manning: near the porch are a number of coffin slabs of the 12th century, built into the wall: the church was thoroughly restored in 1878-9: in the churchyard is a cross, which has also been restored: the church affords 300 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1686; marriages, 1688. The living is a rectory, yearly value £170, derived from 252 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge, and held since 1852 by the Rev. James Edmund Law M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. There is a Congregational chapel. The charities are £4 6s. 8d. yearly. Shelford Hall, the seat of J. B. Close esq. was formerly the residence of the late Gen. Sir Charles Wale K.C.B.: the Wale family is frequently mentioned in the history of thisand adjoining counties: Sir Thomas Wale was created K.G. by Edward III. in 1352, being the 18th knight in the first creation of that order: a protection was given under the hand of General Fairfax to Thomas Wale esq. of Little Bardfield, in 1648, and there is an obelisk in the adjoining parish of Harston, to Gregory Wale esq. 1739. Charles John Clay esq. B.A. of Newnham, who is lord of the manor, the trustees of the late Col. Robert Gregory Wale, and Hamer Towgood esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is gravelly and chalky; the subsoil, gravel and clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,200 acres; rateable value, £2,511; the population in 1891 was 494.

Parish Clerk, John Everett.

SHEPRETH is a parish with a station on the Hitchin, Royston and Cambridge section of the Great Northern railway, 50 miles from London, 5 north-east from Royston and 8 south-west from Cambridge, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Wetherley, petty sessional division of Arrington and Melbourn, union and county court district of Royston, rural deanery of Barton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of All Saints is an ancient edifice of brick and flint, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave and a low western tower containing 3 bells (one of which is not fit for use), and was restored in 1870, at a cost of about £500; it contains some monuments to the Layer family (who formerly possessed a property here), dated 1730, 1743 and 1760, and affords 120 sittings. The register dates from the year 1569. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £72, net yearly value £40, with residence and including 12 acres of glebe, in the gift of B. H. Wortham esq. and held since 1880 by the Rev. Roger Hines M.A. of University College, Durham. B. H. Wortham esq. is impropriator of the great tithes, which belonged to the nuns of Chatteris. There is a Congregational chapel. There are four manors in the parish: Biscoe Hill Wortham esq. D.L., J.P. of Kneesworth House, Royston, is lord of the manor of Shepreth; the trustees of William Fuller Nash-Woodham esq. J.P. of the Tyrrels, of Docwra and Tyrrel manors; and John Ingle Ellis esq. of Wimbish-with-Foxton manor, and these are also the principal landowners. The soil is chalky, clayey and gravelly; subsoil, clay and chalk. The chief crops are wheat and barley; oats, beans and peas are also grown. The area is 1,260 acres; rateable value, £2,074; the population in 1892 was 375.

SHINGAY (or SHENGY) is a parish and village about 7 miles north-west from Royston, 6 north from Ashwell station on the Hitchin, Royston and Cambridge branch of the Great Northern railway, and 6 south from Potton station on the Sandy and Cambridge section of the London and North Western railway and 45 from London, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Armingford, petty sessional division of Arrington and Melbourn, union and county court district of Royston, rural deanery of Shingay and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. This was formerly a place of importance, having been the seat of a preceptory of the Knights Templars, and subsequently of the Knights Hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem, founded in 1140 by Sybil de Reynes. At the Dissolution its revenues were estimated at £176 4*s.* 6*d.* No traces of the building now remain, nor anything to testify to its former existence, except the dry moat which surrounds the site, a space about 200 yards square, the inequalities of the ground and the avenue of trees which mark the former approaches to it. Amongst the preceptors of this house may be mentioned Sir Thomas Dockwra, grand prior of the order, 1504, and Sir Thomas Sheffield, grand seneschal of Rhodes, 1518. Samuel, 1st Baron Sandys, of Ombersley, after the removal of the preceptory buildings in 1697, erected here a small chapel, on a site close to that of the preceptory, and still called "Chapel yard," and dedicated it to St. Mary; this chapel continued to be used until the beginning of the last century, and, as appears from the register of Wendy, marriages were solemnized here up to 1716; eventually it was disused and it became ruinous, and about 1820 the materials were appropriated for secular purposes. The inhabitants attend Wendy church. The living is a chapelry annexed to the rectory of Wendy, average tithe rent-charge £125, joint net yearly value £150, including 30 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1890 by the Rev. Walter Jones M.A. of Hatfield Hall, Durham. After the Dissolution in 1538, the lands of the preceptory were granted by Henry VIII. to Sir Richard Longe, master of the king's hawks, whose grand-daughter, Elizabeth, marrying Sir William Russell, 1st Baron Russell of Thornhaugh, carried the estate into that family. It next belonged to the family of Sandys, barons Sandys, of Ombersley; then to the Windsors, barons Windsor, and eventually, by purchase, became the property of the Earl of Hardwicke; it is tithe free and is now vested in the Earl of Hardwicke, who is the sole landowner. The soil is of a rich loamy character, and the subsoil clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and beans. The area is 754 acres; rateable value, £1,013; the population in 1881 was 90.

Letters received through Royston, viâ Wendy, which is also the nearest post office; arrive at 7.40 a.m. The nearest money order & telegraph office is at Bassingbourn SHUDY CAMPS is a village and parish on the borders of Suffolk, 2½ miles east from Bartlow station on the Cambridge and Melford branch of the Great Eastern railway, 3½ south-west from Haverhill, 4 south-east from Linton and 15 south-east from Cambridge, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Chilford, union and petty sessional division of Linton, county court district of Haverhill, rural deanry of Camps second division, and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Mary, an edifice of rubble in the Perpendicular style, is said to have been originally built about the year 1060; it consists of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells: there are 240 sittings, 145 being free. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £139, net yearly value £120, with residence and including 2 acres of glebe, in the gift of Trinity College, Cambridge, and held since 1863 by the Rev. William Joy M.A. of that college. The charities amount to £18 10s. yearly. Shudy Camps Park, the property of the Rev. Richard Dayrell, rector of Lillingstone Dayrell, Bucks, consists of about 95 acres and is well timbered; the mansion, standing in the park, is a substantial edifice of red brick, but is now (1892) unoccupied. The principal landowners are the Rev. Richard Dayrell, who is lord of the manor, Bartle John Laurie Frere esq. F.R.G.S., M.R.S.L. of Thorley, Bishops Stortford, Mrs. Inglis, Grimwood Cooke esq. of Park farm, Horseheath, and Daniel Gurteen, sen. esq. and Daniel Gurteen, jun. esq. of Haverhill, Suffolk. The soil is clay; subsoil, clay and chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and beans. The parish contains 2,332 acres; rateable value, £2,149; the population in 1891 was 369.

SNAILWELL is a village and parish 3 miles north from Newmarket station on the Great Eastern railway, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Staploe, Newmarket union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Mildenhall, archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Peter is an edifice of flint with stone quoins and windows, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a round western tower of Norman work, containing 2 bells: the handsome reredos was presented in 1878 by Montagu Tharp esq. of Chippenham Park, as a memorial to his father; several stained windows being given at the same time by the family of the Rev. N. J. Hill, a former vicar, by William Montagu Tharp esq. and by the members and friends of the family of the present rector: the vestry was also built by the present rector's family, whose friends defrayed besides the cost of the mural decorations which cover the whole of the interior: the beautiful and costly altar cloth was the gift of Mrs. E. Gittus, of Snailwell: the church was completely restored in 1878 and affords 130 sittings: in the churchyard is a stone tomb of a priest of the 15th century, with a cross on the upper slab, discovered in the wall of the south aisle during the restoration. The register dates from the year 1629. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £393, net yearly value £266, with residence and including 100 acres of glebe, in the gift of W. M. Tharp esq. and held since 1878 by the Rev. Edward Thomas Mortlock M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge. An unknown donor left for firing, 33 acres of fen land, and a small allotment of arable land for the poor of the parish. William Montagu Tharp esq. D.L., J.P. of Chippenham Hall, is lord of the manor and the principal landowner. The soil is various. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 2,014 acres; rateable value, £2,991; the population in 1891 was 181.

SOHAM is a town and parish and the head of a county court district, with a station on the Ely and Newmarket branch of the Great Eastern railway, 75½ miles from London, 19 north-east from Cambridge, 8 north-west from Newmarket and 6 south-east from Ely, in the Eastern division of the county, in Newmarket union and petty sessional division, hundred of Staploe, rural deanery of Fordham, archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Ely. The town, which is long and straggling, is lighted with gas, from works at Mere side, the property of the Soham and District Gas Company Limited.

"The Lode," a navigable canal, passes through the parish and joins the Ouse at Ely.

The church of St. Andrew, erected towards the end of the 12th century, is a cruciform edifice, chiefly in the Transition-Norman style, with portions and insertions of later date, and consists of chancel, with two chapels on the north side, now used as vestries, clerestoried nave of four bays, aisles, transepts, north and south porches and an embattled western tower 100 feet in height, with pinnacles, and containing a clock and 10 bells: the chancel is lighted by Decorated windows inserted about the middle of the 14th century: the stained east window is a memorial to the Rev. Henry Tasker, vicar (1832-74), who died 17 Jan. 1874; on each side of the window is a small niche, with traces of painting: the north wall retains a fresco of a bishop in the act of benediction, uncovered in 1849, and it would seem that the whole chancel was at one time ornamented in this way: the chancel roof, and the woodwork at the east end, are both of panelled oak; the stalls, twenty in number, are of the same material and with the exception of six on the north side, added in 1880, were fixed in 1849, when the rood screen, a fine example of modern work, was also erected: on the south side are ancient stone sedilia and a piscina, and there are finely carved altar rails of oak: in the chancel is buried the Rev. D. Harwood, a former vicar, d. 1746, and Mrs. Elizabeth Cawthorne, his sister, d. 1782: the easternmost of the two chapels, built in the 14th century, retains a stone altar at the east end, an aumbry and an irregular oblong tombstone, with incised lettering, as well as some old glass; here also is interred Dr. Cressener, vicar 1678-1717: the other chapel is of Late Perpendicular date and has on its east wall a monument to Edward Bernes esq. and Dorothie (Drurye) his wife; she died 18 Feb. 1598; the chapel is inclosed at the west end by a very perfect and elaborately wrought parclose screen, restored in 1880: each of the transepts has octagonal pinnacles at the angles, and in the south transept is an Early English piscina and a nearly illegible inscription and shields of arms to some member of the Dowman family, and on the east wall a brass with inscription to John Thornton gent. and Ann (Drurie) his wife; he died Sept. 13, 1598: the north transept contains an altar tomb of the 15th century, and a large marble slab, inscribed, but undated, to Thomas Dockwra and his wife: the south aisle retains an aumbry: on the south side of the nave is a small brass to Oliver Robins, ob. 12 Aug. 1608, and Katherine (Salisbury) his wife, and at the west end are ten ancient stalls, with misereres, formerly in the chancel: the north porch is Perpendicular and has a stoup; the south porch, of the 14th century, has a large sundial over the entrance with the motto:—"Ab hoc momento pendent aeterna:" the tower, 25 feet square, is also Perpendicular: the royal arms, placed at the west end of the north aisle, date from the reign of Queen Anne: the church was completely restored in 1879-80, under the direction of Mr. J. P. St. Aubyn, at a cost of nearly £3,000, and was reopened May 18th, 1880; the whole of the galleries being removed, new roofs placed on the transepts and chapels, and the flooring repaired: the church now affords 630 sittings: in the churchyard, near the north porch, is the grave of Mary D'Aye, great-grand-daughter of the Lord Protector Cromwell; she died Nov. 5, 1765, aged 75; on the south side of the chancel is buried Dr. John Ward, who died in 1641, aged 125. The registers are complete from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of Barway annexed, average tithe rent-charge £1,296, joint net yearly value £950, including 1 acre of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Pembroke College, Cambridge, and held since 1874 by the Rev. John Cyprian Rust M.A., formerly fellow of that college, the Masters and fellows of which are the rectors.

The Congregational chapel was built about 1837 and will seat 450 persons. In 1880 a school room, with class rooms, was built near the chapel, and there is also a minister's house. The Wesleyan chapel, erected in 1841, affords 200 sittings; the Primitive Methodist chapel, erected in 1869, will seat 300 and has Sunday school and class rooms, erected in 1890; and there is another Primitive Methodist chapel at Soham Fen, erected in 1872, and seating 164 persons. The Baptist chapel, erected in 1752 and rebuilt in 1837, seats 500; this chapel was the first pastoral charge, in 1775, of the Rev. Andrew Fuller D.D. a celebrated Baptist minister, who was educated at the Free school here and died 7 May, 1815.

A Cemetery, of 3¾ acres, was formed in 1856 at a cost of £2,700; it is under the control of a Burial Board of 9 members.

A cattle fair is held on the 9th of May and a pleasure fair or feast on the Monday next before the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, and continues for three days.

There are five clubs, viz. the Loyal Star of Charity Lodge (No. 3,710) of Odd Fellows and the Loyal Ancient Order of Shepherds, the meetings of both being held at the Red Lion inn; the United Brethren Friendly Society, the meetings of which are held at the White Hart P.H.; the Star of Providence Society, whose meetings are held at the Queen's Arms inn; and the Soham Friendly Society, which meets at the Primitive Methodist school room.

The Liberal and Conservative associations have also each club houses in the town, comprising large rooms for meetings, and reading, coffee and billiard rooms.

The People's Hall, in Station road, contains reading and recreation rooms.

There are six almshouses, granted by Thomas Peachey, in April, 1582, and occupied by poor and aged persons; to these a portion of the fen lands was allotted by the Commissioners of the Bedford Level in lieu of the common rights.

Charities:—In 1674 Dr. Benjamin Laney, Bishop of Ely (1667-75), bequeathed by deed 188A. 1R. 10P. of land, now (1892) producing £340 yearly, in trust for binding apprentices, children of the poor inhabitants of Ely and Soham, paying not more than £20 with each. George Goward esq. by deed, in 1744, left 18 acres of land, called "Soham Cote Piece," £6 of the proceeds of which are given away annually in bread to the poor and the remainder assigned for charitable purposes to the parish of Lakenheath. Richard Bond, by deed in 1502, gave 22A. 2P. in divers parts of Soham and Fordham, in trust for the repairs of the church and highways; also three tenements near the Free school, as well as 10A. 2R. 16P. in Soham, for the benefit of the poor. Wright's gift, dating from about 1540, consists of three acres of copyhold land, called "Brook Dam Close," the produce of which is for the repairs of the church. Tyler's Gift, dating from 1630, consists of three roods of land, being part of "Brook Dam Close," also for the benefit of the poor. There is also a charity, called "Soham Church Rents," the donor of which is not known; a rent-charge on land near Barway, and the like from an estate called "Lug Hill," amounting together to £1 13s. 4d. for the repairs of the church. The Town Let, or Allotment, set out in 1663 as 48 acres, but now let as 46A. 2R. 21P. is for the benefit of the most impotent of the poor of Soham. Mrs. Cawthorne, by deed in 1750, left freehold lands in Soham, 4A. 2R.; 30s. to be paid yearly to the clerk of Barway chapel, the rest to such of the sick poor as are communicants of the Church of England and not in receipt of parish relief. There is also a property called "The Hundred Acres," let in allotments, the profits from which are divided annually amongst the persons entitled to common rights on the various commons.

The trustees of the late William Dunn Gardner esq. are lords of the manor. The Rectory Manor is held by the Master and fellows of Pembroke College, Cambridge. The principal landowners are John Dunn Gardner esq. J.P., D.L. of Grosvenor place, London S W, the trustees of the late W. Dunn Gardner esq. Thomas Brown Whiting esq. J.P. and John Taylor esq.

The parish is extensive, being in one direction more than 9 miles in length. The Fen, which covers 8,000 acres, has now, owing to the superior method of drainage, been brought into a high state of cultivation: there was formerly a large mere or lake on the western side of the town: there are many orchards and gardens, and large quantities of fruit, especially plums, are yearly sent to London, Norwich, Liverpool, Newcastle, Bradford, Leeds and Manchester.

The area is 12,706 acres; rateable value, £24,840; and the population in 1881 was 3,980 and in 1891 was 4,138.

Parish Clerk, William Hart.

SOUTHEA-cum-MURROW is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1870 from the civil parishes of Leverington and St. Mary, Wisbech, in the Northern division of the county, Wisbech hundred, union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Ely, and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely.

SOUTHEA comprises a great portion of the hamlet of PARSON DROVE, and is 1 mile from the Murrow railway stations.

MURROW is 7 miles south-west of Wisbech, and has a station on the Great Northern and Great Eastern joint railway, also one on the Midland railway.

The church of Emmanuel, at Southea, erected in 1873, by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, is a structure of red brick with stone facings, in the Early English style, and consists of large apsidal chancel, nave, north aisle and a western turret containing one bell; in the church are four chandeliers, formerly in St. Paul's Cathedral, and presented to this church by the Dean and Chapter: there are 275 sittings.

The register at Murrow dates from the year 1858, and that for Southea from the year 1873.

The living of Southea-cum-Murrow is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £626, net yearly value £276, with residence and including 1 acre of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1870 by the Rev. Arthur Wellington Roper B.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, and surrogate.

The chapel of Corpus Christi, at Murrow, erected in 1857, is a small structure of brick in the Early English style, and consists of small apsidal chancel, nave, south porch and a turret at the west end containing one bell: there are 170 sittings.

A chapel was founded at Murrow about the second year of the reign of King Richard II. temp. 1379, but has long since been destroyed: the site is still known as "Chapel Hill." There is a Primitive Methodist chapel at Murrow, and Wesleyan and Free Methodist chapels at Southea.

John Bend's charity, for Southea, left in 1593, amounts to £132 yearly and is partly distributed in money to the poor, the remainder being assigned to the education of the children of the parish, and to the support of the County Hospital.

The principal landowners at Murrow are Thomas Gee, the trustees of the late Daniel Johnson, and John Healey; and at Southea, the trustees of Daniel Johnson and John Peck. The soil is clay and silt; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, beans and mustard. The population in 1881 was 1,044.

Parish Clerk, Murrow, Henry Dade.
Sexton, Southea, William Hawkins.

STANDGROUND parish is partly in this county and partly in that of Huntingdon: particulars are given in "Kelly's Directory of Huntingdonshire."

STAPLEFORD is a parish, crossed by the river Granta, near Shelford station on the Cambridge section of the Great Eastern railway, 55 miles from London and about 4 south-south-east from Cambridge, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Thriplow, union of Chesterton, petty sessional division and county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Barton, archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Andrew, erected between 1260 and 1330, is a building of stone and clunch in the Early English and Decorated styles, consisting of chancel, nave with arcades of five arches, aisles, south porch and a western tower with spire, containing 5 bells: in the chancel is a double piscina, and in the nave two single piscinæ, and there is a brass, dated 1617, to the Rev. William Lee, a former vicar: the spacious south porch belongs to the Decorated period, and the nave arcades are of the same date: the tower, excellently constructed, is Early English: the nave and aisles were restored and re-pewed in 1868, at a cost of £1,000: and in 1882 a stained east window was erected as a memorial to Henry Collier and his daughters: there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1598. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £185, including 142 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Ely, and held since 1872 by the Rev. Charles Henry Thomas Wyer Daw M.A. of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge. Here is a small Baptist chapel. A cemetery of half an acre was formed in 1880, the ground being given by Dr. William Collier of Oxford; it is under the control of a Burial Board of 6 members. The charities amount to about £10 yearly. Gog-Magog Hills, a seat of the Duke of Leeds, is a plain old mansion in this parish, about 2 miles north-west from the village: here are remains of entrenchments nearly a mile in circumference. The land is nearly all freehold. Mrs. Francis, of Quy Mall, holds the manorial rights. The principal landowners are the Duke of Leeds, Messrs. W. and H. Collier and Mr. William Heffer. The soil is chalky; subsoil, chalk. The crops are barley and wheat. The area is 1,770 acres; rateable value, £2,718; the population in 1891 was 519.

Parish Clerk, William Coote.

POST OFFICE.—John Simkin, receiver. Letters arrive from Cambridge at 5.50 a.m.; dispatched at 8 p.m. Box closes at 7.50 p.m. The nearest money order & telegraph office is at Great Shelford

A School Board of 5 members was formed July 27, 1875; J. F. Symonds, 9 Bene't street, Cambridge, clerk to the board; Thomas Challis, Stapleford, attendance officer

STEEPLE MORDEN is a parish, on the borders of Hertfordshire, and the village is 3 miles north-west from Ashwell station on the Hitchin, Royston and Cambridge section of the Great Northern railway, which is within the boundary of this parish, 43 miles from London and 5 north-west from Royston, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Armingford, petty sessional division of Arrington and Melbourne, union and county court district of Royston, rural deanery of Shingay, archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is a building of stone and flint in the Early English and Decorated styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a low south tower with shingled spire, containing one bell: the organ was presented by the present vicar: the church was restored in 1869 at a cost of £2,500, and affords 320 sittings. The register dates from the year 1675. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £241, gross yearly value £551, net £460, including glebe with residence, in the gift of the Warden and scholars of New College, Oxford, and held since 1886 by the Rev. Richard Eling Green M.A. Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, rebuilt in 1863. The manor of Steeple Morden was formerly owned by the Fitzwalter family, but is now in the possession of the Earl of Hardwicke. The principal landowners are the Earl of Hardwicke, St. John's and Jesus Colleges, Cambridge, and Herbert Fordham esq. of Odsey Grange, Royston. The town lands of 7 acres produce £10 yearly, for public uses. The soil is clay and gravel; subsoil, clay; coprolites are being dug in this parish. The chief crops are wheat, barley and peas. The area is 3,766 acres; rateable value, £4,228; the population in 1891 was 810.

NORTH BROOK END is 2 miles north-east.

Parish Clerk, Robert Greye.

STETCHWORTH is a village and parish, 3½ miles south from Newmarket and 2 east from Dullingham station on the Cambridge and Newmarket section of the Great Eastern railway, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Radfield, union, petty sessional division and county court district of Newmarket, rural deanery of Fordham, archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Peter is an ancient structure of flint in a debased Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave and an embattled western tower with pinnacles containing 5 bells: the north aisle retains a piscina, and in the south aisle is a floriated niche: a memorial window was erected in 1864 to the Rev. Richard Eaton and one to Capt. Henry Pardoe Eaton, 60th Rifles, who died at Delhi: in the church is a fine monument of white marble with effigies on a background black marble, erected by Sir Richard Gorges bart. second Baron Gorges of Dundalk, and Bridget (Kingsmill) his wife, to their son Henry, ob. 1674: both titles became extinct on the death of Lord Gorges in 1712: there is also a memorial to Ashton Benyon esq. d. 1856: the church affords 300 sittings. The register dates from about the year 1666. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £250, including 20 acres of glebe with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Ellesmere, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Alfred Burton M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. Here is an iron Congregational chapel. Lord Gorges' charity of £33 yearly is for two old men and two old women, each of whom receives 2s. weekly and a biennial gift, the men of a coat and the women a gown; and they occupy the almshouses rent free. There is also an allotment charity of 25s. yearly, which sum is distributed in money to the poor. Stetchworth House, in a fine park of 40 acres, containing a piece of ornamental water, is approached by an avenue of trees: the garden, which covers about five acres, contains large and fine greenhouses and hot-houses; it is now the property and occasional residence of the Earl of Ellesmere, who is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is various; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 2,813 acres; rateable value, £5,393; the population in 1891 was 722.

Parish Clerk, George Robinson.

STOW-cum-QUY is a parish, with a station 1 mile north from the centre of the village, on the Cambridge and Mildenhall branch of the Great Eastern railway, 5 miles east-north-east from Cambridge, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Staine, Bottisham petty sessional division, union of Chesterton, county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Camps, first division, and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The stream called "Quy water" flows through the parish. The church of St. Mary, erected circa 1340, and situated close to the main road, is an ancient embattled edifice of stone in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of four bays, aisles, north porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells: the nave arcades, with the exception of an Early English arch to the south-east, are Decorated; the clerestory is Perpendicular; the rood screen, of the same date, is in five compartments, and has been partially restored: the north aisle, also Perpendicular, retains a piscina, and has some modern memorials to the Martin family, of Quy Hall: both aisles have slight projections at their eastern ends, forming quasi-transepts: the font, an octagon, is Perpendicular, with blank shields on the sides: the church contains a curious brass with effigies of a man in armour, his wife (figure now lost), twelve sons and four daughters, and a mutilated inscription, which when perfect commemorated John Ansty esq. formerly lord of this "ville," and founder of Ansty's Charity, and Johanna his wife; he died circa 1465: there is also a brass with arms and inscription to Edward Stern, 1641, and some 17th century slabs inscribed to the Lawrence family: the chancel was rebuilt about 1740 by Thomas Martyn esq. and the church thoroughly restored in 1881: there are 180 sittings. The register dates from the year 1650. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £255, net yearly value £200, with residence and 4 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Frederick Watson B.D. of St. John's College, Cambridge. There is a small Wesleyan chapel here. The charities amount to £14 yearly. Mrs. Francis, of Quy Hall, is lady of the manor and the principal landowner. The soil is various. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 1,820 acres; rateable value, £2,411; the population in 1891 was 378.

STRETHAM (including STRETHAM FEN and the hamlet of THETFORD) is a parish in the Isle of Ely, on the banks of the Cam, with a station 1 mile north of the village, on the Ely, Haddenham, Sutton and St. Ives branch of the Great Eastern railway, 75 miles from London, 4 miles south-by-west from Ely and 12 north-by-east from Cambridge, in the Western division of the county, hundred of South Witchford, Ely union, petty sessional division and county court district, and rural deanery of Ely and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. In May, 1844, a serious fire occurred here, when a great part of the place was burned. The church of St. James, which stands in the High street, is a fine old building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a western tower with lofty spire containing a clock and 5 bells; and there is a very fine oak carved screen dating from 1440; the church was thoroughly restored in 1876 at a cost of £4,000, and affords 350 sittings. The registers date from the year 1703. The living is a rectory, with the chapelry of Thetford annexed, tithe rent-charge £80, joint net yearly value £616, including 493½ acres of glebe with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1885 by the Rev. John William Cockshott M.A. of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge, hon. canon of Ely, rural dean of Ely, and surrogate. Here are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. A Cemetery of one acre was formed in 1886 at a cost of £350; it is under the control of a Burial Board of nine members. There is an ancient stone cross in the high road, near the church, dating from about 1400. Charities of £120 yearly value are distributed in fuel and clothing. Lieut.-General Sir George Harry Smith Willis K.C.B. and Mrs. Lushington-Tilson are owners of the manor and principal landowners. The soil is stiff clay; the subsoil is clay. The crops are grain of all descriptions. The area of the civil parish is 3,809 acres; rateable value, £7,434; the population in 1891 was 1,055.

Parish Clerk, Thomas Gurney Parish.

Thetford is a hamlet, 3 miles north-east. The chapel of St. George is a building of stone, erected in the 14th century, and consisting of chancel, nave, north porch and a western turret containing one bell: in 1863 it was new roofed, the larger portion of the nave rebuilt and slightly enlarged, and a porch added; a vestry was built in 1885: there are 200 sittings. Townsend's charity of £45 yearly is for fuel. The area is 1,035 acres; rateable value, £3,717; the population in 1881 was 242 and in 1891, 221.

STUNTNEY, is a chapelry, 1½ miles south-east from Ely station on the Cambridge, Ely and King's Lynn section of the Great Eastern railway, and ecclesiastical parish, formed from the civil parish of Holy Trinity, Ely, in the Eastern division of the county, union, hundred, petty sessional division and county court district of Ely, rural deanery of Ely, and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. The church is a building of flint and brick in the Norman style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower, containing a clock and one bell: the Norman chancel was restored some years ago, at a cost of £350, by the Dean and Chapter of Ely: the nave and tower were rebuilt in 1876 at a cost of £1,300, the three interesting Norman doorways being carefully preserved: there are sittings for 130 persons. The register dates from the year 1545. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £220, including 24 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Ely, and held since 1882 by the Rev. George William Cooper M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge, who resides at Fore hill, Ely. On the death of Sir Thomas Steward in 1636, the manor and estate of Stuntney passed into the possession of his nephew, Oliver Cromwell, who spent much of his time here before he was returned to Parliament in 1640 as M.P. for Cambridge. W. J. Evans esq. is lord of the manor; the principal landowners are the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, Cole Ambrose esq. the Misses Foster and H. S. Waddington esq. There are a few good farms and two public-houses, which, with some cottages, comprise the place. The population in 1891 was 294.

SWAFFHAM BULBECK is a parish, 2½ miles north-west from Bottisham and about same distance from Swaffham Prior station, both on the Cambridge and Mildenhall branch of the Great Eastern railway, 6½ west from Newmarket and 8 north-east from Cambridge, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Staine, Bottisham petty sessional division, Newmarket union and county court district, rural deanery of Camps first division and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Mary is an ancient edifice chiefly in the Late Decorated style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, two porches and a western tower, containing 6 fine toned bells: the clerestory is Perpendicular, and the tower Early English; the church is seated with old open benches which bear traces of handsome carving: there is a piscina in the wall of the south aisle, and a cedar chest of the 15th century with fine carvings of the Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary, the Crucifixion, and the Resurrection: the chancel was restored by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners in 1876-7: there are 458 sittings, of which 317 are free. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value about £200, and including 154 acres of glebe with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Charles William Coddington M.A. of Oriel College, Oxford. The charities produce £90 yearly, which sum is distributed by the vicar and trustees. Here was anciently a Benedictine nunnery, founded in 1190 by Halewyse de Glanville or one the Bulbecs; at the Dissolution there were eight nuns, and revenues estimated at £40. Upper Hare Park is the residence of the Earl of Clancarty. Col. Robert Thomas Hamond D.L., J.P. of Pampisford Hall, is the lord of the Mitchell Hall manor and Alfred Kent esq. of Burgh Hall manor; Col. T. Hamond, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, and Downing College, Cambridge, are the principal landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The area is 3,943 acres; rateable value, £5,392; the population in 1891 was 800.

SWAFFHAM PRIOR (or GREAT SWAFFHAM) is a village and parish, 6 miles west from Newmarket, with a station on the branch line from Cambridge to Fordham, half a mile south-west of the churches, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Staine, Bottisham petty sessional division, Newmarket union and county court district, rural deanery of Camps first division and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely: it is remarkable for its two churches, both standing in one churchyard. The church of St. Mary which had long been in ruins, but was used as a burying place for the Allix family, was partially restored in 1887; the building as it lately stood consisted of nave, with a portion of the clerestory, fragments of the aisles and transepts, part of the western tower, Norman and Early English, and remains of a western porch: the chancel and vestries have been completed at a cost of over £2,000, and the entire cost of restoring the whole church is estimated at about £6,000. The church of St. Cyriac is a plain embattled structure in a debased Gothic style, consisting of a small chancel, nave with aisles, low transepts and an ancient tower, terminating in an embattled polygonal lantern and containing 6 bells: in 1814 a rate of 22s. in the pound was levied by the churchwardens to pay for the rebuilding of this church: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1559. The living consists of the consolidated vicarages of St. Mary and St. Cyriac, net yearly value £410, derived from 483½ acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop and the Dean and Chapter of Ely alternately, and held since 1856 by the Rev. Thomas Preston M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. The famous Puritan, Dr. Edmund Calamy the elder, held the living from 1625 to 1631; Dr. George Davys, Bishop of Peterborough (1839-64) and Dr. Henry Pepys, Bishop of Worcester (1841-61), were curates here. Dr. H. W. Jermyn, the present Primus of the Episcopal Church in Scotland, was born here. The Congregational chapel was built in 1862. There is a reading-room, erected in 1868 by Miss Marianne Allix, Mrs. Roberts and Miss Juliana Allix, and under the control of C. P. Allix esq. Charities producing £84 yearly are appropriated partly to the school and partly to the poor. Swaffham-Prior House, built on the site of an old Elizabethan mansion, a portion of which it incorporates, is the seat of Charles Peter Allix esq. D.L., J.P. There are several manors in the parish, the chief of which are Swaffham Prior, belonging to the Dean and Chapter of Ely; Shadforth, the property of Queens' College, Cambridge, and Knights and Baldwins, belonging to C. P. Allix esq. C. P. Allix esq. the Dean and Chapter of Ely, and Queens' College, Cambridge, are the principal landowners. The soil is loamy; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley, turnips and mustard seed. The area is 5,328 acres; rateable value, £7,718; the population in 1891 was 1,006, including part of the ancient British hamlet of REACH, which is about 2 miles north at the western end of the Devil's Dyke or ditch, partly in this parish and partly in that of Burwell. The names will be found under a separate heading.

Parish Clerk, Walter Gillson.

SWAVESEY is a large parish and village, with a station on the Cambridge and Huntingdon branch of the Great Eastern railway, 69 miles from London, 9¾ north-west from Cambridge, 3 south-east from St. Ives and 9 south-east from Huntingdon, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Papworth, petty sessional division of Cambridge, union of St. Ives, county court district of Huntingdon, rural deanery of Bourne and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Andrew, originally attached to the priory, is a building of stone in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, with aisles, or chantries, clerestoried nave of six bays, aisles, south porch and a western tower containing 6 bells: on the south side of the chancel are fine sedilia and piscina of the Decorated period: the entrance to the south chantry, rebuilt by Thomas Cockayde in 1852, is by two fine Early English arches, and it has Late Perpendicular sedilia; in this chantry is a quasi-classic marble tomb, to Anne (Kempe), wife of Sir John Cutts kt. of Childerley, who died 13th March, 1631; the inscription also mentions John Kempe, Cardinal Archbishop of York, and many other members of that and allied families; over the inscription is a shield with 9 quarterings, another with 22, and other impaled coats on separate escutcheons; both chantries are inclosed by modern open screens of oak, in the Perpendicular style: the chancel is fitted with good modern stalls, and has an altar-piece representing "the Crucifixion:" the south aisle retains an Early English piscina: the chancel arch is a fine example of 13th century work, and is fitted with a modern screen with half-groined rood loft above: the font is Perpendicular, and lying near it are four Early English coffin slabs, with crosses: in 1867 the church was beautifully restored, principally at the expense of the Hon. Mrs. Ryder: there are 500 sittings. The baptismal register dates from 1576; that for marriages and burials from 1613. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £210, net yearly value £319, including 112 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Master and fellows of Jesus College, Cambridge, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Thomas Godfrey Law Lushington M.A. of that college, and surrogate. John Jones Bush esq. of the Grange, Hilperton, Wilts, is the owner of the great or rectorial tithes, valued at about £550 a year. Here are two Baptist chapels and one for Primitive Methodists. Bethel Baptist chapel, built by subscription, in 1868, at a cost of about £850, is of brick, and will hold about 420 persons. Charities to the amount of £103 are distributed to the poor yearly in fuel. A market and fair were held here formerly, but have long been obsolete. The Benedictine priory once existing here was founded by Alan de Zouche in the time of Will. I. as a cell to the monastery of St. Sergius, at Angers, and dedicated to St. Andrew. Mr. Richard Daintree is lord of the manors of Swavesey, with the members, Hobbleoods with Bennets and the Rectory manor. John Dodson Daintree, Mr. Roberts, Trinity College, Cambridge, Mr. William Cole, George Long, Christopher Parsons and W. W. Warner are the principal landowners. The soil is mostly clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and beans. The area is 3,891 acres; rateable value, £6,673; the population in 1891 was 1,069.

Parish Clerk, John Williams.

TADLOW is a parish, on the river Cam and on the borders of Bedfordshire, 8 miles north-west from Royston, 6 north from Ashwell station on the Hitchin, Royston and Cambridge branch of the Great Northern railway and 5 south from Potton station on the Bedford and Cambridge section of the London and North Western railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Armingford, petty sessional division of Arrington and Melbourn, union of Caxton and Arrington, county court district of Biggleswade, rural deanery of Shingay and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Giles, prettily situated a short distance off the high road from Biggleswade to Cambridge, is an ancient building in the Early English style, with modern Perpendicular insertions, and consists of chancel, nave, organ chamber, south porch and a low embattled western tower containing a clock and one bell: the church was restored in 1866 at a cost of £1,574: there are 160 sittings. The register dates from the year 1585, with an interval from 1617 to 1653. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £97, gross yearly value £95, net £77, with residence and including 9 acres of glebe, in the gift of Downing College, Cambridge, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Horace William Pettit Stevens M.A. of that college, who is also rector of East Hatley. In the village is a mineral spring. The manor was anciently in the family of Fitzwarren; at a later period in that of St. George, and afterwards in that of Downing: it is now vested in Downing College, Cambridge, who are also the principal landowners. The soil is clayey; subsoil, clay. The crops are chiefly wheat, barley, beans and oats. The area is 1,677 acres; rateable value, £1,307; the population in 1891 was 193.

Parish Clerk, Charles Harben.

TEVERSHAM is a parish and village 3½ miles east from Cambridge and about half-a-mile south of the Cambridge and Newmarket road, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Flendish, petty sessional division of Bottisham, union of Chesterton,county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Cambridge and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of All Saints, some portions of which date from 1270, is a building of stone, chiefly in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing one bell: the piscina and sedilia, richly carved, are Perpendicular, and there is a rood screen of oak, with Perpendicular tracery, a lepers' window, and four curious oval-shaped clerestory windows: the nave arcades are very good examples of Early English work, and have foliaged caps, the piers being octagonal: in the south aisle is an altar tomb, with mutilated recumbent alabaster effigies, to Sir Edward Styward kt. and his wife; and surrounding it a railing of hammered iron-work, probably Elizabethan; it was restored in 1863: there are 130 sittings. The register dates from the year 1593. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £330, net £285, arising from 228½ acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1891 by the Rev. James John Robinson Leigh Knipe M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. A Baptist chapel was built here in 1858. The proceeds of 11 acres of land, known as "Lady Jermy's Charity," are divided annually between the school and the poor. The Master and fellows of Caius College, who own the manor, Thomas Coote esq. Pembroke College, Cambridge, and the Governors of St. Thomas' Hospital are the principal landowners. The soil is white clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,174 acres; rateable value, £1,500; the population in 1891 was 285.

THORNEY, anciently called "Ankeridge," is a parish and village in the Isle of Ely, forming a liberty in itself, on the north-west border of the county adjoining Northamptonshire, close to the Catwater, with a station on the Peterborough and Wisbech section of the Midland and Great Northern joint railway, and 2½ miles west from Wryde station on the same line, and is 86 from London by road, 14 west from Wisbech and 7 fromPeterborough, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Wisbech, petty sessional division of Whittlesey, union and county court district of Peterborough, rural deanery of Wisbech and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. The parish is surrounded by long drains leading to the port of Wisbech; a complete system of drainage of the fens has been carried out, at a cost exceeding £400,000; the village is lighted with gas and supplied with water from works erected by the late Duke of Bedford K.G. Some of the chief roads, in several parts of the parish, are adorned with avenues of fine trees; the Causeway and Willow Hall and Whittlesey roads being most noticeable. The church of St. Mary the Virgin, originally that of the abbey and 290 feet in length, was rebuilt 1098-1108 and in 1638 fitted up as a parish church; it is in mixed styles of Norman and Perpendicular, and consists of nave of five bays with small triforium and clerestory, transepts, north and south porches and a tower containing a clock and one bell: the transepts were added in 1840 and 1841, under the direction of Mr. Blore; the stained east window represents, in twenty-one compartments, the reputed miracles of Thomas à Becket, and is a fac-simile of a window in Canterbury Cathedral: the altar-screen is of delicate and elaborate workmanship: the organ, erected at a cost of £320, was enlarged in 1858 at a further cost of £220, defrayed by the late Duke of Bedford: the west front, of massive Norman work, has square flanking turrets, surmounted by panelled turrets of Perpendicular date, reaching a height of 100 feet: above the west window are niches with images and elaborate panelling: in 1888 the interior was restored and reseated with open oak benches, the galleries removed, the outlay, amounting to over £2,000, being defrayed at the sole cost of the late Duke: there are 500 sittings, 150 being free. The earliest register, which is in the French language, dates from 1654, and appears to establish the fact that a number of Protestants settled here after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes in 1685. The living is a donative, gross yearly value £420, in the gift of the Duke of Bedford, and held since 1885 by the Rev. William Symons M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel, seating 130 persons. The Literary Society, founded in 1854, has a news-room and a library of 500 volumes, and a public room holding 300 persons. The Abbey rooms, opposite the church, used for meetings and entertainments, will hold 200 persons. The place has a right to hold a market on Thursdays, but this privilege has fallen into disuse: fairs for horses are held on July 1st and September 21st, and are well attended by dealers and others from all parts of the kingdom. A monastery for anchorites was founded here in 662, by Saxulf, abbot of Peterborough, but in 810, having then a prior and several monks, it was wasted by the Danes, and in 972 was restored by St. Ethelwold, Bishop of Winchester, as a house for monks of the Benedictine order, and dedicated to SS. Mary and Botolph: the members of this house exerted themselves much, like most of their brethren, for bettering the neighbourhood; and William of Malmesbury, in the time of Henry II. speaks in glowing terms of the beauty of the place, the productiveness of its fields, orchards and vineyards, and called it "the image of Paradise"; the abbots attained to great power, were mitred and sat in Parliament, and at the Dissolution the income was stated to be £411 12s. 11d. yearly. That the abbey was a building of vast extent is manifest from the remains of foundations laid bare at sundry times at great distances from the still remaining portion of the church. The whole parish is the property of the Duke of Bedford by grant from the Crown to Francis, 4th Earl of Bedford in 1634, who by enterprising and energetic measures carried out under the direction of the celebrated Dutch engineer, Cornelius Vermuyden, drained a vast tract of low lands of about 2,000 square acres, called the "Bedford Level," at that time a mere waste; this great work was completed in 1652, and the Level now ranks amongst the most fertile districts in the kingdom: the drainage of the Great Level subsequently in 1810 occupied the attention of Rennie and in 1822 of Telford, both eminent English engineers. The soil is chiefly a black vegetable loam, in parts silty clay; subsoil, rich clay, sea deposit. The chief crops are wheat and oats, with due proportion of rich grazing land. The acreage of the parish is 17,590; rateable value, £21,869 15s.; the population in 1891 was 1,861.

WRYDE is 2½ miles east, with a station on the Midland railway; WILLOW HALL, 3 miles south-west; FRENCH DROVE, 3 to 5 miles north; ENGLISH DROVE, a half to 2½ miles north; STONE BRIDGE, 2½ miles south; and THORNEY DYKE, 2 to 5 miles south and south-east.

At WRYDECROFT is a Board school, which is used also as a Church of England chapel, and at KNAR FEN is an iron Mission church.

The church of St. George is an ancient structure of flint and rubble, in the Early English, Decorated and Perpendicular styles, and consists of chancel, nave, transepts, south porch and an embattled central tower with small spire and containing 5 bells: the church was restored in 1876, and affords 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £107, net yearly value £104, with residence and 29 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1886 by the Rev. Charles Tertius Hellins TH.A. of King's College, London. The great tithes and about 48 acres of glebe belong to St. Peter's College, Cambridge. Here is a Congregational chapel, built in 1852, and purchased and restored in 1880, at a cost of £146. The charities amount to £9 7s. yearly. Thriplow Heath was the scene of a grand assembling of the Parliamentary army under the command of Fairfax and Cromwell, in the month of July, 1647. Arthur Cole Ellis esq. of Thriplow and Barrington, who is lord of the manors, and William John Ward Asplen esq. St. John's and St. Peter's Colleges, and Trinity Hall, Cambridge, are the principal landowners. The soil is sandy and gravelly; the subsoil, gravel and chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 2,434 acres; rateable value, £1,948; the population in 1881 was 463.

TOFT is a parish, about 6½ miles south-west from Cambridge, about 10 north from Royston and 4½ north-by-east from Old North Road station on the Bedford and Cambridge branch of the London and North Western railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Longstowe, petty sessional division of Caxton, union of Caxton and Arrington, county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Bourn and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Andrew, beautifully situated, is an ancient edifice of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of large and handsome chancel, nave of five bays, aisles and south porch: the chancel retains a small piscina and two aumbries, and in the south aisle is a niche and another piscina: the tower fell in 1890 while being pulled down, and is still in ruins; the nave arcade and tower arch are good examples of Perpendicular work, and the nave has a magnificent roof, with ornamented tie beams: there are some ancient benches and a plain octagonal font: in the church are memorials to the family of Eversden of Eversden: it was thoroughly restored in 1863, and has 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1539. The living is a rectory, with Caldecote annexed, average tithe rent-charge £341, gross joint yearly value £380, including 26½ acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Christ's College, Cambridge, and held since 1892 by the Rev. Henry Major Stephenson M.A. late fellow of that college. There is a small Primitive Methodist chapel here, built in 1862. Eversden's charity of £2 yearly is distributed in bread. The land is all freehold. The principal landowners are the Corporation of the Sons of the Clergy, Francis William Edward Beldam esq. J.P. and William Abraham Ellis Staffurth esq. D.L., J.P. of Whittlesey. The soil is heavy clay; subsoil, granite and gault. The chief crops are wheat, barley and beans. TRUMPINGTON is a parish and village, pleasantly situated on the London and Cambridge road, on the east bank of the Cam, 2 miles south from Cambridge, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Thriplow, Chesterton union, petty sessional division and county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Barton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of SS. Mary and Michael is a fine building of stone, in the Early Decorated style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave of five bays, aisles, north and south chapels, north porch and a lofty embattled western tower containing 5 bells: the chancel, which dates from about 1320, has some fine stained glass of that period, and retains a piscina; and there are others in the north and south chapels: on an altar-tomb, under a Decorated canopy, within the eastern arch of the north chapel, is the famous brass, 7 feet long, of Sir Roger de Trumpeton, ob. 1289, well known as being the second earliest brass in the kingdom; that of Sir John D'Aubernon, at Stoke D'Abernon, in Surrey, dating from 1277; the effigy is in chain mail, covered with a cyclas, and is cross-legged; the left arm bears a shield with the arms of Trumpington, viz. "az. crusily and two trumpets in pale, or;" this is the earliest known mailed figure with ailettes, the prototypes of the modern epaulettes, and the same arms are repeated on these and on the scabbard: fragments of the old stained glass are collected together in the east window and in one of the north windows: in the churchyard is a tablet to Professor Fawcett, postmaster-general, M.P., LL.D., D.C.L. economist and statesman, who died at Cambridge, 6 Nov. 1884, and was buried here: there is also a memorial window to him on the south side of the chancel; and there are others to Col. F. J. Pemberton, d. 1849; Lieut.-Col. Pemberton Campbell, d. 1876; and one to the Rev. Stephen Mansell, a former vicar, and his wife: there are 350 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1671, marriages from 1754; there is also an ancient chest containing documents from the middle of the 16th century. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £241, including 84 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Master and fellows of Trinity College, Cambridge, and held since 1891 by the Rev. Charles Gordon Wright M.A. of that college. The charities amount to £55 yearly for fuel and for apprenticing lads. Trumpington feast is held here on the 29th of June annually. Trumpington Hall, the seat of Henry Williams Pemberton esq. D.L., J.P. is a noble mansion of brick, approached by an avenue of lofty trees, and standing in a park of 24 acres. Anstey Hall, an ancient mansion of brick, standing in a well-wooded park of 15 acres, is the seat of Ebenezer Bird Foster esq. D.L., J.P.: there are also several well-built villa residences. The trustees of the late Col. Francis J. Pemberton, who are lords of the manor, Ebenezer Bird Foster esq. D.L., J.P. and the Master and fellows of Trinity College, Cambridge, are the principal landowners. The soil is loamy and gravelly; the subsoil, gravel. The area is 2,200 acres; rateable value, £8,862; the population in 1881 was 940.

TYDD ST. GILES (or Tid St. Giles) is a parish in the Isle of Ely, on the Lincolnshire border of the county, about 3 miles east from Tydd station on the Peterborough and Wisbech section of the Midland railway, 6 miles north-west from Wisbech and 96 from London, in the Northern division of the county, Wisbech hundred, union, petty sessional division and county court district, and rural deanery of Wisbech and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. The church of St. Giles, is an edifice of the 12th century, in the Norman and Early English styles, and consists of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, north porch and a detached embattled tower, containing 6 bells: the nave arcades have five Norman bays and one of later date; the piers are circular, and capitals varied, some being Norman and others Early English: the chancel arch is a drop arch on shafts, with Early English capitals: there are several niches: the south aisle and clerestory windows are Perpendicular, and the east window is stained: the west doorway exhibits an ogee arch, with three niches over it, and there is a fine Decorated window, with buttresses and crocketed canopies, supposed to be the work of Alan de Walsingham, architect of the lantern of Ely cathedral: the tower stands many yards away from the south-east angle of the chancel; its two lower stages seem to be Decorated, its upper stage Perpendicular: the church underwent thorough restoration in the year 1869, at a cost of £2,400, and an organ was built in 1883, at a cost of £270: there are 547 sittings. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £819, £200 of which goes to Dunstable, Bedfordshire, net yearly value £188, with 11 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Gordon Woodgate M.A. of Pembroke College, Oxford. There are Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels. Brigstock's and Wren's Charities, together producing £100 yearly, are distributed among the poor. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are lords of the manor of Wisbech Barton, which extends into this parish. The principal landowners are Alexander Peckover esq. F.L.S., F.R.G.S. of Bank House, Wisbech, Henry Allenby esq. James Edward Fraser esq. G. Jackson esq. Francis Jackson esq. of Wisbech, John Richard Tindall esq. and Captain Long R.N. The soil is loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats, beans, mustard, potatoes and peas. The area of the parish is 4,991 acres; rateable value, £7,159; the population in 1891 was 835.

FOUL ANCHOR is 3 miles east. Here is a Church of England mission-house. Near here is Tydd railway station, and there is a ferry at this point across the Nene.

A small portion of TYDD GOTE, 2 miles north-east, is in this parish; the rest is in Tydd St. Mary, Lincolnshire.

Parish Clerk, Alfred Joseph Burling.

UPWELL, formerly a market town, is a large village and extensive parish, 6½ miles south-east from the Wisbech station, partly in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Wisbech and in the Isle of Ely, a large portion being also in the hundred of Clackclose, county of Norfolk, union, petty sessional division and county court district of Wisbech, rural deanery of Fincham, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich. The parish is on either side of the river Nene, which separates the counties of Cambridge and Norfolk, and the Norfolk portion is given in Kelly's Directory of that county. By an order which came into operation March 25, 1884, detached parts of this parish were amalgamated with Welney, in Downham union. A steam tramway runs from Upwell to the railway station at Wisbech, conveying both goods and passengers. The village is lighted with gas by the Upwell and Outwell Gas Co. Limited, and supplied with water from wells. The mother church of Upwell St. Peter stands in Norfolk, and the rectory was separated from that of Welney by 9 and 10 Vict. c. 7 (1846). Christ Church is an ecclesiastical parish in the Isle of Ely, 4 miles south from the mother church, and 3 north-east from Stonea station on the March and Ely section of the Great Eastern railway: the church is a cruciform edifice of brick, with coloured facings, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, south porch, and a western turret containing one bell: there are three stained windows, and the church affords 400 sittings, 200 being free. The register dates from the year 1866. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge, £1,235, net yearly value, £785, with 5 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Charles Watson Townley esq. and held since 1889 by the Rev. Chas. Francis Townley M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. There are Wesleyan, Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels. The charities amount to £137 yearly. The Public Hall, erected in the year 1868 by a limited company, is an edifice of brick and stone, used for meetings of various kinds, concerts and lectures, and will hold 500 persons. An Odd Fellows' Lodge (Manchester Unity) is held fortnightly on Wednesdays, and is in a very flourishing condition. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are lords of the manor of Wisbech Barton, which extends into Upwell. The principal landowners are Charles Watson Townley esq. of Fulbourn Manor, the representatives of the late Rev. G. J. Huddleston, J. C. Townsend esq. Thomas Wright, Samuel West and Col. Lewis Vivian Loyd M.P., D.L. of Charlecote Park, Warw. Messrs. Jackson Hunt, Edward Few, Henry West and William Welchman, Miss Orton and the Rev. H. W. Coventry M.A., J.P. rector of Severn Stoke, Worc. The soil is loamy, in many parts highly fertile, and the subsoil clay. The crops are wheat, potatoes, peas, beans, oats and mustard. The area of the entire parish is 16,454 acres, of which there are 7,382 acres in Cambridgeshire and 9,037 in Norfolk; rateable value of the Cambridge portion, £12,010; the population in 1891 was 1,387 in Cambridge and 2,107 in Norfolk; the population of Christchurch ecclesiastical parish was 859.

EXMOOR (or Euismoor, or Euximoor) is 3 miles south; Lake's End is 5 miles south; Tip's End, 5 miles south.

LADDUS and Susan's (or Shrewsness) Green lie to the south-west.

WATERBEACH is a parish and large village, on the navigable river Cam, with a station on the London and Ely section of the Great Eastern railway, 62 miles from London, 5½ north-east from Cambridge, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Northstow, union of Chesterton, petty sessional division and county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Chesterton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The village is lighted with gas from works built in 1866, and belonging to John Wilson and Sons Lim. of Milton, Cambridge. The church of St. John the Evangelist is an edifice of the 13th century, in the Early English style with Perpendicular insertions, and consists of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 5 bells: the eastern triplet of lancets remains, but the windows of the clerestory and aisles are Perpendicular: the chancel is enriched with an alabaster and mosaic reredos: the beautiful font of marble and Caen stone and a very elaborate brass lectern were presented by friends of the late vicar: the chancel, nave and aisles have been restored, and the church enlarged and reseated with carved oak benches and in 1878 a stained window was placed in the belfry: the church was restored in 1878 at a cost of £3,500, and affords 450 sittings. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a discharged vicarage, tithe rent-charge £73, average £58, net yearly value £500, arising chiefly from 300 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1889 by the Rev. John Ross M.A. The mission church named St. Andrew, at the extreme end of the parish, adjoining the boundaries of Stretham and Wicken parishes, was erected in 1883, is a building of stone, consisting of chancel and nave and affords 150 sittings. Here is a Baptist chapel, of which the late Rev. C. H. Spurgeon was for some years minister; there are also Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels and a Salvation Army hall. A Cemetery of one acre, with a mortuary chapel, was formed in 1879 at a cost of about £300, and is under the control of a Burial Board of five members. The charities amount to nearly £150 yearly. Two and a half miles north-west are the remains of the ancient abbey of Denny (Daneia), originally built in 1160 by Robert, chamberlain to the Duke of Bretagne, as a cell of Ely, but refounded in 1342 by Agnes, Countess of Pembroke, for nuns of the order of St. Clare, and dedicated to SS. James and Leonard: the refectory, of Norman and Decorated work, remains. Richard Peele Mossop esq. solicitor, of Holbeach, Lincolnshire, is lord of the manor, which is now reduced to very insignificant proportions. E. Foster esq. the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, Harold Henry Wiles esq. and Joseph Toller esq. are the principal landowners. The land in this neighbourhood is very fertile, and there are large market garden grounds. The principal crops are wheat, barley, beans, potatoes and turnips. The area is 5,556 acres; rateable value, £14,743: the population in 1881 was 1,508.

JOIST FEN is in this parish.

WELNEY is a parish, partly in the Isle of Ely and county of Cambridge, and partly in Norfolk, on the banks of the Old Bedford river, 6 miles west from Manea station, on the March and Ely section of the Great Eastern railway, 13 south-east from Wisbech and 10 south-east from March, in the Northern division of the county, hundred and petty sessional division of Wisbech, union and county court district of Downham, rural deanery of Fincham, archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich: a suspension bridge, erected in 1826 at the sole cost of the Rev. William Gale Townley, formerly rector here, crosses the Hundred-foot river, and connects the village with Littleport and Ely. The church of St. Mary the Virgin, erected in 1848, on the removal of the old church, with funds derived from Marshall's charity, is a building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, north vestry and an eastern turret containing one bell: the east window is stained, and there is a stone reredos, erected in 1887 by friends of the present rector, at a cost of about £120. The registers date from the year 1642. The living, formerly a chapelry of Upwell, is now a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £982, net yearly value £782, with 13 acres of glebe and residence, built in 1864, in the gift of Charles Watson Townley esq. lord-lieut. and held since 1872 by the Rev. Edward Russell Wilford M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge, and J.P. Norfolk and Isle of Ely, diocesan inspector of schools in the deanery of Fincham, and surrogate. There are Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels here. Marshall's Charity consists of lands left in 1661 by W. Marshall esq. of Lincoln's Inn fields, London, now yielding a net income of about £500 a year: the property is vested in the hands of trustees and of the proceeds one-third is given to the widows in the parish and two-thirds are appropriated to the church, the schools and the roads. Charles Watson Townley esq. M.A., J.P. of Fulbourn Manor, is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are F. R. Beart esq. W. R. Beart esq. Morley Beart esq. the trustees of the late William Little esq. James Failes esq. and C. T. Robinson esq. The soil is clay and fen; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are coleseed, oats, wheat, beans and roots. The area is 5,444 acres; rateable value of Cambridge portion £2,968, and of Norfolk portion £4,748; the population, who are wholly dependent on husbandry, numbered in 1891, 486 in the Isle of Ely and 93 in Norfolk, making a total of 1,079. By an order which came into operation March 25, 1884, a detached part of Upwell was amalgamated with this parish.

WENDY is a parish near the river Rhea, about 5 miles north from Royston station, on the Hitchin, Royston and Cambridge section of the Great Northern railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Armingford, petty sessional division of Arrington and Melbourn, union and county court district of Royston, rural deanery of Shingay and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The parish is well supplied with pure water from artesian wells. The church of All Saints, rebuilt in 1866 at a cost of £1,200, is an edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, west porch and a western belfry containing one bell: the roof of the nave, of open woodwork, was removed here from the old church of All Saints, Cambridge: there is a memorial window to the Rev. George Washington Edwards Phillips, vicar here from 1827: the interior was decorated gratuitously in 1882 by Mr. J. Leach, of Cambridge, and affords 220 sittings. The register dates from the year 1550. The living is a rectory, with the chapelry of Shingay annexed, average tithe rent-charge £125, joint net yearly value £150, including 30 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1890 by the Rev. Walter Jones M.A. of Hatfield Hall, Durham. Captain William Skipworth, of The Grange, Clevedon, Somerset, is owner of the entire parish, which is freehold. The soil is loamy, and the subsoil clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and beans. The area is 947 acres; rateable value, £1,075; the population in 1881 was 136.

WENTWORTH (or WINGFORD) is a parish in the Isle of Ely, 1½ miles north from Wilburton station, on the Ely and St. Ives branch of the Great Eastern railway, 4½ west from Ely, in the Western division of the county, union, petty sessional division and county court district of Ely, hundred of South Witchford, rural deanery of Ely and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. The church of St. Peter is an edifice of stone in the Norman and Early English styles consisting of chancel, nave, north porch and a small embattled western tower, containing one bell: the chancel retains a piscina, and there are doorways of Norman date: the church was restored in 1868, and affords 130 sittings. The register commences from the year 1670. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £366, net yearly value £323, including 20 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Ely, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Oswald Henry Mosley, of Durham University. The Dean and Chapter of Ely, who are lords of the manor, and St. Peter's College, Cambridge, are the principal landowners. The soil is loam, with clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat and beans. The area is 1,437 acres; rateable value, £1,838; the population in 1881 was 143. By orders which came into operation March 25, 1884, detached parts of this parish were amalgamated with Coveney and Manea, the latter in North Witchford union, and on March 25, 1886, another detached part was amalgamated with Grunty Fen.

WHADDON, anciently "Wadune" and "Phwaddune," is a parish lying near the Great North road, 2 miles west from Meldreth station on the Hitchin, Royston and Cambridge branch of the Great Northern railway and 4 north from Royston, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Armingford, petty sessional division of Arrington and Melbourn, union and county court district of Royston, rural deanery of Shingay and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Mary the Virgin, entirely rebuilt in the 14th century, is an edifice of stone and flint, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a western tower containing a clock and 3 bells; the church retains an old oak screen and the ceiling is also of carved oak: on the chancel floor are several armorial slabs inscribed to Thomas Tempest 1649; Elizabeth Pickering 1694; Henry Pickering 1705; and Grace Pickering 1732: a fine organ built by Snetzler, and enlarged by Walker, of London, was placed in the church by John Felix Beaumont esq. in 1857: the church was restored in 1869 at a cost of £2,300 and affords 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1692. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £78, net yearly value about £200, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Canons of Windsor, and held since 1892 by the Rev. John Gough Eames M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. The vicarage house was enlarged and improved in 1877-8, at a cost of over £1,600. There are 104 acres of land with rectorial tithes, belonging to the Dean and Canons of Windsor as appropriators. The manor was held from 1467 by the Tempest family, from whom it was purchased in 1648 by Henry Pickering esq. created a baronet in 1661; this family held it till 1716, when it was again sold by Dame Grace, widow of Sir Henry Pickering, 2nd bart. to Edward Lord Harley, afterwards 2nd Earl of Oxford, of whom it was purchased by Philip (Yorke) 1st earl of Hardwicke and Lord Chancellor, and thence descended to Charles, 5th earl of Hardwicke, the present owner. The Earl of Hardwicke, who is lord of the manor, the Dean and Chapter of Windsor, and Christ's College, Cambridge, are the chief landowners. The soil is chiefly gault and loam, and the subsoil gault, gravel and clay. The chief crops are wheat, beans and barley. The area is 1,493 acres; rateable value, £1,611; the population in 1891 was 340.

WHITTLESEY.

WHITTLESEY, in Domesday "Witesie," but generally written Whittlesea, is an ancient market and union town, and head of a petty sessional division, with a station on the Great Eastern railway, 82 miles from London, 11 west from March and 6½ east-by-south from Peterborough, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of North Witchford, Isle of Ely, county court district of Peterborough and rural deanery of Ely, and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely.

The Wash, which forms an extensive portion of this parish, is about seven miles long, and varies from half a mile to one mile and a quarter in width; the land is chiefly used for pasturage, but for many months in the year is covered with water to a depth of several feet. There are ferry-boats at several parts of the Wash; wild fowl and other migratory birds abound in the vicinity. The navigable river Nene and the Whittlesey dyke run on either side of the town.

The Whittlesey Improvement Act, 1849 (12 and 13 Vict. c. 32), defines a district around the town for lighting, paving and cleansing the same, by commissioners appointed under the Act. The town is lighted with gas by a company and supplied with water from private wells. On the south side of the town the dyke banks are shaded by trees overhanging the pathway, which thus forms an agreeable promenade. From Church street and Peterborough end extensive and pleasing views of the adjacent counties of Hunts and Northampton are obtained.

Whittlesey consists of two parishes, which, under the Whittlesey Improvement Act, were consolidated for all civil but divided for ecclesiastical purposes, and are described as the united parishes of St. Mary and St. Andrew, Whittlesey, the ancient parish and manor of St. Mary retaining about two-thirds of the whole, after the parish and manor of St. Andrew had been taken out of it. By c. 32 sec. 9 of the above Act a separate district was assigned in 1850 out of St. Mary's parish to the church at Coates, which will be found described under a separate heading.

The church of St. Mary is a building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a western tower with crocketed pinnacles and lofty crocketed spire strengthened by flying buttresses and containing a clock and 8 bells with chimes: two Norman pillars remain on the north side: the south aisle is Decorated, and the north aisle, tower and spire Perpendicular: in 1856 a stained window was placed in the chancel: in 1862 the interior was restored from designs by the late Sir G. G. Scott R.A. at a cost of about £3,000; a chapel (formerly a school-room), forming the eastern end of the south aisle, was restored in 1862 in memory of Lieut.-Gen. Sir Harry George Waklyn Smith bart. G.C.B. born at Whittlesey in 1788, and died in London, October 12, 1860; a life-size bust, by G. G. Adams, and a tablet have been erected, and stained glass inserted in three of the windows, as memorials to the same officer: the stained west window was given by the late Mrs. Waller, wife of the present vicar, and the reredos by the late Thomas Bowker esq.: in the chancel are sedilia and a stoup formerly used for holy water: the church affords 900 sittings, of which 450 are free. The register dates from the year 1559, but the earlier portion is partly obliterated. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £214, with residence, in the gift of the trustees of the late John Walbanke Childers esq. and held since 1856 by the Rev. William Waller M.A. of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge, and surrogate.

The church of St. Andrew is a building of stone in the Perpendicular and Decorated styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and fine embattled western tower, with pinnacles and containing a clock and 6 bells: the church was restored in 1872, under the direction of Mr. R. R. Rowe, architect, of Cambridge, when a stained east window was given by the late Rev. Henry Burgess LL.D. vicar (1861-86) and his friends: there are 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1635. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £354, net yearly value £250, including 24½ acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1886 by the Rev. James Hamilton Charles M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge.

The General Baptist chapel in Windmill street has 300 sittings; the Particular Baptist chapel in Gracious street, 350; the Congregational chapel in Broad street, 400; the Methodist New Connexion in Church street, 150; Primitive Methodist in Woolpack lane, 150; and the Wesleyan in Queen street, 300.

The Cemetery, formed in 1859, is about a quarter of a mile from the town, on the Coates road, and covers an area of four acres; it contains two mortuary chapels and is under the control of a Burial Board of 9 members.

The churches and chapels were wholly closed to interments and the graveyards (with modifications) by Order in Council, March 25, 1873.

The Town Hall in Almshouse street, erected in 1857, is a plain structure of brick; magisterial and other meetings are held here, and the building also serves as a fire engine station.

The Public Hall, erected in 1880 by a Limited Company, at a cost of £1,500, is a building of white brick with stone dressings, and will seat 400 persons; it holds a licence for theatrical and other performances.

The Market House in the Market place, a large open square, is a small but ancient edifice, with a tiled roof supported on stone pillars.

The market is held on Friday, and a fair for horses and cattle June 13. Courts leet and baron are held twice a year; the fines in the manor are certain.

The Whittlesey Institution in Barr street, established in 1846, has a news room and a library of 500 volumes. There are now (1892) 40 members.

The Conservative Association and the Constitutional Club occupy premises in Almshouse street, comprising a news room and committee rooms; the Liberal Association has committee rooms in the Market place; there is also a Social Club for gentlemen, with billiard & reading rooms at the Public Hall; there are 30 members.

Here is a yard for manufacturing bricks by the semi-dry process, and there are some excellent beds of gravel.

The governors of the town revenues consist of a body of twelve trustees, who manage lands formerly devised to relieve the inhabitants of these parishes from the tax anciently laid in the Isle of Ely for the repairs of Aldreth causeway: but under a decree of the Court of Chancery dated June 2, 1688, the governors now apply the proceeds to specified public uses.

There are several charities, founded by Messrs. Kelfull, Dow, Randall and Noble; that of Mr. Kelfull includes a provision for educating fifteen boys; and that of Mr. Sudbury for the commercial education of five boys and the apprenticing of others; the whole of the above charities, with the exception of Sudbury's, have been amalgamated under a scheme of the Charity Commissioners, framed in the year 1868; the net income of the united charities now (1892) amounts to about £80, and Sudbury's to about £69 10s.

The soil of the whole parish is chiefly a black loam, with a subsoil of clay and gravel; the land is fertile, and the chief crops are wheat, peas and potatoes, with a great portion of rich pasture; potatoes are grown extensively for the London market.

Whittlesey Mere, named from this place, but 6 miles distant and in Huntingdonshire, has been drained by the Middle Level Commissioners, and an area of 1,500 acres brought under cultivation.

Traces of a Roman road are found at Eldernell, where several antiquities have been dug up, including a massive gold ring.

The trustees of the late John Walbanke Childers esq. (d. 1886) are lords of the manor. The landowners are the Duke of Bedford, the trustees of the late J. W. Childers esq. Mrs. Waddelow, the trustees of W. C. Livett, William Bridges Blunt esq. Skelton Smalley esq. Lieut.-Col. Charles Isham Strong J.P. of Thorpe Hall, and the governors of the town revenues, besides many smaller owners.

The parishes of Whittlesey, with the hamlets of Coates, Eastrea, and the surrounding Fens, contained in 1891 a population of 6,345, almost all of whom depend upon agriculture for support; the population in the Improvement Commissioners' district in 1891 was 3,556, and in the rural district 2,789, including about 60 officers and inmates of the workhouse; the parishes contain 24,700 acres of rich and productive land, including water and waste land, 26,200 acres; rateable value, £40,934 5s.

ANGLE BRIDGE, in this parish, is an ecclesiastical district formed in 1876: a mission house with day and Sunday school was erected in 1877, at a cost of about £800: the master of the above school is a licensed lay reader, and, under the superintendence of the clergy, conducts services here every Sunday.

POND'S BRIDGE, about 3 miles south, is an ecclesiastical parish, formed 18 Sept. 1866, from the parishes of St. Andrew, Whittlesey, and Ramsey and Stanground, in Hunts, but as the principal part of the parish is in Hunts, it will be found in Kelly's Directory of that county; the population of the portion in Cambridgeshire in 1881 was 398.

FLEGCROFT lies to the south.

Parish Clerk (St. Mary's), John Fevre.
Sexton (St. Andrew's), Joseph Rowell.

WHITTLESFORD is a parish and village near the river Cam, with a station 1 mile south-east from the village, on the main line of the Great Eastern railway, 45 miles by road from London and 7 south from Cambridge, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of its name, union and petty sessional division of Linton, county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Camps second division and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of SS. Mary and Andrew is a structure of flint, in the Gothic style of the 14th century, but retaining traces of an older church which stood on the same site: it consists of chancel with chapel on the south side, nave, south aisle, south porch and an embattled central tower containing 5 bells: the font is Norman and there are some ancient carved oak screens: on the north side of the tower is a turret, which gives access to the belfry, and formerly also to the rood loft: the chancel retains a small piscina and sedilia in three divisions, formed by the continuation downwards of the mullions of the south-east window: the south chantry or chapel, which opens into the chancel by two Perpendicular arches, has also a small piscina: the nave arcade is Early English: on the eastern battlements of the tower are two shields of arms: during the years 1870-9 a large sum was spent in restoring and embellishing the interior: in the course of the work, the remains of a very beautiful alabaster reredos were discovered in the chancel wall: there are 280 sittings. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £11, net yearly value about £212, including 76½ acres of glebe, in the gift of Jesus College, Cambridge, and held since 1891 by the Rev. James Robertson M.A. formerly fellow of that college. Here is a Congregational chapel. The various charities amount to £132 yearly, which sum is distributed to the poor in coals and money. The Working Men's Institute, erected in 1866, at a cost of about £600, by the late Mr. Robert Maynard, contains a lecture hall, reading rooms and a bagatelle room. In the village are the engineering works of Mr. Robert Maynard. Joseph Hollick Tickell esq. who is lord of the manor, and Robert Maynard esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is gravelly; subsoil, chalk. The crops are wheat, barley, oats and peas. The area is 1,915 acres; rateable value, £3,408; the population in 1891 was 875.

WICKEN is a village and parish 4 miles south from Soham station on the Ely and Newmarket branch of the Great Eastern railway and 8 north-west from Newmarket, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Staploe, union and petty sessional division of Newmarket, county court district of Soham, rural deanery of Fordham, archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Lawrence is an ancient edifice of stone, in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 5 bells, the oldest of which was cast in 1582: there is a vault within the church in which the remains of several members of Oliver Cromwell's family were buried, but these remains have been removed from the vault to make room for those of another family: on the chancel floor is an inscribed marble slab to Henry Cromwell, fourth son of the Protector, ob. 1673: the church was thoroughly restored in 1879 and 1880 at a cost of over £900, and affords 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1564. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £175, including 45½ acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Church Patronage Society, and held since 1886 by the Rev. Thomas William Thomas M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. There is a Mission Hall in connection with the church, erected in 1887, Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels and three almshouses, erected and endowed with £30 yearly, by the late Miss Hatch, who left other charities for the poor of this parish. A Cemetery of half an acre was formed in 1877, and is under the control of a Burial Board of 5 members; there is no mortuary chapel. Ancient coins and other antiquities have been found in the neighbourhood. The monastery of Spinney, or de Spineto, a cell of Ely in 1449, was founded here in the time of Henry III. (1216-1307), by Beatrix Malebise and Mary de Bassingbourne, for canons of the order of St. Augustine, and was dedicated to St. Mary and the Holy Cross: the remains now serve as a farm house. Messrs. Paine and Brettle, of Chertsey, are lords of the manor. The principal landowners are Isaac Aspland Aspland esq. Chambers Golding esq. of Spinney Abbey, and the trustees of Lady Chichester. The soil is various; subsoil, chiefly clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and beans. The area is 3,812 acres; rateable value, £5,940; the population in 1891 was 716.

WILLINGHAM (or Wyvelingham) is a large village and parish a mile and a quarter north from Long Stanton station on the St. Ives and Cambridge section of the Great Eastern railway, 10 miles north-west from Cambridge and 6½ east from St. Ives, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Papworth, union of Chesterton, petty sessional division and county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Chesterton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Mary and All Saints is an edifice of stone and rubble, chiefly in the Decorated style, with some remains of Saxon and Norman work, and consists of chancel, clerestoried nave of six bays, aisles, south porch and a lofty western tower with pinnacles and spire, and containing a clock and 5 bells: in the north wall of the chancel is an arched recess and on the south side is a remarkably fine piscina and sedilia; some ancient though mutilated stalls remain, and there is an excellent Perpendicular roof with carved foliage: on the north side of the chancel, and now used as a vestry, is a small but very remarkable chapel, in the Decorated style, with a high pitched stone roof, carried on stone arches springing from corbels and pierced above by tracery with foliated cusping; it has also a piscina mounted on a shaft: the piers and arches of the nave are Decorated and the clerestory Perpendicular; the very fine hammer-beam roof, also of this date, is said to have been brought from Barnwell priory: the spandrils are filled with carved foliage and shields, and there are traces of illumination: at the west end is a low wooden gallery, over which are the royal arms, at present blocking the tower arch; most of the original benches, with good carved standards, remain; in the north aisle are two fine canopied tombs, and an altar step remains at the east end, which formed a chantry chapel belonging to the manor of Willingham, and is still inclosed by a beautiful though much mutilated Decorated screen: the roof is Perpendicular, with carved bosses, and retains much of the ancient colouring; the south aisle has a roof of different pattern, and is partly inclosed by a Perpendicular screen, forming a chapel attached to the manor of Brunes; it retains a piscina and a canopied tomb: the font is Perpendicular and has an octagonal basin: the pulpit, of the same period, is pentagonal, on a single octagonal shaft, and has panelled sides, beautifully carved: within the lower stage of the tower are two large arched recesses: the chancel has been restored by the rector, under the direction of Messrs. Carpenter and Ingelow, architects: there are 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £545, net yearly value £580, including 80 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1890 by the Rev. John Watkins M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge: the rectory house has been almost entirely restored by the present rector. The Baptist chapel in High street seats 800 persons, and there is another called the "Tabernacle;" the Wesleyan chapel affords 600 sittings, and in the village is also a small public reading room. A cemetery of 2 acres was formed in 1865 at a cost of £500, and is under the control of a Burial Board of nine members. At Belsar's Hill are the remains of an encampment. A scheme was issued in 1876 by the Charity Commissioners for the management of the Willingham Charities, whereby the gross income, amounting to £110 yearly, is distributed in the following manner:—£50 for educational purposes; two almswomen to receive from 5s. to 8s. per week, and the residue to be given to the deserving poor. The Rev. William Robert Finch-Hatton B.A. rector of Great Weldon, is lord of the manor of Willingham, and Col. Robert Thomas Hamond R.A., D.L., J.P. of Pampisford Hall, is lord of Blurneys. The principal landowners are the trustees of the late Elliot Smith esq. D.L., J.P. of Parkside, Cambridge; William Frederick Wells esq. of Lordship road, London N; the Corporation of the Sons of the Clergy; Queen's, Corpus Christi and Jesus Colleges, Cambridge; William Abraham Ellis Staffurth esq. D.L., J.P. of Whittlesey; William Ward Asplen esq. of Foxton Hall; Charles Edward Ivatt esq. J.P. of Rampton Manor; John Linton esq. the rector, John Frohock esq. William Tibbit esq. Edward Few esq. Mrs. Thoday, Joseph Gleaves esq. James Pyke esq. John Francis Gleaves esq. the trustees of Stephen Feary, the trustees of Benjamin Howe, Mrs. Daintree and R. C. Taylor esq.. The soil varies, but is very fertile; subsoil, mostly blue clay and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, beans, barley, potatoes, garden produce and fruit, especially gooseberries. The area is 4,485 acres; rateable value, £9,297; the population in 1881 was 1,577.

WIMBLINGTON (formerly a hamlet of Doddington) is now a parish on the road from Chatteris to March, with a station three-quarters of a mile south on the Wisbech and St. Ives branch of the Great Eastern railway, and 4 miles south from March, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of North Witchford, Isle of Ely, union of North Witchford, petty sessional division and county court district of March and rural deanery of Ely, and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. The church of St. Peter is a building of stone, in the Gothic style, opened in May, 1854, and consists of chancel, nave and south porch and an eastern tower with spire containing a clock and one bell: there are 350 sittings, of which about 300 are free. The register dates from the year 1874. The living is a rectory, average yearly value from tithe rent-charge £1,615, with 7 acres of glebe, in the gift of Capt. Sir Algernon Francis Peyton bart. J.P. and held since 1874 by the Rev. Joseph Hill B.A. of Worcester College, Oxford. There are two Wesleyan Methodist chapels, one at Stonea and the other in the village, and a Primitive Methodist chapel at Hook. At Stonea Grange, a short distance from the village, there was once a Roman station, traces of which still remain and on the site of which coins have been frequently found; it has been considered by some antiquaries as originally formed by the early inhabitants for the purpose of inclosing their cattle during the winter time, and afterwards to have been occupied as a military encampment. An old cannon ball found here, weighing 24lbs. is in the possession of Thomas Richards esq. D.L., J.P. The principal landowners are Capt. Sir Algernon Francis Peyton J.P. of Swift's House, Bicester, Oxon, who is lord of the manor, Thomas Richards esq. J.P., D.L. the trustees of Mr. Robert Shepperson, Harry Spencer Waddington esq. J.P., D.L. of Cavenham Hall, Mildenhall, Suffolk, Thomas Ridgeway esq. Robert Heath esq. M.P. and Jasper Lyon esq. The soil is clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 7,565 acres; rateable value, £12,055; the population in 1881 was 1,089, and 1891, 1,158.

STONEA, in this parish, has a station on the Great Eastern line from Ely to Peterborough.

WIMPOLE is a parish about 8 miles north-west from Royston, about 9 south-west from Cambridge and 3 south-east from Old North road station, on the Bedford and Cambridge branch of the London and North Western railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Wetherley, petty sessional division of Arrington and Melbourn, union of Caxton and Arrington, county court district of Cambridge, rural deanery of Barton and archdeaconry and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Andrew, rebuilt, with the exception of the chantry, in 1749, is an edifice of red brick, in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, chantry, south porch and a western tower containing one bell: the east window is stained, and in the church are many marble monuments to former lords of the manor; and an altar tomb to a member of the Chichele family; the chantry chapel contains memorials to members of the Yorke family, including an imposing monument to Philip, first Earl of Hardwicke and Lord Chancellor 1737-56, who was born at Dover, 1 Dec. 1690, and died in Grosvenor square, London, 6 March, 1764; there is also an altar tomb, with recumbent effigy in marble, to Philip, 3rd Earl of Hardwicke K.G. d. 18 Nov. 1834: the church was restored in 1887, at a cost of £700, as a memorial to Susan, late Countess of Hardwicke, d. 22 Nov. 1886: there are 240 sittings. The register dates from the year 1540. The living is a rectory, average tithe rent-charge £512, gross yearly value £500, net £415, including 1 acre of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Hardwicke, and held since 1876 by the Rev. Edward Lyon Fellowes M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford, who is also rector of Arrington. The Chichele charity of £20 yearly is for fuel and Beho's of £1 1s. for bread. Wimpole Hall, the seat of the Earl of Hardwicke P.C., M.A., D.L., J.P. is a spacious mansion of brick, the central part of which was built by Sir Thomas Chichele about the year 1632, the wings being added by Lord Oxford, and the house newly fronted and the principal apartments fitted up by Philip, first Earl of Hardwicke and Lord Chancellor, in 1736-37; it contains a valuable collection of pictures by old masters: the deer park, which consists of 300 acres, contains two small lakes; the river Cam flows through the estate, and in front of the house is a spacious avenue, consisting of a double row of elms, extending 2¾ miles in length and of great width. The Earl of Hardwicke is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is stiff clay; subsoil, clay and gault. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 2,428 acres; rateable value, £2,668; the population in 1891 was 290.

Parish Clerk, John Whetstone.

WISBECH.

WISBECH is a seaport, market town, head of a union and county court district, with stations on the Midland, Great Eastern and Great Northern railways, 87 miles from London, 40 north from Cambridge, 116 from Birmingham, viâ Peterborough and Blisworth, 22 east from Spalding, 63 from Northampton, 34 from Stamford, 23 from Ely, 7¾ from March, 21 from Peterborough. 15½ west-south-west from Lynn and 64 from Norwich, viâ Lynn, in the Northern division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division and rural deanery of the same name, liberty of the Isle of Ely, and peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely; it is also the seat of the January and July quarter sessions for the liberty of the Isle of Ely, and of the petty sessions for the hundred, and is on the borders of Norfolk, within a few miles of the sea, to which it has access by the navigable river Nene, which intersects the town, the larger portion being on the south side of the river, the banks of which, during the years 1890-91, were strengthened with piling, at a cost of £20,000. The thoroughfares facing the river are known chiefly as the "North and South Brinks." By the Wisbech canal, the town has also water communication by the Ouse with Cambridge, Hertford and London.

The branch line of the Great Eastern railway from the main line to Wisbech harbour has materially assisted the development of the timber and coal trade of the town, and there is also a steam tramway from Wisbech station to Upwell for the conveyance of goods and passengers. The Midland line from Peterborough, which joins the Great Northern line at Sutton Bridge, affords an additional means of inter-communication, and by means of these various railways the town is rendered one of the most desirable ports for carrying on shipping transactions between the Midland Counties and the Baltic Sea. The Midland line has also a tramway into the Old Market. The railway stations are about half a mile from the centre of the town, the Midland on the north and the Great Eastern on the south, but street railways communicate with the warehouses on the north side of the town, so that railway trucks can be loaded or unloaded direct out of the warehouses and ships without cartage expenses.

Vessels of 787 tons can enter the port. The average annual number of vessels from foreign ports for the past seven years entered inwards is 123: the tonnage of ships from foreign ports in 1891 was 41,990, and outwards, 16,138; coast vessels, inwards 12,313 tons, and outwards 36,461 tons. Fishing boats and implements are distinguished by the letters W. I.: two sea fishing boats and eight merchant vessels are registered at the port. Since 1852 the quays have been much improved by the erection of new wharfage, at an expense to the town of about £60,000, and an iron bridge has been erected, which spans the river in the centre of the town.

The chief trade is in importing corn, potatoes, bones, wool, seeds, coal, timber and iron; and the chief exports are coal, corn and salt, the latter arriving from Worcestershire by the Midland railway: in the surrounding district fruit is largely grown, chiefly gooseberries, apples, pears, plums, strawberries and raspberries; potatoes and asparagus are also extensively grown. There are planing and sawing mills, breweries, rope works, printing offices, numerous wind and some steam corn and oilcake mills, coach factories and agricultural implement works.

The town, incorporated by Edw. VI. is divided into north and south wards, and governed by a Corporation, consisting of a mayor, six aldermen and eighteen town councillors; it has a separate commission of the peace and other officers, including a treasurer, town clerk, town chamberlain, charitable trustees, harbour masters and a superintendent of police. The Corporation act as the Urban Sanitary Authority. There is also a Board of Health for Wisbech and Walsoken, for main sewerage, six members of which form the Board of Health for Walsoken. The town is well lighted with gas by a company, and supplied with water from chalk springs at Marham, in Norfolk, 21 miles distant, the works being the property of a company. The Market place is a fine open space, and the Crescent, a handsome part of the town, is planted with shrubs and trees. The Old Market, in which the corn merchants' offices are chiefly situated, is a spacious square.

The church of SS. Peter and Paul is an edifice of stone, in the Early Norman and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, double nave, transept, south porch and a large embattled tower at the north-west angle containing a clock and 10 fine-toned bells; the clock was erected in 1866 by Mr. James Dann, of this town, at a cost of about £400: in the chancel floor is a very large brass to Sir Thomas de Branstone, constable of Wisbech Castle, ob. 1401, with effigy in armour and mutilated inscription in French: the reredos, presented by Mr. John Shepherd, and unveiled 26th June, 1885, is a fine work in stone, alabaster and Florentine mosaic, executed in Venice by Salviati; the principal feature is a reproduction in mosaic of Leonardo Da Vinci's picture, "The Last Supper," with canopied figures of St. Peter and St. Paul on either side, designed by Mr. Bassett Smith, under whose superintendence the church was restored: a memorial window has been erected to the Rev. John Scott M.A. hon. canon of Ely and vicar here, 1867-86: the church was restored in 1858, at a cost of £4,200, and re-constructed and enlarged in 1873, at a cost of £650, and affords 1,600 sittings, half of which are free. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £947, net yearly value £540, with 42½ acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1886 by the Rev. Robert Edward Reginald Watts M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, and surrogate.

St. Augustine's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1869 from the civil parishes of St. Peter Wisbech and Leverington. The church, erected in 1868-9 and opened in May, 1869, at a cost of about £4,000, is a structure of brick with stone dressings, in the Early English style, consisting of clerestoried nave, aisles, and central turret containing one bell: the reredos, erected in 1878, is of stone, the panels being filled in with glass mosaic, displaying a central cross with the figures of three angels on either side, bearing on shields the instruments of the Passion: the stained east window, placed 7 Dec. 1883, is a memorial, and there are four other stained windows: the church affords 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1870. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £156, net yearly value £230, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Arthur Izard M.A. of Trinity College, Oxford.

The Chapel of Ease, in the Old Market, is an octagonal embattled structure of brick, with stone facings, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a belfry containing one bell, and has sittings for 650 persons, 200 of which are free. The living is a perpetual curacy, gross yearly value £450, net £265, arising from 263 acres of glebe, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Charles Sumpter Harris LL.M. of Trinity Hall, Cambridge.

The Catholic chapel, Queen's road, built in 1854, and dedicated to Our Lady and St. Charles Borromeo, is an edifice in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and a turret containing one bell. The Friends' Meeting House, North Brink, was built in 1854. The Particular Baptist chapel, Upper Hill street, erected in 1859 at a cost of about £4,000, is a stone building in the Early English style, seating about 600 persons. The General Baptist chapel, Ely place, was built in 1873, and will seat 400. The Congregational chapel, Castle square, was built in 1818, and the Primitive Methodist chapel, Church terrace, in 1868. The Wesleyan chapel, in the Crescent, will seat 500. The United Methodist Free church, Little Church street, built in 1869-70, at a cost of about £2,500, is of red brick with stone facings. The Baptist chapel, Victoria road, is of brick and was erected in 1856.

There are three cemeteries, one of about 4 acres, belonging to and situated near the church; another of 2 acres on the Leverington road, the property of a private company; each has a mortuary chapel, and grounds planted with shrubs and evergreens: a third, formed by the Town Council acting as a Burial Board, was opened October 31, 1881, at Mount Pleasant, and contains an area of 11 acres and one mortuary chapel.

The parish church and churchyard, part of the church cemetery and the Unitarian burial grounds were wholly closed against interments by Order in Council, May 25, 1855.

The Corn Exchange, on the North Brink, includes, in addition to the Exchange, a sale room and various offices. The Cattle Market, near the Corn Exchange, on the Chapel road, was formed at a cost of £2,300: the Corn Market day is Saturday: cattle markets are held on Thursdays and Saturdays weekly; and fairs on the Saturday after the end of Lynn February 14th fair, which lasts fourteen days; the second Thursday in May and July 25 for horses and the first Thursday in August for beasts; the third Wednesday in September for hiring.

The Custom House for the port, with a collector and controller, is in Monica road.

There are two banks, four weekly newspapers, one of which is printed in the town, and several excellent hotels, of which the "Rose and Crown," the "Ship," the "White Hart" and the "White Lion" are the chief.

The Post Office, in Bridge street, was erected in 1886-7.

The Public Hall, in Upper Hill street, built in 1840, at a cost of £1,000, contains a large room capable of holding 800 persons, and a lecture room to hold 200, besides two board rooms and the usual offices; the entire building was restored and re-decorated in 1885, and is used for concerts, public meetings and other purposes.

The "United Good Fellowship" (No. 809) Lodge of Freemasons, to which there is a Chapter attached, holds its meetings at the "Rose and Crown," on the 4th Thursday in the month.

The Police Office adjoins the Cattle Market.

The Fire Brigade consists of a captain, one superintendent and 12 men, with a new steam fire engine, purchased in March, 1885 at a cost of £1,000, paid out of the Corporation funds, 3 manual engines and a fire escape; the engine house is in Lower Hill street, keys being kept at the Police office and by the superintendent, Mr. Archer, North street.

The Museum and Literary Institution, in Museum square, is open from 11 to 5 in summer and 11 to 4 in winter, and on Thursday evenings from 7 to 9. The Literary Institution was established in 1781, and the Museum in 1835, and they were amalgamated in 1877: the collections include Egyptian antiquities, Celtic flint and bronze implements, Roman-British querns and urns, and Anglo-Saxon fibulæ, besides a valuable collection of ceramics, bijouterie, articles of vertu and coins, bequeathed to the museum in 1869, by the Rev. C. H. Townsend: in British ornithology the collection, comprising many rare Fen birds, is nearly complete; the specimens of marine and freshwater fish taken in the river and in the Wash are extensive and curious; there are also some fine mineralogical and geological specimens, and collections of natural history.

A park, with pleasure grounds, comprising an area of 18 acres, planted with shrubs, flowers and evergreens, was opened in 1870, at a cost of £3,769 18s. 10d. of which sum the land cost £2,400, the remainder being expended in inclosing and ornamenting: the memorial column, erected in the park in 1871, to the late Richard Young esq. M.P. which was blown down and shattered by a storm in December, 1883, has been repaired at a cost of £117, raised by subscription: adjoining and overlooking the park is the North Cambridgeshire Cottage Hospital, a structure of brick, with lodge and detached residence for the surgeon, built and furnished by the munificence of Miss M. E. Trafford Southwell, of Honington Hall, Grantham, at a cost of about £8,000, and opened Nov. 22, 1873: the foundress endowed the hospital with a sum of £6,000, augmented by donations to the amount of £10,000: there are beds for 26 patients, and during 1891 there were 163 patients.

A Fever Hospital was established in 1875, at Mount Pleasant.

The Working Men's Club and Institute, Lower Hill street, originally a private dwelling house, was opened January 4th, 1865, and subsequently enlarged, and a new smoking room was added in 1891; attached is a tower of brick and stone, 100 feet high, containing an illuminated clock and chimes, erected by Mr. James Dann of this town: the building comprises a lecture hall, reading, smoking, conversation and class rooms, library of 5,000 volumes, gymnasium and a residence for the hall keeper: in connection with the institute is a savings bank, coal and Christmas clubs, as well as clubs for cricket, football, gymnastic, draughts and chess; and various educational classes are also held: there are now (1892) 1,078 members.

The Memorial to Thomas Clarkson M.A. the indefatigable advocate for the abolition of the slave trade, was erected at a cost of £2,055, raised by subscription, from the designs of the late Sir Gilbert Scott R.A.: the first stone was laid 28 Oct. 1880, and the memorial unveiled 1 Nov. 1881: it consists of a statue, mounted on a platform, above which rises a canopy, terminating in a spire, the whole being 68 feet high: on three sides of the base are carved bas-reliefs, representing respectively Wilberforce, Granville Sharp and a manacled slave in a beseeching attitude: the fourth side bears an inscription to this distinguished philanthropist, who was born at Wisbech 26 March, 1760, and died at Playford Hall, near Ipswich, 26 Sept. 1846.

The WISBECH CHARITIES comprise the following:—

Thomas Parke, by will, in 1628, gave his house, in Ship lane, Wisbech, for the poor of the parish. The endowment now consists of £1,362 17s. 11d. Stock, and 2 acres of land in Wisbech, producing a yearly income of about £55: the net income is appropriated to the purchase of clothing for the poor.

In the year 1638, William Holmes gave £400 to the Burgesses of Wisbech, to be invested in land, and the rent applied for the maintenance of two scholars at St. Mary Magdalene College in the University of Cambridge, and for binding out poor children apprentices: and by his will, in 1656, directed that the whole yearly income of the said land, after payment of 20s. annually to the said college, should be paid yearly towards the maintenance of the said scholars. The estate now consists of £7,252 Stock and farmhouse and buildings, with 46 acres of land, in Holbeach, Lincolnshire, called the Clays Farm. The income, amounting to about £300, forms part of the endowment of the Wisbech Grammar School, under a scheme of the Charity Commissioners, November, 1878.

In the year 1656, William Holmes gave by will £300 to the capital burgesses of Wisbech, to be lent out in sums of £10 each to poor tradesmen, free of interest, upon their giving good security for repayment.

John Crane, by will, in 1651, gave to the town of Wisbech his house called "the Black Bull," one-half of the revenue to amend the schoolmaster's wages, and the other moiety to be laid out in the purchase of corn and firing to be given to the poor about Christmas or New Year's Day. In the year 1802 the Corporation sold the estate and invested the proceeds. The charity estate now consists of £1,659 stock and 8 acres of land, in Wisbech High Fen. The gross income is about £65, one moiety of which forms part of the endowment of the Grammar School, and the other moiety is distributed in flour and coals to the poor on or about St. Thomas' Day, annually; he also directed his executors to buy lands, which he gave to the five corporations therein mentioned (Wisbech being one), the revenues every fifth year to be bestowed on honest poor men in prison for debt, or old women, or the relief of poor men in want, or to relieve them out of prison for debt: the charity estate consists of an estate in Fleet, Lincolnshire, consisting of 176 acres of land, Wisbech receiving about £70 annually for its one-fifth share of the rents; he also directed his executors to buy lands, the revenues whereof, every fifth year (until it amounted to £300 Stock) he gave to the town of Wisbech, to be lent freely to young men to help to set them up, in sums of £20 free of interest.

John Baxter, by his will, in 1793, gave to the capital burgesses of Wisbech all the interest arising from his property in the English funds to allow annually £10 each to a poor old man or woman totally incapacitated for labour, with an injunction that they attend divine worship every Sunday. The estate consists of £1,428 Stock, and produces an income of £42, and there are four annuitants, each in receipt of £10 yearly.

The Shambles Estate, situated in the Market place, Wisbech, was granted by Queen Elizabeth, the lady of the manor, for the use of the inhabitants of the town of Wisbech. The capital burgesses, in the year 1810, for the purpose of improving the town, purchased the estate; the purchase money was invested in £500 Stock, the income thereof being distributed annually in clothing to the poor.

The King's Dole.—By the governing charter of the town of Wisbech, granted 21st Car. II. it was ordained that the capital burgesses should distribute annually amongst the poor inhabitants of the town £3 15s. out of the rents of their estates.

Bartholomew Edwards, by his will, 1583, gave £10 and John Williamson, by will, dated 1599, gave £40 to the Body Corporate of Wisbech for the use of the poor.

Margaret Beude, by will 1605, gave £50 to the Body Corporate of Wisbech for the use of the poor: of the income amounting to £2 10s., 6s. 8d. is paid to the poor of Leverington, Parson Drove and the remainder to the poor of Wisbech St. Mary.

John Thurloe, in the year 1656, gave £150 to the Corporation of Wisbech, the interest thereof to be applied in putting out three apprentices annually.

Lord Saye and Sele in the year 1656, gave £100 to the Corporation of Wisbech, the interest thereof to be applied in clothing poor people yearly.

Richard Royce by will in 1669, gave 16 acres of land in Wisbech High Fen to the capital burgesses for clothing poor widows: the rent is now £28 yearly.

Richard Loake, by will in 1701, gave £200 to the capital burgesses of Wisbech, the interest of £100 to be annually expended in clothing 5 poor widows or housekeepers, and of the other £100 to be distributed by the churchwardens amongst the poor. The income amounts to £10 yearly.

William Scottred, by will dated 1603, gave 12 acres of land in Wisbech St. Mary, the rent amounting to £18 a year, to be paid to the churchwardens, for the use of the poor.

The Rev. Abraham Johnson D.D. in the year 1827, gave to the Body Corporate of Wisbech £1,000, the interest to be applied to the purposes and objects of the Wisbech Dorcas Society; the income, about £47 10s. yearly, is paid over to the treasurer of the society.

Elizabeth Stevens, by will dated 1835, gave to the Corporation of Wisbech £500 to be invested, and the interest to be paid to 15 poor widows: the endowment consists of £498 14s. 11d. Stock: the income is distributed accordingly.

There are 12 almhouses in Wisbech, erected by the Corporation, containing upper and lower rooms, for 24 aged persons.

Elizabeth Wright, spinster, by will in 1732, gave to trustees certain estates in Wisbech and the adjoining parishes of Leverington, Parson Drove, Sutton, Gedney, Wisbech St. Mary and Tydd St. Mary, the rents and profits thereof to be applied, partly in support of the charity schools, and partly for distribution amongst poor women living in good credit and reputation and attending at church. The income, amounting to about £312 yearly, is applied according to the directions of the will.

Judith Mayer, spinster, by will in the year 1811, gave to trustees £500, to erect a building to be used as an asylum, to be called after her name, for the reception of such poor persons of Wisbech afflicted with palsy, rheumatism, gout, blindness or other complaint, as a lasting token of her good wishes and regard for the town and its inhabitants; she also gave to the capital burgesses and to the vicar and churchwardens the sum of £1,200, to be invested and the dividends applied towards the support and repair of such building, as well as for the use and benefit of the occupants and for the purchase of coals annually. The trustees, in 1815, built an asylum, consisting of 5 tenements; each occupant receives £10 a year and an allowance of coals.

The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are lords of the manor of Wisbech Barton, which extends into the following parishes, Wisbech St. Peter, Wisbech St. Mary and Leverington (including Parson Drove and Guyhirn), Tydd St. Giles, Elm, Upwell, Outwell and Welney, and are also lords of the manor of Wisbech Rectory, which extends into Wisbech St. Peter and St. Mary.

The soil is loam; subsoil, clay. Chief crops, wheat, market garden produce and pasturage. The acreage is 6,432; rateable value, £36,072; the population of Wisbech in 1801 was 4,710, and in 1891 was 9,395, including 205 officers and inmates of the workhouse.

WALDERSEA is a district consisting of about 5,040 acres, the whole of which is drained into the river Nene by an engine of 120 horse power; the engine house is on the South Brink, about 3 miles from Wisbech.

NEW WALSOKEN, in the county of Norfolk, is an eastern portion of Wisbech, and is separated from it by the Wisbech canal, over which are bridges connecting the two places. The names of residents in New Walsoken are given in Kelly's Norfolk Directory.

MARY is a parish, with a station on the Peterborough and Lynn section of the Midland railway, 3 miles south-west of Wisbech, in the Northern division of the county, Wisbech hundred, union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Wisbech, and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely, Isle of Ely. The civil parish includes the ecclesiastical districts of GUYHIRN and MURROW (which will be found under separate headings), and the hamlets of THORNEY TOLL and THOLOMAS DROVE, and a portion of WISBECH FEN. The church of St. Mary is an ancient edifice of brick and stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, restored in 1873 by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, clerestoried nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 5 bells: there are a number of curious brackets, and in the south porch the remains of an unusually large stoup: the church affords 360 sittings. The register dates from the year 1557. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £631, net yearly value, £277, with residence and 12 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Ely, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Richard Devereux Jones M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. The living is at present subject to a pension of £230 to the late vicar. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The charities include 61 acres left A.D. 1593 by Mr. Bend, with 8 acres added by the commissioners of the Bedford Level (temp. Charles II.), comprising, with other lands, 75 acres, the rents of which, about £240 yearly, are given to the poor; 21 acres of land left in 1726 by Francis Hardy for the endowment of a school for the parishioners; £50 left in 1605 by Mrs. Bend, the interest to be given—two-thirds to this parish and one-third to Parson Drove; in 1833-4 25A. 3R. 26P. of land were allotted by the Enclosure Commissioners, to be let in small lots to the poor of this parish at nominal rentals: 15 cottages have been erected for the use of poor labourers, who pay 1s. each yearly for them. The rentals of lands let to the poor are applied to the poor relief fund. The charities enumerated are enjoyable by the whole of the parishioners of Wisbech St. Mary. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners, who are lords of the manor, the Duke of Somerset K.G. the Duke of Bedford, the Right Hon. Hugh Culling Eardley Childers P.C., M.P. the Lady Henry Thynne, the Rev. James Bellamy D.D. president of St. John's College, Oxford, the Rev. Francis Cotton Marshall, rector of Little Wilbraham, the Corporation of the Sons of the Clergy, St. Peter's College, Cambridge, Guy's Hospital, London, Thomas Williamson esq. and Algernon Peckover esq. of Wisbech, are the principal landowners. The soil is loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats, peas, potatoes and root crops. The area is 9,720 acres; rateable value, £17,126; the population in 1891 was 1887.

THOLOMAS DROVE is a hamlet 2 miles south-west of Wisbech St. Mary. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The school room, formerly belonging to the trustees of the Grammar School, founded by Francis Harely, has been fitted up as a mission chapel, and Divine service is conducted here every Sunday afternoon by the vicar.

THORNEY TOLL is a hamlet 7½ miles west from the parish church, and is included in the ecclesiastical parish of Guyhirn, for which see. There is a Free Methodist Chapel in the Fen, at a place called "The Alley."

WITCHAM is a parish standing on a hill about three-quarters of a mile from the high road from Ely to Chatteris, about 6 miles west from Ely and about 2 miles north-east from Sutton station, on the Ely and St. Ives branch of the Great Eastern Railway, in the Western division of the county, South Witchford hundred, Ely union, petty sessional division and county court district, in the Isle of Ely, rural deanery of Ely, and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely. The church of St. Martin, erected in the 13th century, is a structure of brick in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles containing one bell: there is a Norman font with curious carved figures, a carved stone pulpit and an oak screen; the church affords 220 sittings. The register dates from the year 1663. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £265, net yearly value £247, including 19 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Ely, and held since 1846 by the Rev. Richard Waldegrave Packer B.A. of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge. There is a small Wesleyan chapel here. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are lords of the manor, and with Miss Martin and William Priestly, are the principal landowners. The soil is gravel; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, beans, barley and oats. The area is 2,671 acres; rateable value £3,680; the population in 1891 was 321, wholly engaged in husbandry. By an order which came into operation March 25, 1885, detached parts of this parish were amalgamated with Coveney Mepal and Manea, the latter in North Witchford union: at the same date detached parts of Ely St. Mary's, Ely Trinity and Witchford were amalgamated with this parish.

Part of WITCHAM GRAVEL is in the jurisdiction of the city of Ely.

WITCHFORD is a parish in the Isle of Ely (giving name to the two hundreds), in the south of which it is situated, on the road from Ely to St. Ives, 2½ miles south-west from Ely and 3 north-by-west from Stretham station on the Ely, Sutton and St. Ives railway, in the Western division of the county, Ely union, petty sessional division and county court district, and rural deanery of Ely, and in the peculiar archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Ely: it is entirely agricultural. The church of St Andrew, originally Norman, and incorporating the materials of the ancient structure, is an edifice of stone in the Early English and later styles, consisting of chancel, nave, north porch and an embattled western tower containing 3 bells, dated 1671: the east window is stained: the church retains a Norman font and the chancel has a piscina and a double aumbry, and there is another double aumbry in the north wall of the nave: the tower is Early English of the 13th century, and the nave and chancel are Decorated of the 14th century: the church was thoroughly restored in 1851, and further restorations were concluded in 1887: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1778. The living is a vicarage, average tithe rent-charge £109, net yearly value £306, including 24 acres of glebe, with residence, built in 1847, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Ely, and held since 1884 by the Rev. Benjamin Marner Lloyd, of St. Bees. There are Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners, who are the lords of the manor, the trustees of the late Mrs. Cropley, of Egremont House, Ely, Messrs. Thomas Wallis and Richard Beldam, and the Ely feoffees are the chief landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat and beans. The area is 2,376 acres; rateable value, £2,914; the population in 1891 was about 428. By an order which came into operation March 25, 1884, detached parts of this parish were amalgamated with Witcham and Manea, and on March 25, 1886, another detached part was amalgamated with Grunty Fen.

WOOD DITTON is a parish and village, 3½ miles south from Newmarket station on the Great Eastern railway, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Cheveley, Newmarket union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Fordham, archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Ely. The church of St. Mary is an ancient edifice of flint in the Early English style, with Perpendicular additions, and consists of chancel, clerestoried and embattled nave, aisles, south porch and a western tower containing 5 bells: the church, which is now much out of repair, affords 310 sittings, 185 being appropriated. The register dates from the year 1567. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £242, arising from 175 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Duke of Rutland K.G. lay rector, and held since 1880 by the Rev. Joseph Wiggins Kyte, of St. Aidans. Here is a Baptist chapel, erected in 1870, and a Primitive Methodist chapel, rebuilt in 1884; and there is a Congregational Mission room, built of iron. The Duke of Rutland K.G. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is various; subsoil, clay and chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 4,852 acres; rateable value, £12,013; the population in 1891, chiefly distributed in the hamlets of DITTON GREEN, LITTLE DITTON, SAXON STREET and part of NEWMARKET, was 2,048; without the Newmarket portion, 817.

SAXON STREET is a considerable hamlet about 1½ miles east from the Wood Ditton church. The chapel here, a plain structure of red brick, was erected in 1877 by Lady Adeliza Manners as a memorial of her husband, Lord George John Manners, of Cheveley Park, who died Sept. 8, 1874: divine service is held here every Sunday evening by the vicar of Wood Ditton. At Saxon Hall, the residence of James Gardner esq. who is master, are the kennels of the Green Lodge drag hounds.

NOW COMPILING.

THE EIGHTH EDITION OF

KELLY'S DIRECTORY

OF

LINCOLNSHIRE

AND

THE PORT OF KINGSTON-ON-HULL,

WITH MAP OF THE COUNTY ENGRAVED FOR THE WORK.

PRICE TO SUBSCRIBERS, 22/6 - - NON-SUBSCRIBERS, 30/-

COMPRISING

THE CITY OF LINCOLN,

THE PORT AND FISHING BOROUGH OF GREAT GRIMSBY,

TOGETHER WITH

EVERY TOWN, PARISH AND VILLAGE, HOWEVER SMALL, THROUGHOUT THE COUNTY.

The Port of Hull will be found arranged in the Divisions of Streets, Commercial, and Trades.

The arrangement of the County is strictly Alphabetical, there being a separate head for every parish, so that every place can be referred to with the greatest ease; it comprises a Topographical Account of each Parish, Village, Hamlet and Township, with its distance from London and other chief towns, its position in the division of the County under the Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885, the Wapentake and Union, and County Court District, and also the Diocese, Archdeaconry and Rural Deanery; Description of the Churches, with the value of the Living, and the names of the Patron and Incumbent; also the chief landowners, the Acreage, Rateable Value, notice of Soil and Crops, Local Charities, and Description of the Principal Seats. In the Towns are also given a full account of the Principal Manufactures of which each is the seat; particulars of the Local Government; an Architectural Description of the Churches and other Public Buildings; Public Schools; Hospitals, Almshouses and Charities; Markets, Fairs and Races; Agricultural and Scientific Societies and Meetings; the Objects of Natural Curiosity and Antiquities; and a description of the Geological features, by Mr. W. J. HARRISON, of the Birmingham School Board.

The COUNTY COUNCILS as formed under the LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1888.

Information also relating to Postal Matters, Law and Public Offices, Places of Worship, together with particulars respecting Conveyance by Railway, Water or Land Carriers, will be included.

Immediately following will be given an Alphabetical Arrangement of Names of the Nobility, Clergy and Gentry, and a General Classification of Trades, all the Persons engaged in every Trade throughout the County and Hull being arranged under their several Trades.
